Officials of "Jazz Night at Virginia Beach" have announced that Brubeck and his Quartet and Winding and his Septet will headline a star-studded jazz program, July 13 at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center.

Brubeck and his group are internationally acclaimed as one of the world's foremost jazz groups. Their history making world travels, under the auspices of our State Department, have carried the message of jazz to the far corners of the world.

Brubeck has won, at one time or another, virtually every poll and award in jazz including the Playboy Jazz Poll for the past three years.

The Kai Winding Septet, featuring four trombones and three rhythm have been a tremendous hit from coast to coast and has firmly established "The Trombone Sound" created by Kai back when he played with Benny Goodman and Stan Kenton.

Two other groups yet to be announced will join Brubeck & Winding at Virginia Beach for two performances (8:00 p.m.) & (11:30 p.m.) on July 13. The program billed as "quality entertainment for a listening audience" is a major attraction of the Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show (July 12-16).

Beach Resident

"Secretary of Year" Now in State Contest

By JOY HAKIM

VIRGINIA BEACH — If you were a secretary and received a letter of complaint from a customer, and you were at fault, what would you do?

Margaret Sullivan's answer to that question helped her win a state-wide competition to become "Secretary of the Year" for Virginia.

The pretty, dark-haired resident of North Virginia Beach works at the Amphibious Base for Rear Admiral John S. McCain Jr. and Captain John J. Becker.

Neat, soft-spoken with an air of confidence, it's obvious that she must do her job well.

How did she become "Secretary of the Year?"

Each chapter of the National Secretaries Association (Intl.) nominates a member for the state-wide competition. Miss Sullivan was nominated by the Chesapeake Chapter.

The Virginia convention was held in Lynchburg on May 18 (next year it will be at the Cavalier Hotel here), and the contestants were judged on a written application, on their answers to three oral questions and on general poise and appearance.

As winner of the state competition Miss Sullivan's application will be judged in the Southeast District and the winner of that region will compete in the national convention in Chicago in July.

"Work Willingly"

What does it take to be a good secretary? Miss Sullivan says, "as much education as possible," and "a willingness to work."

Miss Sullivan is a Certified Public Secretary. A distinction shared by only one other secretary in the Norfolk, Portsmouth area. The CPS rating is given by the National Secretaries Association (Intl.) after the candidate passes a rigid two-day examination.

Through wider recognition and acceptance of the CPS rat-

Beach Gets Safety Award

VIRGINIA BEACH—The City of Virginia Beach has been awarded a National Safety Council certificate for its outstanding traffic record.

Mayor Frank A. Dusch received a telegram Friday from Howard Pyle, president of the NSC in Chicago, Ill., notifying him of the award.

"Outstanding achievement certificate awarded your city," the telegram stated, "for no traffic deaths and progressive accident prevention program."

Pyle congratulated Dusch and Police Chief Reeves E. Johnson.

Enforcement and court awards will be announced later, the telegram said.

Lions Coming Here in 1965

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia State Lions Convention will be held at Virginia Beach in late May or early June of 1965.

The state group voted on this location almost unanimously at a meeting in Roanoke last weekend. Virginia Beach won out over Roanoke. The 1963 meeting will be in Norfolk, the 1964 in Richmond.

A Virginia Beach Lions Club promotion, spearheaded by Bill Snider, secured the convention for the resort. He was assisted by Ed Dody of The Cavalier and Bill Lillyman of the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center.

"Over 2,000 persons are expected to attend the 1965 meeting," Lillyman said, "and will bring about $60-$80,000 in revenue into the city."

The National Guard, which met here over the week-end, also voted to return to Virginia Beach, Lillyman said.

Former Jaycee Head Visits Here

Peter Frankel, Immediate Past President of Junior Chamber International, as part of a tour of Eastern United States, will spend the latter part of the week in the Tidewater Area. Virginia Beach and Norfolk Jaycee Chapters will host his visit here.

Frankel, of Rio de Janiero, Brazil, is on a two-week trip to this country promoting the international aspects of Jaycee work. Jaycee International claims a total membership of over 300,000 in more than 80 countries around the world. All of Virginia's more than one hundred chapters are affiliated.

Area Jaycees will greet Frankel at the Norfolk Airport tonight (Thursday, June 7). He will be staying at the Mariner Motel at Virginia Beach. Tomorrow morning (Friday, June 8)

Wildlife Essay Contest Winner

Young Kenneth Holloman, sixth grade pupil at the Kempsville Meadows Elementary School, is shown being congratulated by Governor Albertis S. Harrison, Jr. for winning a top award in the 15th annual Wildlife Essay Contest sponsored by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. Holloman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Holloman of Mayview, Princess Anne County. Other county winners were Sandra Albright, Linda Hudson, Nancy Martin, Brenda Wright and Burl Fisher, Jr.

Progress on Water Issue is Reported

VIRGINIA BEACH—A second meeting to work out an agreement on water service by Norfolk for the new City of Virginia Beach was held Tuesday in the office of Norfolk City Manager Thomas F. Maxwell.

Meeting behind closed doors were Maxwell, Virginia Beach City Manager Russell Hatchett, Executive Secretary to the County Board of Supervisors Richard J. Webbon, Norfolk Mayor W. Fred Duckworth, and Sidney S. Kellam, City Attorney George Vakos and Councilman Frank Tarrall, of Va. Beach.

After the meeting a statement stating that "further progress was made toward the solution of the water situation, and all parties expressed agreement that the negotiations are proceeding in a satisfactory manner," was issued by Maxwell, Hatchett and Webbon.

Virginia Beach presently buys water at bulk rates from Norfolk and has its own distribution system. County customers buying water from Norfolk pay double rates compared to Norfolk residents.

Norfolk has proposed that when the county and beach merge January 1 into the new City of Virginia Beach, it sell water at a bulk rate, which means the new city would have to set up its own water department to handle services now performed by Norfolk.

Elks Lodge Is Forming Here

An Elks Lodge in the new City of Virginia Beach seemed assured when 85 men signed a petition for a dispensation to institute the Lodge. The action was taken at a meeting in the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center May 31st.

The petition will be forwarded to the State Elks Association and to the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for approval, according to John W. Glover, Chairman of the Organization Committee. He said that he anticipated that a dispensation would be granted within a few weeks.

Only 50 signatures are required by the Order's statutes. The 85 who signed the petition included residents of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County. When the dispensation is received, a date will be set for institution of the Lodge. Glover explained that all who are initiated at the time of the institution are eligible for charter membership. He said that membership rolls will be kept open until then and meetings will be held regularly to act on membership applications.

The Organization Committee voted to set the initiation fee at $25.00 and fixed the annual dues at $20.00. It was announced that the new Lodge will be officially sponsored by the Portsmouth Lodge. Mr. Herbert Willard, Past Exhaulted Ruler of the Portsmouth Lodge has been particularly active in the formation of the new Lodge.

The officers of the Organization Committee are John W. Glover, Chairman, Robert L. Simpson, treasurer, Charles H. Nelms, secretary. The following is a partial list of the member-

June Not Favorite

Modern Wedding Changes, Local Ministers Agree

By JOY HAKIM

VIRGINIA BEACH—June, June, June—when days are long, strawberries ripe, and weddings most frequent.

Or are they? At least two local ministers think there are just as many weddings at other times of year.

The Rev. Edmund Berkeley, rector at Galilee Episcopal Church, says he weds as many couples during the autumn months as in June. Father Damian Abbaticchio, of St. Gregory's Catholic Church, thinks weddings continue at about the same rate all year.

But most of the local ministers have at least a wedding or two scheduled for this month.

And they all agree that most weddings today are double ring ceremonies, while a few years ago, said Rev. Berkeley, they were almost all single ring services.

According to Dr. Kenneth Haddock, pastor of Virginia Beach Methodist Church, the wedding music is changing. Many of the old traditional songs are being replaced by more modern music. He seemed to think it a change for the better, with less flowery and more sensible sentiments in the newer lyrics.

Recently, several fathers of the bride have requested a slight change in the service, Haddock said. When the minister asks, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?", some fathers prefer to answer, "Her mother and I do," rather than the usual, "I do."

Dr. Haddock has also noticed a definite increase in church weddings. Almost all of the weddings he performs today are in the church or chapel, while several years ago a large number were performed at home.

The Rev. Douglas G. Ebert, of Foundry Methodist Church, says that the Lord's Prayer is now included in the marriage service in most of the weddings that he performs.

Surprisingly, most of the ministers agreed with the Rev. J. E. Johnson of Bayside Presbyterian Church, who said, "The bride and groom are almost always cool, calm and collected." Rev. Johnson finds that "couples today are more interested in having a nice wedding," and they spend more time planning for it.

There also seems to be more time spent in recording the wedding festivities. Wedding photographs are increasingly popular and several ministers mentioned couples who have had moving pictures taken and tape recordings made.

There is some controversy over whether the bride and groom should kiss immediately after the wedding service. Most of the ministers said it was customary. The Rev. Mr. Berkeley said that when he is asked he suggests that the couple wait until they have some privacy.

Even the old rice-throwing custom has been given a new look. In a recent Virginia Beach wedding, pale pink rice was tossed at the newly married couple.

Lewis Smith has been performing weddings in Virginia Beach since 1952 under authority granted him by the Circuit Court.

He says that he has seen cases of nerves, tears and giggles, but that most ceremonies go off smoothly.

Smith weds many couples who come to Virginia Beach for both their wedding and honeymoon.

They need only a blood test to be married without delay.

One wedding Smith remembers vividly. The groom wore a cowboy shirt and a tie with a bathing beauty painted on it. He also had on sunglasses that reflected like a mirror. The bride wore an evening gown.

But whoever she is, and whatever she wears — everyone seemed to agree, the bride is always beautiful.

Sunday Races At Drag Strip

CREEDS — Rain washed out the regular Sunday program of races at the Freedom "7" Dragway here last Sunday, but a full slate of drag racing is on tap at the popular strip this Sunday.

The Freedom "7" Dragway got off to a good start on Memorial Day with more than 100 cars entered in the drag races. Another enthusiastic crowd was on hand last Sunday but the skies opened up and the fans present were given rain-checks to be honored at this Sunday's races.

The drag strip opens at 12:30 p.m. and trial heats are conducted until race time at 3 p.m.

Freedom "7" Dragway is sponsored by the Creeds Volunteer Fire Department and the Virginia Beach Safe Drivers Association. The track is sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association.

Admission to the strip is one dollar per person. Automobiles and drivers who enter must pay an entry fee of three dollars.

Freedom "7" Dragway is the old Creeds airfield in Princess Anne County. To reach it travel through the county to Pungo and then on to Creeds.

National Little League Off to Fast Start

By JOHN ELDER

The Thunderbirds have taken a commanding lead in the Virginia Beach National Little League by sweeping their first three games: In the most recent encounter they downed the Pipers by a 20-1 margin. The other teams promise to give the T-Birds a run for their money in the remaining games. In second place, with a 2-1 mark, are the Little Giants followed closely by the Hawks, 1-2. The Pipers currently inhabit the cellar, with an 0-3 record.

On Monday evening the Pipers met the Thunderbirds in a postponed game that the weatherman won on Memorial Day. Charles Wilson started for the Ford-men, but after walking the first two Pipers, he was replaced by Mike Tripto. Mike played the role of fireman quite well, and caused the first man he faced to slap a high outside pitch down the first base line. First baseman Jim Eanes made a good play on the ball and stepped on first base, to double off the runner, and then quickly relayed the ball to the shortstop, covering second base. The result — a nicely executed TRIPLE PLAY.

So nicely was the play executed, that it seemed to set a trend which continued through the rest of the game. The Pipers were unable to muster a run until the last inning. Meanwhile, in the top of the third, and in each succeeding inning, the Thunderbirds piled up the talley, until closing time, when the scoreboard showed them with a commanding 20-run lead.

It looked like the Pipers might be trying to get something started in the third, when Joe Fairchild sent the center fielder to the fence to retrieve his clothes-liner, but the rally soon fell short. It wasn't until the last inning that the Pipers were able to break up the shut out, but even then, they were able to push only one run across the plate.

The winning pitcher was Mike Tripto, who went the distance for manager Cal Dancey. The loser was Wayne Agee, who threw hard for four frames, but was relieved by southpaw Carl Magnum.

The National League games are played at Virginia Beach High School. Starting time for the twin bills are at 6 p.m. with the second game getting under way at 7:45. Admission is free. The schedule for this week is: Friday, June 8

Music Will Fill the Air Next Week in Virginia Beach

Next week the First Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival will be staged and the Beach air can be expected to be filled with music everywhere, but chiefly at the Virginia Beach High School stadium.

This event, the first undertaken here, is a project of the Chamber of Commerce and one of its members, Forbes Candies. It is expected that this will be the first in a long line of music festivals.

What is the Virginia Beach Music Festival? It is the bringing together this year of ten high school bands from several south eastern states. How is a festival conducted?

There are three official judges, all well known in the musical world, who will judge the bands in competition that includes concert playing and marching.

Residents and visitors, alike, will be treated to a gala parade Saturday along Atlantic Avenue when all competing bands will be on display.

Events of the festival are scheduled for the stadium at the high school. The First Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival bids fair to establishing a firm foundation for similar festivals to follow in the years ahead.

City Gets Another Safety Award

The City of Virginia Beach was notified this week that it has again demonstrated an outstanding record in the field of traffic safety and that the city completed the year without a single death due to the motoring traffic.

Virginia Beach has been the recipient of this award by the National Safety Council for several years, but the citation is doubly significant when one considers the great influx of automobile drivers to the city during the summer months. Gaining this recognition means a little more to a summer resort such as Virginia Beach for this visitor influx creates a heavy traffic pattern here.

The City was notified in a telegram from the National Safety Council that a certificate is being presented for its outstanding traffic record. The telegram was sent to Mayor Dusch and Police Chief Reeves E. Johnson on the "outstanding achievement for no traffic deaths and progressive accident prevention program."

The Sun-News adds its congratulations to the City and to Chief Johnson and his department. The record is a tribute to all of the citizens and the police personnel of this city.

Council Election Tuesday Should Have a Representative Vote

While there has been no heated political battle since the candidates are running without opposition, and therefore there has been little publicity and no excitement, Virginia Beach voters are required by law to elect three city councilmen next Tuesday in a municipal election.

The election brings forth two incumbent councilmen and one newcomer to the local political scene. City Councilmen Edward T. Caton, III and W. Hugh Kitchin have been joined by Businessman L. Stanley Hodges for next Tuesday's councilmanic election.

In days gone by there have been excitement and interest in an election of this type, but this time the three candidates qualified for the election and no opposition developed. The trio has the backing of the city administration and the lack of any opposition is a tribute, we think, to the sound policies of the present city government.

Despite the lack of a race we feel that the three men who are offering to serve on the city council and who will be elected Tuesday deserve a sizable vote. We think that voters should exercise their right and go to the polls Tuesday and give Messrs. Caton, Kitchin and Hodges a vote of confidence on the job that lies ahead in view of the consolidation of the city and county that will take place next January 1.

Mark the calendar to visit the polls Tuesday and vote in the city council election.

Convenience Key To Better Living

Convenience foods have been described as having "built-in maid service."

Somewhere along the way — from the farm to your dinner table—someone has done much or all of the work of getting your food ready to eat.

Most families today buy foods with some degree of built-in service. These range from items usually regarded as simple necessities—bakery bread, canned fruits and vegetables — through instant potatoes and canned buttermilk biscuits — to a complete frozen dinner ready to heat and serve.

Convenience foods usually save us time and effort. Sometimes they save us money, too.

No matter why we buy them, convenience foods are giving us what we want. Each year, we buy more and more of them.

Time is usually the biggest saving. The busy mother who needs an extra hour to work on a civic projects . . . the young bachelor career man faced with his first kitchenette . . . the elderly . . . all want good food, quickly, with as little effort as possible.

Convenience foods give us freedom to use time and energy in ways we find more interesting and valuable than working in the kitchen.

How much time is saved? One study showed that three "ready-to-serve" meals for a family of four can be prepared in 1.6 hrs. compared to 5½ hours for the same foods prepared at home. So the ready-to-serve meals saved 4 hours that could be used in other ways.

What about cost? In the same study, the meals prepared at home cost $4.90 and the ready-to-serve form cost $6.70. The homemaker worked four hours to save $1.80—an average hourly wage of 45c.

So, some convenience foods do cost more. We now pay 4 billion dollars a year more than we did in 1939 to have part of the work transferred from the kitchen to the factory.

On the other hand, some convenience foods cost little if any more than regular foods. One study showed that 18 out of 52 selected convenience food items actually cost less than their unserviced ingredients. Six cost the same.

When a processor does your shopping for you—on the farm at harvest time—you get some advantage of wholesale prices. And because much of the work is done near the place where the food is grown, you save shipping costs on waste parts.

Frozen orange juice is an example. The oranges are squeezed at a plant near the grove and the juice is shipped in concentrated form. This saves enough to offset processing costs.

Convenience foods sometimes save storage costs, at the grocer's and in modern kitchens. In today's homes and apartments, where space is figured by the cubic foot, there's little room for the old-time 100-pound sack of flour or sugar. But combined in a neatly packaged mix, these ingredients earn their keep in any family larder.

Quality is often another plus factor in convenience foods. Fresh fruits and vegetables, harvested in their prime, for example, can be kept in nutritious farm-fresh condition with new scientific techniques not available in the home kitchen. We can enjoy these foods all year around.

New Foods On The Way

Items most of us never thought of are "on the planning board" and soon will appear brightly packaged and within tempting reach of the grocery cart.

Food scientists are working on new processes — dehydrofreezing, irradiation, pasteurization of more foods. These new methods wil lgive us still better food, easier to prepare.

American agriculture sees to it that we get the kind of food we want, when we want it, and in the most convenient form possible.

It's Petunia Planting Time Again

SURFSIDE '62

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

It continues to amage me what a fascinating place Virginia Beach is . . . a vacationland beach at the front door, a fisherman's paradise at the back door, and a culture and entertainment filled community wedged in between. To a country gal like me this is really something.

My home town, a city of about 12,000 in the center of Florida, is a lovely place, rich in citrus groves, phosphate mines and flourishing truck crops. It's clean, modern and picturesque and is fast becoming a retirement city because of its tranquil pace.

But until I moved to Virginia Beach seven years ago I had never seen an art show, enjoyed a theatrical production above the amateur level or heard fine music. This is all commonplace here and taken pretty much for granted.

Artists, writers, actors and musicians make up a large portion on this resort's population and the city well reflects their talents.

ART WHILE DINING

Take art, for instance. Visitors come from all over the country to view the Boardwalk Art Show. Yet we Virginia Beachiahs can enjoy the works of many of the show's exhibitors almost daily. Just this week Angie Alexander's restaurant, on Atlantic Avenue adjoining the Beach Theatre building, opened a remodeled section devoted to art displays.

Walter Thrift, last year's Best in the Show winner in the Boardwalk event, will be the first guest artist to exhibit at Alexander's, followed in weeks to come by other popular local artists.

Then, there is the theatre. What a wonderful opportunity we have to enjoy stage productions in the fine Sandpiper Playhouse during the summer and the Little Theatre during the winter.

Sandpiper has a schedule of plays this year that should satisfy even the most critical theatregoer . . . "Brigadoon," "Mr. Roberts" and "You Can't Take It With You," among the fare. These productions are performed by professional and semi-professional actors and for the sake of me I can't see why anyone would want to trot off to New York City in the heat and formal dress when they could enjoy real theatre right here in the comfort of sundresses and Bermuda shorts.

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre presentations are done on an amateur basis, of course, but most of them are excellent and seldom have I come away disappointed. My only disappointment has been in the support they get from the citizenry. Perhaps when Virginia Beach becomes a city of nearly 100,000, the auditorium will fill to capacity.

The Civic Chorus' presentation last week of "Trial by Jury," the Gilbert and Sullivan classic, drew large crowds. It was encouraging to see the appreciation and support this group received. The chorus and orchestra did an excellent job and were so encouraged by the turn out that they hope to present a similar program in a few months.

As for dance music, just look at the schedule of bands at the Cavalier Beach Club this summer—Carmen Cavallero at the piano with Ray Herrera's band, Blue Baron, Ray McKinley and the Glenn Miller Orchestra, Claude Thornhill, Tony Pastor and Snooky Lanson (of "Hit Parade" fame) with Dean Hudson and his Orchestra.

One of the local hotels is planning a dining treat for residents as well as summer visitors that will appeal to anyone with a longing for the Old South and the lavish foods of that by-gone era. Can't tell you about it yet . . . maybe next week.

Pembroke Manor Names Designers

Julie and Robert Sherman, principals of Model Interiors, Inc., nationally known interior and industrial designers of Baton Rouge, La., have been retained by the Terry Corporation to color-coordinate Pembroke Manor, a soon-to-open 1,100-home community adjacent to Princess Anne High School.

The "colorscoping" of Pembroke Manor includes the interiors and exteriors of model homes, the exteriors of all the 1,100 homes to be built and the overall decor of Terry Corpoation offices and exhibition buildings.

Specialists in residential interiors, the decorating firm does interiors for model home presentation and also acts as consultants for manufacturers of home building products.

The Sherman partners selected all the paints, fabrics and textures used decoratively at Pembroke. The character of the community having been established by Lublin-McGaughy and Associates, architectural consultants to the Terry Corporation, the Shermans developed their concepts from the architectural scheme and landscaping plans made by Winn Nursery, Inc.

Unusual variations of cedar red, beige, forest green, white and dune yellow and, at least, 225 color patterns will prevail throughout the exteriors of Pembroke Manor.

In an effort to combine the old and the new, Model Interiors called for a mixture of periods in the model home furniture. All of the furniture selections are locally available, from early American to transitional and contemporary.

Both writers and consultants for special projects for Life, House and Home, American Builder and other publications, Julie and Bob Sherman advised for Pembroke Manor a monochromatic color scheme for each home's interior. This plan, using shades of one color on all walls, gives a feeling of continuity and provides greater latitude in home furnishings.

When asked to give a few tips in home decor, Sherman cautioned, "It's better to use an inexpensive material in draperies and use a lot of it rather than a more expensive material and be forced to purchase less, in skimpy quantity. Unlined draperies are perfectly all right, by the way, so long as consideration is given to exterior colors."

Sherman explained that, at night, the color of the drapery seems to alter as one sees it from outside because of interior lighting behind the drapery affecting the change.

The decorating team also advised that the home decorator should endeavor to get interesting color arrangements from accessories for two reasons: smaller objects can be replaced for less cost than larger ones and a variety of moods can be achieved with clever accessory placement.

The Pembroke Manor models will have wool rugs in light colors to blend, not match, the walls. Carefully selected lamps are in the models. The Shermans placed opaque - shaped lamps in areas where a pool of light is necessary and for more dramatic lighting. For work areas, translucent lamps are the order.

Included in the color coordination at Pembroke Manor is the exhibition building. This building will house a collection of permanent art and artifact selections as well as a visual demonstration of home components in detail. Lit by careful stage lighting, the unique building has been planned inside and out to give, among other things, a factual description of Pembroke Manor and its environs.

Opening a new offies in Washington, D.C., only this week, Model Interiors, Inc., has been retained by builders, architects and manufacturers, including: Crawford Corporation; Caldwell and Cooke Construction in Rochester, N. Y.; Kingsberry Prefabricated Homes in Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery Ward, Sholz Homes, Toledo, Ohio; Reynolds Aluminum and Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

Highway Users Meet June 10-13

RICHMOND — The industrial economy of Virginia, illegal freight carriage and progress in safety promotion will be the principal topics discussed at the forthcoming thirty-second annual convention of the Virginia Highway Users Association, the state trade association of the trucking industry.

The meeting will be held at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. June 10-13, it was announced by W. Calvin Falwell of Lynchburg, president of the association.

Discussing Virginia's present and potential industrial economy will be Richard C. Holmquist, executive director of the Virginia Industrialization Group, an organization dedicated to the task of building the state's industrial economy. He also serves as industrial development consultant to the Governor, and to the Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

A four-member panel will discuss illegal freight carriage. Participating will be Judge Jesse W. Dillon of the State Corporation Commission; Honorable Charles A. Webb of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington; Donald P. Kipp of Detroit, chairman of the industry's committee on transportation practices and L. E. Galaspie, Richmond, vice-chairman of the industry committee against unauthorized transportation. J. David Brothers of Richmond will moderate the panel.

Awards in seven classes of competition will be presented to winners in the 1961 Virginia truck safety contest. The contestants traveled a total of 92,777,176 miles with an overall average of 1.03 accidents per 100,000 miles. Making the presentations will be Baxter J. Johnson of Norfolk, chairman of the Virginia Council of Highway Safety Supervisors, and L. F. Manneschmidt, Atlanta, southern regional manager of Trailmobile, Inc., joint sponsors of the contest.

Other speakers include David J. Mays of Richmond and James F. Pinkney of Washington. Officers and directors will be elected the morning of June 12.

Aqua-cat Title To Billy Mills

VIRGINIA BEACH — Billy Mills of Westport, Conn. took first place in the Catamaran Sailing Regatta here last weekend by placing first in both Saturday and Sunday heats.

The Virginia Beach fleet of the Aqua-Cat Catamaran Sailing Association held the regatta in the ocean off 24th Street. It was sponsored by Ferebee Trafton, owner - operator of Albemarle Hall, and was the first catamaran regatta to be held in this area.

Peter Mueller of New Haven, Conn. finished next to Mills with two second places to his credit.

Norfolk's Dink Vail, national Jollyboat champion, sailed on Saturday and took a second place finish in the first heat.

Large crowds lined the boardwalk at the launching site as the tiny, 12-foot crafts challenged the rolling surf. Due to its two molded fiberglass pontoons and high-riding canvas deck, the catamaran is one of few small sailboats suited to open waters like the Atlantic Ocean.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son, Frank Watson Land, who passed away ten years ago today, June 10, 1952.

Oftimes my thoughts go wandering to the grave not far away.
Where lives the sweetest memory that will never fade away.
Although your soul is now at rest and free from care and pain,
This world would seem like Heaven if we had you back again.

North End Youngsters Form "Teahouse Players"

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

VIRGINIA BEACH — Sunday afternoons residents of North Virginia Beach might open their front doors and be faced with a flock of gaily costumed youngsters.

But it isn't trick-or-treat time. It's only the "Teahouse Players" ready to perform.

The group of youngsters, when the spirit moves them, don an assortment of Chinese robes, bits of ribbon, flowers and coolie hats and travel from door to door presenting their version of the popular "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Sometimes the group may number two or three, other times it may swell to about 10. But the number really doesn't matter. The script is improvised to suit the situation. Just as the characters are alerted to fit the mood. One Sunday Susan Washburn may be the comical Sakini. Next time it may be Ellen Overman or Sally Joyner. It really depends on who calls it first.

The lovely Lotus Blossom may be played by Carol Wood or her sister, Sudie, but Louise Overman and Holly Joyner must usually be content with the unspeaking parts of coolies or villagers. They aren't old enough to remember the lines.

This pint-sized version of "Teahouse" is an aftermath of the Sandpiper Playhouse production last summer when two of the girls, Susan Washburn and Sally Joyner, took part in the real thing. They appeared as village children in the theatre-in-the-round presentation for 10 weeks.

But a real true-to-life actress can't retire from the stage and just forget her talents. So Susan and Sally organized their own theatrical group — much to the delight of their neighbors.

Sakini's lines may not sound the way they did when Angie Alexander spoke them last summer and the part of Lotus Blossom may deviate from Laura Lamb's enactment, but who cares? Its been a barrel of fun for the youngsters, their parents and their enthusiastic audiences.

Joie Chitwood At Dog Track Raceway June 15

MOYOCK — Joie Chitwood and his World Champion Auto Daredevils will be featured at the Dog Track Raceway at Moyock, N.C. Friday night, June 15. Show time 8:30 p.m.

The 1½ hour exhibition is livened by continuous narration and is interspersed with clowns' routines. Stock 1962 Chevrolet passenger cars, Chevy II, Corvette and Corvair models, are used in the performance.

Chitwood and his "Danger Angels" have kept audiences on the edge of their seats from coast to coast as they put cars through paces that might well annihilate an army tank.

The rapid-fire program, in in which the drivers have several brushes with tragedy, includes such acts as low and high wing-overs, the battering ram, roll-overs, slides and crash dives. Cars are driven through a curtain of flame and, in the final act, a Chevy II sedan appears to be shot out of a gun to soar through the air from one platform to another.

Chitwood, who has been operating the Thrill Show for 17 years, was a star of the auto racing world in the 1930's and 40's. He holds more AAA track racing records than any other driver and finished in the money at the Indianapolis 500-Mile race nine times.

The Dog Track Raceway is located on route 168 at the Virginia-North Carolina line, 12 miles south of Great Bridge.

New Golden Dragon Restaurant Opens Today

VIRGINIA BEACH—A waterfall rippling over rough moss stone greeted patrons of the new Golden Dragon Restaurant when it opened its doors for business Thursday at 9 p.m.

The foyer follows the restaurant's oriental motif with a stone pagoda, lily - filled waterfall, hanging lanterns and an artificial Chinese tangerine tree and other shrubs.

Seating about 150 persons, the dining areas are divided by bamboo and jet black panels decorated with authentic tapestry scrolls. A smaller dining area features a bamboo bar and hanging bubble lanterns.

Such imported pieces as brass gongs, jade stone plaques of oriental figures, Chinese lanterns and emblem decorate the walls and artificial greenery and works of art accent the room.

A terrazza tile floor carries out the beige, orange and black colors. The walls are a soft beige.

The exterior of the building features the golden dragon emblem in mosaic tiles set in the special cut cement block and an authentic stone lantern flanking the front door.

An asphalt parking area is located at the rear of the building.

The Golden Dragon is owned and operated by Stephen Eng who started the business at the Atlantic Avenue location several years ago. He made most of the artificial shrubs himself.

The building was designed and built by T. H. Callow Construction Co. of Virginia Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McBain of Legineer, Pa., are spending several weeks visiting at the beach.

Ernest Trezevant Buchanan III

DURHAM, N.C. — Five students from the Virginia Beach area are included among the 1,100 persons who are slated to receive degrees from Duke University during the institution's 110th Commencement exercises here on Monday morning, June 4.

Duke's 1962 class includes students from 40 states, the District of Columbia and 15 foreign countries. They will receive a total of 21 different degrees, ranging from the B.A. to the Ph.D.

Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the University of Pennsylvania, will deliver the commencement address at the 10:30 a.m. exercises in Duke's Indoor Stadium. His topic will be "How Best to Foster American Higher Educational Opportunity in the Years Ahead."

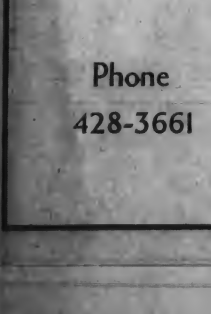

The baccalaureate sermon, which will be preached at 11:00 A.M., on Sunday, June 3, in Duke Chapel, will be given by Bishop Aubrey G. Walton of New Orleans, La., the first graduate of the Duke Divinity School to become a bishop in The Methodist Church. Bishop Walton will use as his subject, "The Gospel for This Hour."

Commencement activities at Duke got under way Friday with the annual Alumni Golf Tournament. Among major events on Saturday were meetings of the University Board of Trustees, General Alumni Assn. and the University National Council, plus the Alumni Lecture series which this year saw five prominent Duke faculty members discussing "The Year of the Astronaut."

Class reunions, musical programs, and commissioning ceremonies for cadets in the Naval and Air Force ROTC units also are part of the crowded weekend agenda at Duke.

Those from the Va. Beach area who are candidates for degrees are:

Ernest Trezevant Buchanan III, A.B. degree, son of Mr. E. T. Buchanan, 111-62nd St.; Patricia Metcalf Drewry, B.S. in Nursing degree, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Drewry, 214-66th St.; James Parker Jones, A.B. degree, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Club Votes To Change Name

VIRGINIA BEACH—Members of the Junior Woman's Club of Princess Anne County voted unanimously Tuesday night to change the name of the organization to the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club.

The group held its last meeting until fall at Virginia Beach High School with the newly installed president, Mrs. Sam Mason, in charge.

They also voted to continue devoting two and a half hours a month per member to the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Public Library from September through May.

In lieu of this service, members may work a half day twice a month at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach or make a mental health scrapbook every other month.

The club will hold an "Old Grad's Night" July 6 for past and present members. They will go as a group to see "Brigadoon" at Sandpiper Playhouse and attend a party afterward at the Sir Walter Hotel's Raleigh Tavern.

Jaycees Thank Teacher

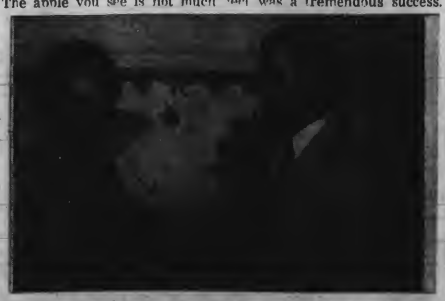

VIRGINIA BEACH—Summer is the beginning of the tourist season, and yet it marks the end of school. The Virginia Beach Jaycees each year at this time embarks upon a program to thank our teachers for a job well done.

Wiley Harrell, chairman of the teacher appreciation project, announced today that each teacher was presented with a "Big Red Apple" on the last day of school. To the apple was attached the following poem of appreciation.

The End is near but not for long,
For three short months you will rest and roam.
The apple you see is not much we know,
But it is our way of thanking you for giving our Children that old Go, Go, Go.
At times it was trying we are sure,
But think of the enjoyment derived from the chore.
Thank you again for a job well done,
And may we see you again after three months of fun.

A JAYCEE

The apples were distributed to the teachers who so faithfully served us during the past year at W. T. Cooke Elementary and at Virginia Beach High School. In all 62 apples were distributed and from all indications the project was a tremendous success.

Wiley Harrell, Jaycee chairman of the teacher appreciation committee, present to Mrs. Dona Bornemann, fifth grade teacher at W. T. Cooke Elementary, a Red Apple and his thanks for a job well done.

VF-74 Gets New CO from Test Center

OCEANA — Commander Paul E. Spencer, who has served as Executive Officer of the Atlantic Fleet's first operational F4H-equipped squadron since April 1961, assumed command of VF-74 last Tuesday.

Cdr. Spencer relieved Cdr. Julian S. Lake at a formal ceremony at the Oceana Naval Air Station.

Before reporting to VF-74, Cdr. Spencer was assigned as Carrier Suitability project officer at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md. During a three and a half year tour he was instrumental in the conduct of carrier landing trials of the Phantom II, in which he has made more arrested carrier landings than any other aviator.

Cdr. Spencer entered the Navy in 1943 and was commissioned an Ensign in January, 1945. He served his first tour of duty with Fighter Squadron 17. Subsequent assignments have included duty as a flight instructor at Pensacola, assistant Combat Information Center officer on the carrier Yorktown, and a tour with Fighter Squadron 123.

Commander and Mrs. Spencer and son Randy reside at 198 Lakeshore Drive, Va. Beach.

Relinquishing command of VF-74 after more than a year at the helm, Cdr. Lake has been credited in large part for the rapid progress made in the introduction of the Phantom II into fleet operation. A veteran all-weather fighter pilot who has flying experience in more than thirty types of Naval aircraft to his credit, Cdr. Lake began his Naval career in 1942, the same year the original Be-Deviler squadron was formed. He received his wings and commission in 1944, and saw action in the Pacific theatre of operations with Fighter Squadron 91.

During the Korean conflict, Cdr. Lake became a team leader for a detachment of aircraft from Composite Squadron Three aboard USS Essex. After a two-year exchange tour with the Air Force, he became executive officer of Fighter Squadron 101, at that time a fleet squadron flying the F4D Skyray. Tours at ComNavLant Headquarters, the Naval War College at Newport, R.I. and Fighter Squadron 101-A preceded his present command, which he assumed on March 28, 1961. Cdr. Lake's orders direct him to temporary duty with the Commander, Carrier Air Group Four before taking command of Carrier Air Group Eight later this year.

The Lakes and daughters Julia, Diane and Clara and son Skipper live at 12 Windsor Lane, London Bridge, Virginia.

The Be-Devilers have been an operational F4H squadron of Carrier Air Group Eight since September, 1961. Based aboard the supercarrier Forrestal, the squadron has participated in ship's refresher training at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and in Exercise LANTPHIBEX 1-62 at Vieques Island, Puerto Rico, since January.

Following a personnel inspection, the reading of the orders and remarks of the respective officers, an informal reception was held for officers and their ladies at the Oceana Officers' Club.

Cape Colony in Full Schedule

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Cape Colony Club, badly damaged by the March 7 storm, is now in full operation, according to Promotional Director C. Aubrey Taylor.

The pool is again under the supervision of Bill Nichols and John Derieux and his Trio provide dinner and dance music in the dining room nightly except Mondays.

Life guards have manned the beach stands and 29 large new cabanas are available to members.

Buffet Sundays

Starting this Sunday and continuing every second and fourth Sunday of the month, a buffet dinner will be served from 6:30 to 9 p.m. with special rates for youngsters under 12 years of age. Reservations will be accepted until noon on buffet nights.

Lunch is served daily from noon to 2:30 p.m. in the cabanas, ocean terrace, pool side and dining room. Dinner is served nightly from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Saturdays until 10 p.m.

Every Thursday, beginning June 28, weekly steak and seafood cookouts as well as barbecues and buffet style dinners will be offered on the ocean side pool terrace from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The cook outs are by reservation only, Club Manager Chris Brown said, and will be accepted until noon on Thursday.

Chesapeake Beach Art Exhibit

By RITA VELLINES

BAYSIDE—What started out as just a suggestion, from one of the members of the Chesapeake Beach Art Class—"why don't we have an exhibit and show the work we have done this year?" Snowballed into an Art Exhibit showing the work of three art classes—namely, Ocean Park Art Class, Kempsville Art Class and Chesapeake Beach Art Class.

All of these classes are sponsored by the various Woman's Clubs in the three areas.

The Art Exhibit will be held Saturday, June 9, from 9 A.M. until 5:00 P.M. and Sunday afternoon from 1:00 P.M. until 5:00 P.M. on the grounds of Baylake Methodist Church, located on Shore Drive at Baylake Pines.

One of the unique features of the show will be that the public will pick the number one picture for which there will be a prize. Everyone who comes to the show will be given a slip of paper to vote for the picture that in their opinion is best.

These art classes have been working for several years under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth D'Auria, well known artist and art teacher.

The co-ordinators for the show are Mrs. Mona Ulan, Ocean Park Woman's Club; Mrs. Virginia Whitfield, Kempsville Woman's Club and Mrs. Rita Vellines, Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club.

Assisting them will be Mrs. Frances Stokes, registration; Mrs. Gertrude Watkins, signs; Mrs. Al Young, refreshments; Mrs. Mary Wheelhouse, ballot box; Mrs. Elizabeth D'Auria and Mrs. Rita Vellines, hanging committee. The official photographer Mrs. Thelma Winder.

Also assisting will be: Mrs. Sue Quackenbush, Mrs. Cecil Skinner, Mrs. Virginia Elswick, Mrs. Dorothy Buck, Mrs. Arleecy Duell, Mrs. Mary Ambrose, and Mrs. Virginia Keefer.

All work shown will be original, no copies. Watercolors, pastels, and drawings will be mated and oils framed.

4-H Activities and Events

Assistant County Agent

A SECOND THOUGHT

Junk Man: "Any vinegar bottles today, lady?"

4-H'ers OBSERVE NATIONAL 4-H CLUB SUNDAY

A tall, white cross, with its base covered with flowers, standing high on a hill above the outdoor vespers gardens, at 4-H Club Camp Farrar, was the setting for a very inspiring service presented by 4-H Club members in Norfolk & Princess Anne County Members, in observance of National 4-H Club Sunday.

Keister Evans

Each year, in the late spring months, one Sunday is set aside in which 4-H Club members all over the world observe National 4-H Club Sunday. This is the time at which 4-H Club members have the opportunity to expand on the third "H", in the emblem which stands for Heart. Throughout the land, many different kinds of programs are presented and participated in by thousands of 4-H'ers. Some have their own services, some have parts on the program in their own church, some appear on radio and TV, but whatever the choice may be, all the Club members have the same thought in mind.

This year the 4-H Club members from Norfolk and Princess Anne counties decided to join together in their observance of National 4-H Club Sunday, and a very enjoyable and inspiring service was presented at Camp Farrar at Virginia Beach.

Approximately 80 guests were on hand to participate in the Program that was presented by the following people:

Call to Worship was given by Sharon Fenton, of Princess Anne County. A talk expanding on Heart "H" in 4-H was given by Virginia Kelly, of Princess Anne. A reading entitled "The Happy Heart", was presented by William Charles Sawyer, III, of Norfolk. A prayer was given by George Lee, of Princess Anne, and ushers for the service from each County included John Osmundson, and Jackie White, of Princess Anne, and Calvin Schieman, and Danny Parker, of Norfolk. These were the Club members who had individual parts on the Program, but all of the 4-H'ers present were there to display their interest in the Heart "H" of 4-H, and all participated in the Program.

LEADERS RECOGNIZED AT BANQUET

The Annual Leader Recognition Banquet, sponsored by the Agricultural Committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, was held on Thursday, May 24, at the Pine Tree Inn. It is at this event that 4-H Club leaders from Norfolk and Princess Anne Counties are recognized for the outstanding services they have rendered the 4-H Club program.

Mr. Jerry Dorman, representative of the Agriculture Committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce was the toastmaster for the Banquet. Reverend Eugene Arrington, of the Oak Grove Baptist Church, gave the Invocation and Benediction. The group was welcomed by Mr James L. Carter, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce. Awards were presented to leaders from both counties by Dr. S. F. Thornton, and Mr. Edward Ames, both members of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce. A statement of Recognition of Leaders from both counties was given by Mr. D. T. Rogers. Jr., Southeastern District Extension Agent. Calvin Schieman, president of the Norfolk County 4-H County Council, presented a statement of appreciation from the 4-H Club level to the leaders for their services throughout the year. The guest speaker for the event was Mr. J. M. Tyree, State 4-H Club Agent, from VPI.

Congratulations to our local 4-H Club leaders for such an outstanding job rendered the 4-H Club Program, and I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the Agricultural Committee of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and their effort of appreciation to the leaders by sponsoring this banquet.

AGRICULTURE IN THE PEACE CORPS

Farmers with knowledge gained through experience, farm equipment mechanics, farm managers, specialists in such fields as agricultural extension, animal husbandry, tropical agriculture, agronomy, agricultural engineering, veterinary medicine are all being requested to join the Peace Corps.

A college degree is not required for many assignments. One boy, from Colorado, for example, completed one year of college. Today he is in Colombia, helping to build farm roads, upgrade livestock and improve cultivation.

Peace Corps Volunteers live and work with the people, speak their language, and help them to help themselves. But the Volunteers are learning as well as teaching. They will come back to the United States with a unique and meaningful experience; they will know their fields; they will know a foreign country; they will know a foreign language; they will know the world. And they will be better citizens.

General qualifications for agricultural Volunteers include a skill needed by the host country, a minimum age of 18, sound health, emotional stability, maturity, willingness to work with other people . . . initiative . . . and a desire to serve.

Experience is a prime requisite for farm Volunteers. Many of the specialists must have college degrees, but hundreds of requests have been made for general farmers . . . for people who "grew up with the land."

Intensive training is provided Volunteers both in the U.S. and in the host countries. Some assignments require foreign language ability. But in most instances, you need not know a foreign language before applying service. Language instruction is included in the training, along with studies in the history and culture of the country to which you are assigned.

Length of service is two years, including training. Volunteers receive allowances to cover food, clothing, housing, medical care and incidentals . . . plus a termination payment of $1800 based on $75 for each month of service.

Military service obligations are not met through Peace Corps service. But Volunteers can be deferred for the period of their overseas service, and on returning home, could qualify for further deferment at the discretion of their local Selective Service Boards.

How Do You Apply?

By filling out a Peace Corps Volunteer Questionnaire, available from your Post Office, Congressman or Senator, Peace Corps Liaison Officers at colleges and universities, our office, Vocational Agriculture teachers, Farmers Home County Supervisors, local farm organizations, or from the Peace Corps, Washington 25, D.C.

When Should You Apply?

Now! The need is urgent . . . the opportunities immediate. There are many projects to meet the increasing requests for Agricultural Volunteers in the Peace Corps.

Some special skills needed are: Agricultural Engineers, Home Demonstration- workers, Agronomists. Animal Husbandmen, Land Classification Specialists, Plant Pathologists, Poultry Husbandmen, Soil Chemists, Soil Physicists, Dairy Husbandmen, Rural Carpenters, Entomologists, Foresters, and Horticulture teachers.

2 quarts milk
Grated orange rind

Mix instant soft drink mix and sugar. Add milk and beat mixture with egg beater until sugar and mix are dissolved and mixture is foamy—about one minute. Serve immediately, topping each serving with the grated orange rind. Makes 2 quarts or 8 servings, 8 oz. each.

To make four servings: Use 2 teaspoons instant orange soft drink mix, ½ cup sugar and 1 quart cold milk.

It's Dairy Month Again—Here are some new and easy recipes for informal living—some summertime ideas.

Orange-Crowned Cheese Salad should make you happy as kings, for it is chock-full of such wonderful things! Frosty white cottage cheese plump, red strawberries; gay orange sections and avocado, to name a few.

And Orange-Crowned Cheese Salad makes a most appropriate salad to commemorate June Is Dairy Month. For the golden crown pays homage rightfully due to creamy cottage cheese.

This delicious dairy product has long starred for its fine flavor, easy digestibility and low calorie content. The solid part of cottage cheese is chiefly high quality protein, and one of the least expensive sources of this important nutrient.

You can easily obtain the "crown" effect by arranging the orange slices as shown, then carefully pouring into the mold the gelatin mixture that has partially set. Another important hint: pour the avocado layer over the cottage cheese layer before the latter is completely set. This way the layers will be less apt to separate when the salad is unmolded.

ORANGE - CROWNED CHEESE SALAD
Mold, 1½-quart

1 pkg. lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 6-oz. can frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
3 tablespoons cold water
16 large orange sections
1 12-oz. carton cottage cheese, sieved
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
½ teaspoon salt
1 pint fresh strawberries
1 ripe avocado

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Blend in orange juice and cold water. Divide into two bowls and allow to partially set. Arrange orange sections in bottom of lightly oiled mold. To one bowl of partially set gelatin add cottage cheese, orange rind and salt. Pour over oranges in the mold. Chill until set sufficiently to add second layer. On top of cottage cheese layer arrange halved strawberries around the edge with the outer side of the berry against the mold. Mash avocado and beat in other portion of partially set gelatin until smooth. Pour over cottage cheese layer inside the strawberry border. Refrigerate. Unmold on serving plate and garnish with remaining strawberries.

So delicious with their sealed in goodness, tender spears of canned asparagus are heated in a casserole with a yummy topping of thick sour cream, buttered bread crumbs, and Parmesan cheese. Enough for six servings, you'll want to make this dish a year-around treat. Canned asparagus is a handy shelf food.

ASPARAGUS WITH CHEESE 'N' CRUMB SAUCE

BROWNIES TOPPED WITH SOUR CREAM
With Milk—A Tasty Summer Time Snack

A brownie is a brownie is a brownie? 'Tant necessarily so. There are plain brownies, frosted brownies, brownie-crusted ice cream pies and now—brownies topped with sour cream!

We think you'll pronounce them "Best of all."

Made from a brownie mix and baked in a pie pan, the sour cream is spooned over the brownies, garnished with shaved semi-sweet chocolate, and then popped back in the oven, just long enough for the cream to set.

Cool and then cut into pie-shaped pieces. Ummmm, good! You'll love the flavor and texture contrasts between the rich, chewy brownies and tangy sour cream.

BROWNIE SOUR CREAM DELIGHT
Preheated 350° oven

Buttered pie plate, 10-inch

1 cup sour cream
Chocolate syrup or Shaved semi-sweet chocolate

Prepare brownie mixture according to package directions. Spread batter in pie plate. Bake recommended time. Remove from oven. Spread sour cream over baked brownie. Dribble a stream of chocolate syrup lightly over cream or garnish with shaved semi-sweet chocolate. Return to oven for 5 minutes. Cool. Cut into pie-shaped pieces. Best when served the same day as prepared.

To the class of '62, we say good bye.

Our ties, now so strong, will stretch — then break.

The world beckons to you, and you alone.

We can not come.

The seas rage and ask if you will meet their challenge.

The ship is yours, you will set her course.

Though only knowledge and experience serve you as a crew,

They will labor diligently under a good captain.

A long, happy, successful voyage.

Sunday's Sermon

WHERE CAN I FIND THE ANSWER?

By the Rev. J. Elmer Medley
PRINCE OF PEACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

We are living in an age where knowledge is important, Intellectual honesty, conviction on the basis of the facts; these are terms which we hear or read almost every day. People who respect the past, simply because it is the past, are looked upon as being "old fashioned": "Because it has always been accepted as true," is no longer a critererion for accepting a thesis today.

It is inevitable that such a time would come. It is, in fact, necessary that such a time should have come. If Christopher Columbus would not have needed proof that the world was flat, the discovery, exploration, and development of the new world might have been delayed for years. If men like our astronauts, and the space team at NASA would have been satisfied with the "old answers", we might never have placed Cmdr. Shepard or Col. Glenn in their space capsules. The "old answers" aren't necessarily always right.

There are times, however, when it seems that we might have a little more respect for the "old answers." I am thinking particularly of our faith, of the things of God. For many years—years before Glenn or Columbus—men have been moved to place their trust in God. For many years, men have been drawn to the cross of Jesus Christ, and there they have been able to find peace—peace with themselves, but more important, peace with God. The cross of Christ stands at the crossroads of time and eternity. It stands as God's mark in history, revealing the way to heaven.

Why is it that men come to the cross? How do they get there? Why are you interested? Men come to the cross because God, the Holy Ghost leads them there. God reveals that on the cross, His Son died as the substitute for all men. Christ died to pay for sin's guilt. God says that the cross is the only assurance, the only way to get to heaven. And men come to the cross only through the Word of God. Things that we consider truth may change; long accepted standards may be disproved; but the cross remains; God's Word remains an eternal verity, to be believed, trusted, and especially known. God says, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my Word shall not pass away."

In His love and mercy, God has given that Word to you. To be sure, Scripture is "the old answers," believed in the year one. But Scripture is also the "new answer." It is as fresh and recent, it is just as applicable, in 1962. Scripture is God's Word to you. Scripture is God's revelation of love in His Son Jesus Christ. Scripture is your guide to life now, and to heaven when this temporal life passes.

What is th eanswer? Is it old or new? There is only one way to find out. Try it! Read your Bible. And as you read, ask God to give the Holy Spirit, that you might be led by Him to know Truth.

First Day Issue Stamps Available At Realty Office

PRINCESS ANNE PLAZA — Lawrence A. Sancilio, President of Larasan Realty Corporation at Princess Anne Plaza, announced today that his office will give out First Day Issue Stamps and envelopes commemorating the 100th anniversary of The Homestead Act of 1862.

The National Homestead Act stamp pictures the first pioneer home built in 1867 on the grounds of the Homestead National Monument near Beatrice, Nebraska. The monument is on the site of the claim of one of the first applicants to file under this act. This was the first act under which individuals were assisted by the government in obtaining homes of their own. The first day issue stamps come from Beatrice, Nebraska, Post Office.

"I am delighted to make these available free to anyone interested," Sancilio stated.

Mr. George J. Batten, Residential Sales Manager of the Re-Sales Department, has the stamps at Larasan's office, 9508 Virginia Beach Blvd., Princess Anne Plaza.

FREE WILL BAPTIST YOUTH REVIVAL

PRINCESS ANNE—The Princess Anne Free Will Baptist Church will hold a Youth Revival Sunday through June 17 nightly at 8 p.m.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Psalms	8	1-9
Monday	Psalms	1	1-6
Tuesday	John	15	1-8
Wednesday	John	15	25-17
Thursday	Luke	8	4-15
Friday	Romans	12	9-19
Saturday	John	4	19-24

Lonely, gnarled, and neglected, but a thing of beauty, isn't it?

We know that trees are functional, that is, they hold the soil, the good earth, the rain. But more than that, each tree, in loneliness or forest, sings out the praises of its Creator, God.

Much more so, does man reflect the glory and image of God. He too then, must sing out the praise and honor to God, his Creator. There is a place for that worship and honor; it is your church. Whether lonely, solitary, or in crowds, He awaits you . . . to hear and to answer.

Judging Conference Here

The Virginia All Breeds Dairy Judging Conference will be held at Bayville Farms, on Tuesday, July 17.

This Conference, sponsored jointly by the Dairy Science Department, VPI, Virginia Dairymen's Association, and the Virginia Artificial Breeding Association, is held annually at different locations throughout Virginia. Professional Agricultural workers, dairy judges, and commercial dairymen attend by special invitation from VPI.

In charge of the showing of cattle at Bayville Farms will be Al MacKay, Herd Supt., and assisting him will be six 4-H Club members who will show the cattle.

SWEET POTATO VARIETAL TESTS

If you have a good memory, you may remember last winter when we were discussing the sweet potato variety trials, that Melvin Williams was going to conduct on his farm this year for the Extension Service. Last week I stopped by Melvin's to look at the plant beds of the 5 varieties and to determine when they could be sent out.

The leading sprout producer, in both number of sprouts and size of sprouts is the Porto Rica 109 Strained. This is followed by V2158, which has produced probably just as many sprouts but are not quite as developed as the 109. The copper skinned Gold Rush and Centennial are next in sprout production, being just somewhat later than Porto Rica. Last in both numbers and in size is Nugget.

Melvin tells me that he is going to set the sprouts out this week, trying to get about 10 rows of each of the 5 varieties so that his fellow sweet potato producers may be able to observe them during the growing season, and also at Harvest time to be able to determine the best varieties for growing in the future.

DAIRY CATTLE SALE

Bill Oliver dropped in the office the other afternoon and said he was going to sell his dairy herd on June 9. This is another dairy farm gone of the many we used to have in Princess Anne.

ALANAP ON SOYBEANS

Early one morning this week I stopped by Kenneth Whitehursts' farm in Back Bay, and was talking with him about the effectiveness of Alanap on Soybeans for weed control. Kenneth had sprayed most of his crop with Alanap, but did not get the control which he thought was desirable. However, Alanap is sort of a funny individual in its action; it does not work effectively until there is sufficient moisture in the soil. Now, once we have that moisture Alanap begins to work even on weeds that have grown to some size. This is one of the strange characteristics of some of our materials that we use for weed control. There must be ample moisture in the soil for it to be effective, and once that moisture gets there the weed control material will go to work, even though it has been in the soil for several weeks. After the nice rains we have had, I am sure that the weeds are going by the wayside.

You might say that in this case the rain kills the weeds.

MINIMUM CORN TILLAGE

We've been talking about Minimum Corn Tillage for some time now. In April, three demonstrations on Minimum Tillage were planted: One on 5-mile stretch, on City Farm, operated by Dawley Bros., on Jumbo type soil. A second demonstration was planted on Ralph Frost's Land of Promise Farm, and the third near Pungo, on the farm of W. L. White & Son. You will see a sign along the highway, as you pass the farm, and I would like for you to stop and study closely the corn being produced under this method and compare it with the conventional tillage.

Minimum tillage means exactly what it says. The ground was plowed, the corn planted and sprayed with Atrazine, and that's it. Now we will put Nitrogen on as a sidedressing, and then we will harvest it.

Around the middle of June we are going to have A Field Day on each of these sites, and we will further explain to you all of the details involved in Minimum Corn Tillage, and you may have another chance to study carefully the benefits, advantages, and disadvantages of this method.

WEEVILS CONTROLLED IN FALL TREATED FIELDS

Alfalfa fields which received the recommended dose of Heptachlor last fall apparently are virtually free of the troublesome alfalfa weevil.

But, fields not treated last fall are having some trouble. Many farmers using the Melathion and Metha-oxachlor sprays are apparently getting pretty good control.

May I again warn you NOT to use heptachlor in any form on alfalfa this spring.

Three Councilmen Elected Here with Very Small Vote

VIRGINIA BEACH — Three city councilmen were elected here Tuesday in very light balloting that saw only 328 votes cast. The three men were unopposed.

Elected were Incumbent Councilmen Edward T. Caton III, W. Hugh Kitchin and newcomer L. Stanley Hodges. The trio of candidates were backed by the present city administration.

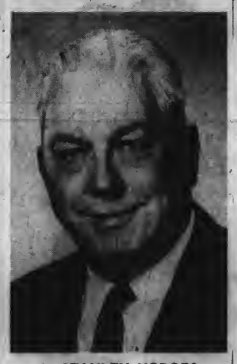

Elected

W. HUGH KITCHIN, JR.

EDWARD T. CATON III

L. STANLEY HODGES

Although the vote was expected to be light since the men were unopposed, it was believed that rain kept some voters from the polls. It began raining around 4:30 p.m. and continued through 7 p.m. when the polls closed. Many voters have cast ballots during these hours after coming from work.

The three councilmen will take office September 1. Because of the forthcoming merger with Princess Anne County next Jan. 1 the three councilmen will serve five-year terms. After Jan. 1, 1963, their terms on the joint council will run until Sept. 1, 1967.

For New City

When council seats now held by Dusch and McCombs come up in June 1964, the people elected will be in office for 3-year terms. This means all the terms will expire at the same time in 1967.

Hodges, an oil company executive and vice-chairman of the Rudee Inlet Authority, will be serving his first council term.

P.A. Bank Gets Permit for PA Plaza Facility

ARAGONA VILLAGE — The Bank of Princess Anne has been granted permission by the State Corporation Commission to establish a branch facility in the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center, according to W. Albert Hess, president.

Hess made the announcement Tuesday at a meeting of the bank's board of directors. The Plaza branch would be the second for the Bank of Princess Anne. A branch at Bayside is now under construction.

In addition to the permit for the Plaza branch, the board of directors declared a dividend of 15 cents per share. A previous dividend, the bank's first, was ten cents per share.

Hess announced that E. V. Hutchings has been elected a vice-president of the bank effective immediately.

The dividend payment will be made around July 1.

Brigadoon Opening Sandpiper Offering

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Sandpiper Theatre's blue and gold tent has been taken out of mothballs and now stands on its 19th street location, a hubbub of frenzied activity as actors, directors and technicians prepare for the June 29 opening.

"Brigadoon" will launch the 1962 season and the premiere performance will be by invitation only. A reception will be held at the Bay Harbour Club immediately following the play.

Marilyn Ende will direct the musical that won the distinction of being the first musical to ever win the New York Critic's Award. Earl Davis will be the musical director.

"It's Almost Like Being In Love" was perhaps the most popular number from "Brigadoon", a fantasy-comedy, but "Heather on the Hill" and "Come To Me, Bend To Me" gained equal fame at the time the play was appearing on Broadway.

Cast Named

Miss Jane Stinson Garrison and Charles (Chuck) Williams, both of Norfolk have the two lead singing roles. Others in the cast are John Shores, Kyle Robinson, Lynn Church, Eddie Cohen, Welton Smith, Cary Jones, Bernie Ham, Dave Lang, John Chester, Angie Alexander, Effie Allen, Ann Powell, Ann Jones, Shirley Fentress, Carol Berry, Shu Shook, Karen Culbreth, and Mike Doody.

Alternating with the musical for the first 5-week series will be "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," with Jon Dawson as director, and the classic "You Can't Take It With You" with Dean Burgess in the director's seat.

The three plays will alternate so that each will appear on a different night throughout the five weeks. All shows are presented in-the-round and the theatre is open seven nights a week.

Season tickets are now on sale at Alexander-Beegle Men's Store, Virginia Beach.

County Areas Seek Land for Play Activity

PRINCESS ANNE — Five hundred residents of the Arrowhead and Carolanne Farms area have signed petitions requesting recreational facilities.

The Board of Supervisors were told Monday of the acute need for play areas in the heavily populated areas of the two county subdivisions.

There are, according to O. W. Richardson, 69 children in one block of North Ottawa Street on one side of the street.

Play space is needed for approximately 820 children said Mrs. James W. Wright of Arrowhead and "we need somewhere for the boys to play out of the streets."

The Commonwealth's attorney was instructed by the board to check complaints concerning the sewage disposal plants in Birchwood Gardens and Aragona Village. The "usual summer complaints" about the odors of the Aragona Village instituted Bayside Supervisor Carroll G. Clough's request for an investigation.

Other business discussed were the needs for a school in the Carolanne Farms - Arrowhead area. Planning director F. Mason Gamage met with school Supt. Frank W. Cox and a builder recently and "found the need for a school and perhaps two

ABC Closing Hour Change Being Asked

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach City Council at a recent unannounced meeting adopted a resolution to request the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to extend the closing hour for on-premises beer and wine consumption from midnight to 1 a.m. during DST.

The resolution stated while DST is in effect visitors stay on the beach an hour longer, and therefore seek dinner and entertainment an hour later.

Lewis Smith, city clerk, announced the ABC Board had granted a similar request during the time DST was in effect in Virginia Beach once before. All Virginia is on DST from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

The City Council also resolved to request the federal government to pay $15,000 to help construct a $23,000 wooden bulkhead between 48th and 49th streets on the ocean front.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett announced that the city had earlier asked the state to supply funds for the construction. The state denied the request because it does not have the funds.

The meeting was held unannounced late Wednesday in order to meet the deadline for requests for federal aid, a spokesman said.

Justice Douglas Tells Graduates To Travel, Live in Other Lands

By JOY HAKIM

VIRGINIA BEACH—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, speaking to the graduating class at the Country Day School for Girls, called upon the young people of this country to travel and live in the under-developed nations of the world.

"Only if you go, with your husbands and children, will we be able to meet the Soviet challenge," he said. "If you don't go, we will loose by default."

The soft-voiced jurist spoke before a large audience at the fourth Country Day School Commencement, Friday, at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center.

Describing our foreign policy Douglas said, "We have not been in tune with the emerging nations . . . we have been too interested in getting military bases and propping up existing regimes."

People, Not Money

He made it clear that our billions in Foreign Aid have done little good (by supporting feudal societies we have just "made the rich richer") and that it is only through people and ideas that the battle of communism can be won.

Since World War II we have voted only once for the independence of a nation (on March 15, 1961 for the people of Angola against Portugal), he noted. "Before that we voted against or abstained. We forgot the Declaration of Independence."

"The bulk of the people in the world are colored people," Douglas said, and "these blacks, these browns, these yellows . . . want independence and equality."

His facts and figures were staggering. "The Chinese population is increasing at the rate of 15 million a year." In the lifetime of the graduating class, he said, "there will be as many Chinese as there are people in the world today."

The poverty facing these people and those of the other underdeveloped nations is "beyond understanding."

"The annual appropriation for the Pentagon is greater than the income of all the people of China."

The solution "is not in the redistribution of the wealth of

Mosquito Work Impeded by Youngsters

VIRGINIA BEACH — The mosquito control program conducted by the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Mosquito Control is being hampered in some areas by children running after the vehicle spraying insecticide, according to an official of the mosquito control organization.

According to the report of the commission, spraying in the Bay Colony area had to be suspended last week because of youngsters following too closely behind and in front of the spraying vehicle. The operation was suspended for fear of injury to a child.

"We are in the business of killing mosquitoes, or reducing their numbers," Mosquito Control Supt. R. G. Carter said. "We do not want to run the risk of injuring a child and we urge parents in all areas to advise the youngsters to remain in their homes or yards when our equipment is spraying," Carter added.

The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Mosquito Control Commission operates in most areas of Virginia Beach and the Lynnhaven District of Princess Anne County. The commission operates on a regular schedule of spraying the territory it serves

Local Skippers Score In Broad Bay Event

By BETTY ACKISS

Sunny skies and bright breezes offered perfect sailing weather last week-end for the second annual regatta of the Broad Bay Sailing Association. Such ideal conditions brought out 58 boats, running in seven classes.

Local skippers copped eight trophies in four classes. Capt. J. R. (Rusty) Verbrycke and Mac Newton, both BBSA members, took second and third places in the three races for total points of 24.8. Mac's sister, Sally, crewed for him as they placed 3-2-5 for 23-4 points. First place winner was Rock Meadows of Newport News with 29.5 points.

The BBSA Comet fleet sailed unopposed. Club Commodore Charlie Terry with wife Connie took first place with a 1-1-3 for 9.5. Dr. Bob Robertson with brother Forrest aboard placed second with 2-2-2 for 7.9; and Dr. Jim Charlton with his wife Liz took third with 3-2-1 for 6.9.

Ed Underwood, BBSA, swept the sailboard class with three firsts to total 23.1 points. It's interesting to note that Ed had been sailing his Fun Fish for only a week prior to the regatta. Two Hampton Yacht Club girls took second and third places: Carolyn Bickford with 3-4-2 for 15.4, and Judy Jones with 2-5-3 for 14.4. Both sailed Sailfish.

Don Cochrane, BBSA, with wife Marge and daughter Sandy aboard sailed their Y Flyer to three first places for overall winner in the Knockabout class with 23.1. Bob Hayes, also BBSA, with his son as crew took second place in his O'Day Sailor with 4-2-3 for 16.6. Bob Steele of Norfolk sailed his Moth to third place with a 2-3-2 for 14.5.

Other class winners, showing their places in each race and total points were: Jolly Boats — 1st Dink Vail, NYCC (6-1-1, 15.4); 2nd Claibourne Coupland NYCC (1-3-5, 13.8); 3rd Jack Moseley FBYC (2-4-3, 13.4; Hamptons— 1st R. W. Townley NYCC (1-5-2, 53.0; 2nd Bob Harrell NYCC (3-1-5, 51.8); 3rd Joe Addington Jr. NYCC (2-6-3, 49.4); Mobjacks — 1st Roger Moorman FBYC (1-1-1, 11.1); 2nd Haywood Tatem, Va. Beach (2, 2.3).

Two races were held Saturday with the final race on Sunday. Saturday night the Broad Bay Sailing Association hosted a cocktail party for all regatta participants.

HANDBELL FESTIVAL AT VIRGINIA BEACH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Presbyterian Church will be the scene of much tintinnabulation next Tuesday and Wednesday when The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers will hold its Regional Festival here.

Bell Ringing groups from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and Washington, D.C. will gather to play for each other, learn new methods of ringing and notation, and in general have a ringing good time.

In the last decade handbell ringing for church, school, and college groups has become so popular that the bell foundries in the world can't keep up with the demand. Handbell ringing is particularly poplar with teen-agers.

Wednesday at 8 p.m. there will be a program at the church, open to the public, in which individual groups will ring, climaxed by two numbers in which all groups will participate. Scott Parry of New York City will also demonstrate his handbell carillon on this program and James Lawson, carillonneur of the largest carillon in the world at Riverside Church in New York City, will assist on this program.

John Halvorsen, minister of music at Epworth Methodist Church in Norfolk, is chairman of this handbell festival. For further information call him at MA 2-8162 or MA 7-2003.

'Pappy' Flowers New Advisor at Freedom '7'

CREEDS — Pappy Flowers, well known in drag racing circles for his years of service at the Maple, N.C. drag strip, has been named Chief Technical Advisor at the new Freedom "7" Dragway.

"Pappy" has been driving in drag races since 1955 and now has a 406 Ford Super Super Stock which he expects to run at Freedom "7" at a later date.

Flowers is a resident of Norfolk and is employed at the Naval Air Reserve at NAS, Norfolk.

"Pappy's" first day of racing at Freedom "7" saw a large field of contestants with Roy Darden's "Gold Rush" Pontiac taking top money in the Super Super Stock class.

Beach Youth Golf Leader

ORLANDO, Fla. — Zach Clement, a talented 13-year-old golfer from Virginia Beach, moved into the first round lead of the National Peewee Tournament here Tuesday with an even par 72.

The Linkhorn Park school seventh grader took a one-stroke lead over defending champion, 16-year-old Johnny LaPonzina of Miami Shores, Fla., and John Bender of Chicago, both with 73s Tuesday.

The final round of the 36-hole tournament will be played today.

It was truly a fine round for the 13-year-old Zach. He hit 16 of 18 greens on the Orlando course in regulation strokes and matched par 36 on both nines.

Zach's only bogeys came as he missed his only two greens of the round, the par four ninth and the par four 14th. He sank putts for birdies on the par three seventh and 12th holes.

Zach leads a field that includes the finest junior golfers from throughout the nation — from three through 16.

Another Va. Beach youngster, Charlie McDowell, won this same tournament two years ago. He went on to even greater heights last year, capturing the USGA Junior championship.

Par 3 Course To Hold Meet Next Monday

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Birdneck Country Club has announced that the first golf tournament of the summer season will be held next Monday when a junior 36-hole meet will be held.

According to Al Mailhes, Jr., club manager, Monday's medal play event will be open to any junior player 18 years of age or under.

The 36 hole tourney means that competing players will travel over popular six-hole par three layout six times during the rounds. Each hole has three sets of tees so that in each six-hole round the distances vary.

An entry fee of one dollar will be charged for the Monday event. Entries are being recieved by Larry Mailhes, assistant club manager, at the clubhouse which is located on Birdneck Road opposite the entrance to Frontier City.

The Bidrneck Club is open each day from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. It is open to the public.

JUNIOR GOLF LEAGUE GETTING UNDERWAY

The second annual Tidewater Junior Golf League will get underway Monday at Highland Links County Club. Persons years of age or under are eligible. About 75 entries are already to tee off and registrations are still open, D. A. Barnes, golf pro said.

Each Monday for seven weeks the play will be on the following courses: Elizabeth Manor, Bid-A-Wee, Kempsville Meadows Eagle Haven, Sewells Point (on a Tues.) finishing at Areo Pines.

Elizabeth Manor won the trophy last year. The tournament was started by several pros last year to create golfing interest in the junior group.

Anzacs, Peppers Tied In Little League Play

By JOHN ELDER

Some evening when you want to see some good baseball, take a ride out the boulevard to Carey Field, just across from Chesopiean Colony. Here you will find an organization that might rival the Brooklyn Dodgers in the days of Maharajah Branch Rickey. Carey Field is home for six major league teams, eight minor league teams, and 10 farm clubs. Games are played each evening at 5:15 and 7:30. The minors play the first game, with the majors going at it in the nightcap.

As things stand right now, the season is at the half way point. The loop got under way as of May 5, under the able leadership of George Balbaugh, who is in his third year as president. Teams and coaches are: Anzacs, Joe Bratten; Bears, Jeep Alley; Dukes, Bill Striffler; Orioles, Bookie Allen; Peppers, Bob Lewis; Rebels, Arnold Davis.

Built on "All Play" Theory

President Balbaugh, reports that this is the largest Little League in the area, with in excess of 500 boys registered. The geographical bounds of the league are phenominal — from Thalia to Oceana. With the prospectus of this area, you can see that managers and coaches will soon be needed to form some new teams, and if at all possible, at least one new league. President Balbaugh said that there was talk of opening the new league this year, "But we just couldn't get any supervisory help!"

The league is built on the "all play" theory. "If any boy signs up for the league, he plays. It was for this reason," continued the president, "that we were forced to set up not only eight minor league teams, but as many as 10 farm clubs." This means that on a given night, almost all the boys in the league are involved in a game somewhere. Beside Carey Field, the league utilizes Foundry Methodist Church Field, King's Grant Field, and Trant Field. The latter two are near the King's Grant School.

Rebels Down Dukes

In action over the week-end, the Rebels and the Dukes battled it out for eight innings, before the Rebels could pick up a run. It was a tight ball game all the way, neither team ready to give an inch. Finally, in the bottom of the eighth, the Rebels put a man on second base, and Bill Sawyer lifted one to right field for a clean single. That was enough to score the runner and end the game. For the winning Rebels, Sammy Blalock opened on the mound, with Thompson coming on in the sixth. (Little League rules permit a man to pitch only six innings.) For the Dukes, Paul Striffler was the starter, relieved in the sixth by Gay Rehbach, who took the loss.

In the standings, at the close of the second round, there is a tie for first place between the Anzacs and the Peppers. The records:

	W	L
Anzacs	8	2
Peppers	8	2
Bears	6	4
Orioles	5	5
Rebels	3	7
Dukes	0	10

As the squadmen and guests filed out of the Black Angus Restaurant on their way to a party at the Bay Harbour Club, an automobile accident occurred on Pacific Avenue immediately in front of the group.

The stand-by duty team of four men rushed one of the victims with a back injury to the hospital.

All Work, No Play

This was one of four calls the duty team received during the course of the banquet, emphasizing A. B. Midgett's statistic report that the squad last year made 1,275 calls with a total of 12,856 manhours. Midgett is the outgoing captain.

The banquet was attended by the squadmen and their wives, the medical advisors and wives, charter members of the squad and invited dignitaries.

David N. Stormont III was named "Squadman of the Year" and presented a plaque from Judge Robert S. Wahab.

Mrs. Pearl Mallory, head of the local Red Cross Chapter, presented Red Cross pins to squadmen with 10 years service. Judge Wahab presented the same group with lifetime membership plaques. They were Midgett, O. O. Wade, Stormont, C. N Edwards, C. E. McChesney, R. R McChesney and Hugh Kitchin.

Foot Delivery Of Mail Could Aid Safety

VIRGINIA BEACH—Postmaster Joseph T. Crosswhite, Jr., has called attention to a recent article that appeared in the Postal Bulletin, official organ of the Post Office Department.

The article reminds local postmasters to instruct rural, mounted route, or parcel post carriers to exercise extreme caution in making deliveries where small children are at play.

The Postal Bulletin pointed out that a number of small children have been killed or injured by vehicles driven by postal employees.

Crosswhite pointed out that the local office is attempting to convert mounted routes to foot routes in all residential areas. He stated that this would aid greatly in better service and would, at the same time, eliminate the possibility of injury to a child or a person due to a mail truck or mounted delivery.

State Seeking Game Wardens

VIRGINIA BEACH—Applications for the position of game warden trainee are now available at the Virginia Employment Commission office in Virginia Beach, according to H. H. Bendler, local manager.

The game warden trainee position is one that requires of the trainee the enforcement of the game, fish and boat laws of the State. This involves patrol on foot, in automobiles and in motorboats.

Qualifications require that the applicant be a citizen and resident of the State of Virginia. He must be between the ages of 21 and 35 years old and must be a graduate of an accredited high school.

Starting salary for a game warden trainee is $3,936 per year. After one year a trainee may advance to the status of game warden at a salary of $4,128.

NEW BALLROOM DANCE CLASSES

VIRGINIA BEACH — Teenage and adult ballroom dancing, in either group or private classes, will be offered at a studio recently opened here.

The Lynne-Paige School of Dance opened its second studio in the Tidewater area at 1806 Atlantic Avenue. The other branch is located in Suffolk.

The school, under the direction of Victor and Agnes Sheffield, will specialize in classes for organizational groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheffield are natives of Virginia and have been teaching dancing for over 15 years.

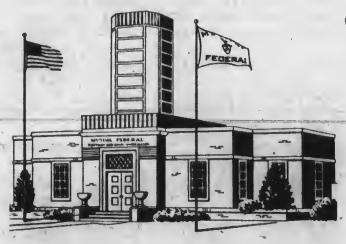

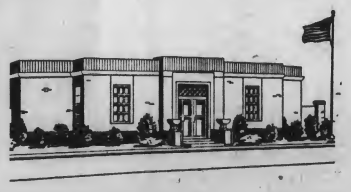

The school's five instructors, all local people, will be available for exhibition dances, Sheffield said.

Music Festival Attendance Should Be Rewarding

The First Annual Music Festival for Virginia Beach will open today in the Virginia Beach High School stadium. A visit there during the three days of the musical event should be a rewarding experience.

Young high school musicians from he south will perform in what they hope will be their very best effort. They will present concerts and marching exhibitions. There will be solo efforts and special events.

The youngsters coming here are from Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, West Virginia and other parts of Virginia. They are all coming with the one thought in mind, to be named the top band in the First Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival.

Area residents are in for a treat this weekend with this musical extra. The event is being sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. Much work on the part of many indivlduals has gone into the staging of the music festival. We believe it will be well received by area residents and we trust that they will support this effort by their attendance and purchase of festival tickets.

The Sun-News particularly wishes the First Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival success and we believe that this success is assured from the interest and enthusiasm displayed by those responsible for this fine undertaking.

The Unseen "Highway"

There's a "highway", which amounts to one of the great transportation systems of world history, which few of us ever see, or so much as know about. It consists of some 800,000 miles of intricately-laid underground petroleum and natural gas pipelines, carrying millions of gallons and cubic feet of low-cost energy fuel each day. The over-all length of these lines is the equivalent of nearly two round trips to the moon.

In fact, oil and gas are transported more swiftly and efficiently than ever before, no matter what agency of movement is used. The largest commercial U. S. ship ever built is an oil tanker of 106,500 tons. She recently completed her maiden voyage, carrying a load of 20,356,000 gallons of heating oil and gasoline from Texas to New York.

There has been comparable progress in land transport. A recent development is a "bulge-in-the-middle" design for rail cars, which permits a shell capacity of 30,000 gallons per car, three times that of a conventional tank car. Yet the car is only a few inches over 58 feet long. And pressurized cars carry big quantities of liquefied petroleum gas.

The whole idea is to get oil and its products to the consumer as quickly, efficiently, and economically as human ingenuity allows.

Learning By Doing

An old axiom says that the best way to learn is to do. And learning by doing is the cornerstone of the Junior Achievement Program.

Junior achievement is a nation-wide program designed to acquaint high school students with business operations and practices. The boys and girls involved gain knowledge of the free enterprise system by organizing and operating their own small-scale businesses. Each Junior Achievement company is guided by a team of advisers representing a sponsoring business firm. But their role is strictly one of guidance. The teen-agers make all their own decisions.

To take a specific example, one Junior Achievement group formed a firm to produce and sell a desk pen in a special holder, on a capital of $150. The product, it is reported, "was selling like hot cakes".

From all one can gather, knowledge of how the American system works and what it does for the masses of people is woefully short among our school population. Junior Achievement offers one way to make up this serious deficiency.

Why An Editor Went Fishing

An Oregon editor recently wrote the editor of a Kansas weekly newspaper asking why he was no longer receiving that paper in exchange.

The reply: "We suspended publication several months ago. Its demise was brought on by labor trouble, the More Abundant Life, the New Thought, the economy of plenty, Marxian liberalism, punitive idealism and the New Frontier handcuffs which I found even more irksome than the Modern Republican straitjacket. I managed to save enough through the years to keep me away from the poor farm so I shut down and went fishing."

That tells a long and tangled story — with admirable brevity and point!

Risk and Responsibility

The advocates of socialized electric power, who seized upon the possibility of economical power generation from nuclear sources as a means of advancing toward their dream of a monolithic government monopoly in this all-impotant field, seem to have fallen upon evil days.

The publicly-regulated, taxpaying, investor-owned utility companies have totally demonstrated their resolve to make the most of the atom as a producer of power—and to back that resolve with their money, their research facilities, and their know-how.

This has been a trial-and-error proposition. A plan might work or it might not work. The atom's mysteries had to be explored, and the chance of failure accepted. That is still true — though the fount of knowledge has enormously increased in a very few years.

A late—and extremely significant—development has been announced by the Atomic Energy Commission. It has approved the construction, in Pennsylvania, of the world's first high temperature, gas cooled nuclear power plant. The cost will be $47.5 million, and it will be underwritten by 53 utility companies, representing every section of the country. If the hopes and expectations are realized, this pioneer plant will greatly reduce the costs, and improve the efficiency, of power generation from nuclear sources. If they aren't—well, then private enterprise will absorb its losses, as it always has and always will when venturing into new worlds of science and technology.

The responsibility and the risks of producing competitive power from nuclear energy have been accepted by private enterprise. And that is precisely where they belong.

Safety Patrol Enjoy "Their" Day

Lt. Bailey and Officers Payne and Lambert dish out hot dogs to Cooke "patrolmen."

School Safety Patrol Feted

VIRGINIA BEACH — After nine months of traffic, weather, and pedestrians, the Safety Patrol of W. T. Cooke School had their day with a cook-out sponsored by the Virginia Beach Police Dept. and the Virginia Beach Lions Club.

The day started when about 40 students attended the movie "State Fair" at the Beach Theater and played a game of softball then the youngsters were treated to all the hot dogs and soft drinks they could eat.

Each year, the Safety Patrol receives this outing as a reward for the excellent job they have performed throughout the year.

Lt. C. R. Bailey, Officer C. H. Payne, and Officer Oral Lambert, representatives of the Police Division, played host to the "junior traffic police corps."

In recognition of a job well done, each member of the Safety Patrol received an award presented by Lt. Bailey, Safety Director of W. T. Cooke School.

Seventh grade members of the patrol received not only awards but also Safety Patrol pins to wear in the future. The Captain and two Lieutenants received special recognition for their leadership by the presentation of a special pin. The officers of the patrol were Reginald Ryals, captain; Larry Van-Nostrand and Debbie Tillett, lieutenants.

Mrs. Tillie White, supervisor of the patrols, was praised for the fine job she has done with this group.

Gail Edge and John Milner, seventh grade students, were presented an award by the Police Department as the most outstanding boy and girl bicycle riders in our city. The selection, made by the policewomen who work the traffic intersections, were judged according to the use of hand signals and the observance of all safety precautions.

Beach Bank

Mrs. Virginia P. Allen, who was recently named an assistant cashier of the bank, will be manager of the Dam Neck facility, Church announced.

The Bank of Virginia Beach earlier this month celebrated the 17th anniversary of its founding. The bank has two offices in Virginia Beach and also operates the facility at the Oceana Naval Air Station.

The bank also elected Mrs. Margaret S. Litchfield an assistant cashier at a board of director's meeting Monday.

SURFSIDE '62

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

Crusading columnist seem to be a thing of the past, and far be it for me to even indicate that I might be one (I'm by nature, a "go-alonger"), but here is a situation I feel must be brought before the public.

The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne County Branch of the YWCA sponsors each year swimming classes for children. This is a relatively new branch. It has no YWCA center, no pool and no full-time instructor. So improvising all these facilities means a whopping job for the volunteer workers.

THEY MUST LEARN!

But teaching children in this area to swim is imperative. We are surrounded by water and the youngsters flock to any body of water like little ducks. Each summer children drown because they don't know how to swim? The more fortunate families have access to pools where younger members may learn on their own, free from undertow and treacherous waves, but the majority must learn as best they can in the ocean.

Virginia Beach's famous beach is something to be proud of and don't think for a minute I'm belittling it. But it definitely is not the place to learn to swim.

The nearest inexpensive public water safety course is at the YMCA in Norfolk. The distance makes the once-a-day classes out of the question for most parents.

This was the situation that spurred the local branch into sponsoring classes. But adequate facilities have been a great hindrance. The classes must be limited and hundreds are turned away.

This year the classes are held at the Cavalier Hotel's indoor pool. The management made the pool available for a week and when you consider that this is one of the hotel's busiest months and the pool and adjacent area is overrun with thrashing children and anxious mothers, this was a big-hearted move and much appreciated by the "Y" workers.

Registration for the course was held last Thursday and the workers ended the day heartsick. So many children had to be turned away. Most of them had already obtained the required physical and permission from a doctor.

"PLEASE, TEACH MY SON!"

One mother pleaded with the workers to register her child. "I had two children. One 10, this one eight. The 10-year-old drowned. Won't you please teach my 8-year-old to swim." The worker, with tears in her eyes, turned the mother away. The classes were filled.

Another mother begged for help. Her husband had drowned a few months ago and she could not teach her child water safety because she could not swim. But the classes were filled. She, too, was turned away.

It's a tragic situation and one that should not be ignored. The longer it takes the YWCA to find larger and more available pool facilities, the more children we lose by drowning.

I don't know the answer. If I were a crusader, I probably would. But I'm a mother and can appreciate the situation. A few years ago I watched two young brothers struggle for their lives in the ocean off 47th street. One had tried to save the other and both were caught by the undertow. Only the quick action of the Cavalier Park-Bay Colony Civic League life-guard saved the boys from certain drowning. I can't forget that mother's frightened face as she watched her sons being pulled to shore.

Several years ago water water safety classes were given in the ocean where children learned, from a Red Cross instructor, how to take care of himself in the rolling surf. But for full-scale swimming instruction, a pool available to the public is necessary. What is the answer?

Councilmen

A native of Richmond, he is president of Allied Petroleum Co. and Jackson Transfer and Storage Co., and a partner in Rowe Distributing Co.

Caton, a lawyer, was elected to council in 1958. A Norfolk native, he served two years with the Coast Guard after graduating from Maury High School and the University of Virginia.

Kitchin was appointed to council to replace John Fitzgerald, who resigned in 1959. Kitchen participates in the operation of the Beach Umbrella Service and also has restaurant interests.

Hodges was elected to the seat formerly held by Frank D. Tarrall Jr., who decided not to run for council because of business interests.

schools," Mason later stated "we were shown a site which was somewhat excessive in price. But it was in keeping with the cost of the development. This land should have been acquired in the raw state, rather than in the developed state."

Recreational facilities of the schools were suggested to be shared with the neighborhoods. Needs of smaller children who can not use school playgrounds were also discussed.

and any interruption in the schedule may result in an increase in mosquitoes.

The Commission is appealing to parents to instruct their children to remain a safe distance from the mosquito spraying equipment when it is in their respective neighborhoods.

Country Day

the world . . . but, the problem is going to be solved, if it is solved, by helping the people (of these nations) create for themselves the kind of society we have."

Douglas deplored the Common Market idea. "We are only building despair for the peoples of the world through our common markets. If we exclude them (the under-developed nations) by a common market we will force them to sell to the Soviet bloc . . . as we have done with Iceland and Finland."

The justice urged the young people to travel, but not to stay in fancy hotels. "You must see and smell the villages in order to realize the depth of this problem."

Praised Peace Corps

The Peace Corps, he said, is symbolic of the thing we need. But every American who goes abroad to help should not be an employee of the State Department. We need Americans of all ranks to be sent by churches, clubs and other organizations, he said.

"The Soviets are way ahead of us in foreign aid," Douglas stated. They can move into a country and provide doctors, nurses, teachers and engineers —all speaking the language and with a knowledge of the culture and history of the country.

In America, he said, "56% of the schools . . . do not teach any foreign language."

The need for help is monumental; Douglas cited Libya as an example. Five years ago, the nation had 5,000 students in all its schools. Today there are a quarter of a million in school in Libya, but it can provide only 15% of the primary and secondary teachers and none of the college teachers. Right now Libya needs at least 2,000 teachers. "How many can we supply?" he asked.

"There is adventure and excitement in Indonesia and India, in Argentina and Peru," the well-traveled justice told his audience. "Therein lies the challenge of this age and generation."

"Once we meet this competition of the communists there will be no problem, because they have nothing to offer — we have freedom, liberty, equality and justice."

Douglas was introduced by U. S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman.

His niece, Mary Alexander Douglas, was the second honor graduate, and Douglas commented that he was "bursting with pride."

The eighteen graduates were resplendant in long white gowns, elbow-length white gloves and blue-ribboned bouquets of Dutch iris.

They were led to the stage by Betty Ann Kellam, President of the Junior Class, and Judy Strickland, President of the Sophomore Class.

The Rev. Henry Morgan gave the invocation and led the chorus in three selections.

Carole Ann Evans, one of the graduates, was presented with a citizenship award by Mrs. August Bamman, National Defense Chairman, Princess Anne Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Julie Whitehurst gave the valedictory address.

A flag and typewriter were presented to the school by Laura Lambe on behalf of the senior class.

Mrs. Charles A. Lovitt, headmistress, awarded diplomas to the following graduates:

Carol Leslie Bayne
Elizabeth Lou Burton
Lynne Holland Church
Suzanne Gary Crommelin
Sandra Gene Deacon
Mary Alerander Douglas
Carole Anne Evans
Lynn Augusta Goodman
Caroline Horton
Judith Ann Huck

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

June 4, 1962

The Editor
The Virginia Beach Sun-News
Virginia Beach, Virginia
Dear Sir:

Someone has sent me a copy of the editorial in the Virginia Beach Sun-News on Thursday, May 24. I refer to the editorial that tells of the efforts of the Small Business Administration to assist the disaster victims of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk-Hampton area.

Usually, as I am sure you know, federal agencies are more criticized than praised. Some of the criticism is justified. However, as one who has worked both in private industry and in Government, I feel confident that most of the cristicism is exaggerated. Even so, whatever praise comes our way is especially appreciated, particularly by the rank and file employees. Thus, I am very pleased that you wrote as you did in your editorial and I am taking the liberty of making it available to those within the Agency who actually did the work in the disaster area.

With kind regards, I am
Sincerely,
John E. Horne
Administrator
Small Business Administration,
Washington 25, D.C.

Duo Appearing Nightly in New Rathskeller

VIRGINIA BEACH — Miss Jeanie Thomas, a Strands Records recording artist, and Bob Sawyer, a veteran of the famous Johnny Long Orchestra, are now appearing nightly at the Rathskeller Lounge.

Miss Thomas, a native of Deep Creek, Virginia, has won 35 different beauty titles, including Virginia's representative in the "Miss Universe" contest. She has appeared on many of the nation's television and radio shows, including the Don McNeill Breakfast Club, and the Red Foley "Jubilee, USA Show." Miss Thomas has sung to 100,000 members of the U.S. Armed Forces throughout the South and has also starred in night clubs from Texas to Canada. Her album, "Jeanie Sings for the Boys" was acclaimed on the floor of the House of Representatives by Congressman Victor L. Anfuso, and was lauded in the Congressional Record.

Bob Sawyer, who has worked with Rudy Vallee, Les Paul and Mary Ford, The McGuire Sisters, and Carmel Quinn, has been said of, by Lionel Hampton, as "truly one of the great musicians in the country today." Bob plays the piano, organ, celestette, and the "vibes." His past engagements include the Picadilly Circus Lounge and the Hotel New Yorker in New York City and 18 months of television with Morty Nevins of the famous "Three Suns".

Tourism Topic Of Speaker for Meeting Here

KARL H. KOEPCKE

VIRGINIA BEACH—Jumping squarely into the forefront of Tidewater's campaign for direct Hampton Roads-to-Europe passenger and freight traffic, the Virginia Beach Motel-Hotel Association has scheduled a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. June 20 which will feature a speaker who is an acknowledged expert on international tourism.

He is Karl H. Koepcke, public relations manager for North America of the Lufthansa German Airlines who for nearly five years has handled that phase of his company's activities through its four publicity and 44 sales offices on this Continent.

Charles W. Gardner of the Martha Washington Hotel, president of the Beach Association, has extended invitations to members of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and the Virginia Travel Council for the affair to be held at The Cavalier.

Oddly enough, Mr. Koepcke's first impressions of the United States came from prisoner of war camps in Mexia, Tex., and Dernott, Ark. A native of Hamburg, he graduated from the German Air Force Academy in 1938 and was commissioned in his country's air force.

Captured by the Allies in 1943, he spent the next three years as a prisoner and was repatriated to Hamburg in 1946 where he began work with the U. S. Foreign Service attached to the American Consulate General in that city.

Mr. Koepcke immigrated to the United States in 1949 and joined Lufthansa in 1955 when that line began operations to the United States. Married to a Hamburg girl, he now lives with his wife and three children in Sayre Woods South, N.J.

Gardner says that the speaker's knowledge of air passenger and freight commerce around the world is unsurpassed in his field and that his speech will be on European trade to the United States and how businessmen in Tidewater can benefit from the techniques which have been so successful in luring American tourist dollars across the Atlantic.

The Motel-Hotel Association official feels that many persons would like to bring one or more guests to the luncheon and asks that reservation requests be called to The Cavalier at 428-6611.

Williams Gets Sand Contract

NORFOLK — An estimated $338,100 by E. V. Williams Co., Norfolk contractor, Monday was the low bid for supplying 55,000 truckloads of sand for the U. S. Army Engineers contract to Virginia Beach's ocean front.

Between Rudee Inlet and 21st, the sand, 220,000 cubic yards of it, will have to be trucked onto the beach.

The 55,000 truckloads of sand to be hauled in 90 days is estimated to mean a daily truckload of 600.

Future of Care Program Outlined to Committee

VIRGINIA BEACH — "New Horizons for CARE" was the topic of a speech by Wells Klein given at a meeting of the Virginia CARE Committee Friday at the Cavalier Beach Club.

Klein is Director of Program Development for CARE and has served with the agency since 1951. He is currently responsible for the evaluation and implementation of CARE projects submitted from 32 countries aboard. Earlier he was CARE Mission Chief in Yugoslavia. Japan, Viet Nam, Laos, and Malta. He also served in various administrative capacities in the agency's New York headquarters.

Klein told members of the committee that their newest service, CARE-MEDICO, is sending doctors to 10 underdeveloped nations. CARE merged with MEDICO last March. Klein recently made a tour of the overseas MEDICO facilities. The need for this service is compelling when one realizes that over one-half of the world's population have no access to medical care at all from the moment they are born until they die.

This new medical service of CARE is always on a physician-to-patient level. It is non-governmental, non-political and non-sectarian, as are all CARE programs.

Klein also commented on the new and highly successful programs jointly sponsored by the U. S. Peace Corps and CARE.

Mrs. A. Paul Hartz, Chairman of the Virginia CARE Committee conducted the meeting. Mrs. Dave Satterfield, Jr., of Richmond, Mrs. William C. Smith of Portsmouth, Doyle Liles of the Veterans Administration in Kechoughtan, James C. Smith of Martinsville and Walter B. Potter of Culpeper were among those attending. The President of the Princess Anne Women's Club, Mrs. L. W. Meachum, was also there.

State representatives from national organizations having on-going projects to raise money for CARE were also present, as were several doctors from the Norfolk area who had a particular interest in the new CARE-MEDICO program. Representatives from the military organizations who worked so hard on the annual drive for CARE throughout government installations last Spring were also there.

Attending the meeting were:

Astronaut Is Honored for First Flight

HANOVER, N.H.—Dartmouth College, Sunday, June 10, conferred its honorary master of arts degree on Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard, Jr., of East Derry, N.H., America's first astronaut.

Commander Shepard was one of seven honorary degree recipients at the combined baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies here for some 600 undergraduates.

In his citation Darthmouth President John Sloan Dickey said:

"Alan Bartlett Shepard, Jr., it is not just that you are a product of New Hampshire, not just that your East Derry rearing was an idyl of boyhood which featured such staples as crashing a home-made glider at age eleven, the Boy Scouts, ski jumping, church, school, 'Tom Swift and His Flying Boat', and working almost as hard as all fathers are wont to say they did, nor is it that these led to Annapolis and the proud duty of a Navy test pilot, no, it is not even that you are the son of a Dartmouth man, Class of 1913. It is simply that you are the American Christopher Columbus of space exploration. Your May 5, 1961 exploit was heroic because it was the kind of bravery that mattered greatly. It was a bravery in skill that gave new relevance to knowledge and opened unimagined realms as the reward of effort. Dartmouth is privileged to acknowledge such a mastery of both self and of unique tasks with the unprecedented award of her master's degree both honoris causa and summa cum laude."

FOODS FOR GROWING BOYS AND GIRLS

Normal growth and development of the whole child are dependent on many factors, such as: inherited physical characteristics, home and family conditions, rest and sleep, activity, wholesome food, freedom from disease or infection.

Each child follows an individual growth pattern and it becomes the responsibility of parents or others who serve as parents to provide an atmosphere conductive to growth and the ingredients necessary for growth plus loving care and sympathetic supervision.

Importance of wholesome food as a basic ingredient for normal growth has been recognized for many years. Studies have shown that the quality of the diet of the mother during pregnancy determines to a great extent the health and physical characteristics of the newborn baby. The baby thrives on foods selected to meet his special needs and becomes an active, robust child with ever increasing food requirements. Diet recommendations for individual children should only be made by a competent physician who is familiar with all conditions and should be followed faithfully. Every child should have a physical examination once a year, dental check-ups twice a year and a varied, well-balanced diet every day in the year.

Food Habits

Effort should be made to establish taste for all good food. Food prejudices should be discouraged. In general, meals should be made simple, carefully prepared and attractively served. Parents will find that if they eat the right food regularly the children are less likely to develop poor food habits.

Suggested Daily Menu

A Good Breakfast—fruit or fruit juice, cereal—whole grain or restored, milk, sugar; bread, toast or rolls with butter; milk or milk beverage (egg may be served for breakfast or at other meals).

A Satisfying Lunch or Supper—soup or casserole dish; sandwiches, rolls, butter; salad or raw vegetable strips; pudding or fruit dessert; cookies; milk.

A Substantial Dinner — Meat, poultry, or fish; potato or substitute; cooked vegetable; salad or raw vegetable strips; bread, butter; dessert, milk.

Between Meals or Before Bed Snack—Fruit, plain crackers or ready-to-eat cereals with milk.

AMOUNT OF FOOD WE EAT

Fifteen hundred pounds a year, 4 pounds a day—that's the amount of food we eat. It's a figure that, according to food experts, has stayed about the same for years and years. We eat just about the same number of pounds per year now as we did 10, 20, or 30 years ago.

All this would seem to say that our stomachs are pretty inflexible. We eat just so much food and no more. We aren't about to expand our personal food consumption.

This could lead to the inevitable conclusion that the only way to change the amount of food we buy, sell, or use is to change the number of people we fed. Sounds pretty grim doesn't it? If we were to run short of present foods, only fewer mouths would help. If further surpluses arise, only more mouths will help.

Yet, there's a flaw in this thinking. Actually, we have the most flexible food supply imaginable. It could be stretched to feed many millions more mouths. It could, if we really wished, be contracted to feed fewer than we now are.

One secret of this built-in flexibility is the meat we eat. Any time you have an area or country that eats a lot of meat, you have tremendous stretch in your food supply. You see, when a steer, chicken, hog, or sheep eats corn, wheat or oats, it's eating for two reasons: it eats to stay alive and it eats to put on weight and fat.

If we were short of food, that grain now going to keep animals alive could just as easily be used to keep us alive. For example; every pound of beef we eat represents 8 pounds of feed. Of course, part of this may be grass, or hay, feed we couldn't eat; but much of it is grain, feed we could eat. All this grain fed to animals would, if necessary, feed many more people.

This works the other way too. You hear all the talk about agricultural surpluses. They could be much greater if we didn't enjoy eating meat so much. As it is, when grain prices are low, especially corn, it's a signal for beef, hog, sheep, and poultry farmers to raise more meat. The result is we have more meat to eat at lower prices.

Fashion Comments

We cannot be sure of the weather this week, so let's provide for it ahead of time. I choose a straight cut sleeveless cotton pokadot dress—and, just in case of cool winds, a matching elegantly styled jacket to complete this smart ensemble.

Now that we have started to give you my weekly report on Fashions, I'd better go back and start concentrating on your figure.

The "proper figure-proportion" first. Your "Ideal" measurements are according to your height, weight and age. Let's take stock. Take your measurements (bust, waist, hips, thighs and calfs) truthfully. Get on your scales and mark down your results.

With 5 feet height, you allow 100 pounds weight. Every additional inch, 5 pounds. If you are over the age of 25 years old add another 5 lbs., over 35 years of age, 5 lbs. more to your total. So, that is it. How far off are we? Do something about it. No, not diet.

To begin with check your eating habits. Second, try some exercises regularly. Cut down on liquids and sweets or in-between snacks. As for "eating habits" it has only become a custom for most people in this wonderful country to have practically no breakfast or as little as possible, a small lunch and a heavy dinner.

That is enough to do serious damage, especially if you are not accustomed to exercise after dinner, which most of us are not. We sit down (after the dishes are taken care of) and have our family get-together, or join our husbands and watch television. Once we are tired of being ignored by everyone in the room—we retire. This way we made sure for our figure to get settled. Of course we can change this unhealthy way of eating, only let's wait until next week.

Poetry, Crazy Hats, Garden Clubbers

Diapers, Flowers Decorate Hats

PHOTOS & TEXT
By JOY HAKIM

Ladies hatted and beflowered,
With marigold, phlox and roses towered,
Alice Brewer White would have been enchanted.
To see so many flowers on hats transplanted.
Twas a Bay Colony Garden Club meeting,
And hats of flowers were competing,
To be judged most original, or prettiest,
Or having most flowers, or wittiest.

Mary McGrath how does your garden grow?
"All over my head, I'll have you know!"
(She won a prize, oh those poor judges—
You know clubwomen often bear grudges.)
Anne Gilliam won one too,
For a flowered halo, green, yellow and blue.
A magnolia blossom made a hat for Mary Moore
And hydrangea were what Fad Burton wore.

Lena Aho had gardenias and phlox,
And Anne Overman a carnationed pillbox.
Betty Walton put bees on her bonnet
And lots of red rose petals glued upon it.
Jody Haycox wore a broad-brimmed creation,
And Dolly Antrim looked like a magazine illustration.

"Domesticated golden rod" adorned Jeanne Blake,
And on Betty Whitehurst, ligustrum and a horse (fake),

Is what Virginia Peabody said.
But the hat that topped the show,
Was Mary Whitley Haycox's chapeau.
She had a reason, she said
For the diapers and pins on her head
Here it is in verse (her own, It inspired my horrendous poem):
"To decorate with leaves and flowers,
The Bay Colony girls have done for hours,
As you can see by looking around,
No lovelier hats could ever be found.
But every years it seems as tho
In my back yard no flowers grow,
But there have been reasons large and small
And if you'll listen I'll recall.

That first year you all understand,
There was that matter of tilling the land,
So at the meeting seven years ago,
A dandelion was in my bun—just so,
One year later as a beginner,
Ligustum leaves were not a winner.
Then I settled down to work,
But the bugs and mildew went beserk—
So my husband's flies I used instead
And a fishing hat adorned my head.

Roses I thought might do the trick,
But the next year's bouquet—a dead thorn stick,
So I got out my old straw hat
Pinned on my gloves and went like that.
Last year was to be the best one yet
I bought more seeds than you'd ever get,
But also to the house we added on
So the packages of seeds lay still unborn.

There are no flowers again this year,
And not much time for seeds I fear,
But my reason is one that's brought much joy,
In the form of a blooming baby boy.
One of these days when I'm old and gray
I'll have such a garden they'll have to say—
That poor old woman—she's worked so hard,
Don't look at her, but you must see her yard!"

—Mary Whitley Haycox

BAYSIDE — The Art Show held this past weekend on the lawn of Baylake Methodist Church, on Shore Drive, was very well received. The spectators commented on the quality of the work that was shown by the Chesapeake Beach, Ocean Park & Kempsville Art Classes.

One of the unique features of the show was that the public voted on the first, second and third, prizes for pictures on exhibit. The ballots were placed in a ballot box and Mrs. Mary Wheelhouse acted as "keeper", seeing that the ballot box was not "stuffed" and reminding the spectators to vote.

Tallied Before Public

The "Polls" were closed at 4:00 P.M. Sunday and a huge score card was placed on an easel in full view of the clubs and public. The votes were removed one by one from the box and tallied.

When the last vote was counted Virginia Elswick was shown to be winner of the first and second prizes for her "Driftwood" picture which was done in brown tones.

Third place was tied between Thelma Winder with her grey and white study of an ironstone pitcher on an old pigeon holed office desk, and Mona Ulan for a Wine bottle, bread and cheese done in subdued tones.

Art supplies, merchandise, was awarded the winners.

Bertha Fanning Taylor, well-known artist, and art teacher from Norfolk was on hand Sunday afternoon and very graciously executed quick sketches of anyone present. Needless to say the lucky ones who had their pictures sketched were very much thrilled.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Elizabeth D'Auria, teacher of the classes exhibiting, set up her easel and produced quick pastel portraits for anyone coming forward. Sue Quackenbush and Frances Winder were two of the lucky ones receiving a free portrait.

The door prize, a water color by Elizabeth D'Auria, was won by Mrs. Miriam Horton of Sylvan Beach.

Jackson—"Sunburn nothing —that's rust."

4-H SAID TO BE LARGEST YOUTH ORGANIZATION

Four-H has been referred to as the largest youth organization in the world. The program is organized in every state in the United States as well as Puerto Rico. More than 40 countries in the world have adopted the 4-H Club idea. This extensive coverage prompts the question, "What is 4-H?"

It is the youth program of the Agricultural Extension Service and it is a voluntary organization for boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty-one. The club program provides training in leadership, citizenship, and character development, along with skills in agriculture, home economics, and related fields. The program is designed to meet the interests of both rural and urban youth.

Four-H'ers themselves run their clubs, elect their officers, plan and conduct their meetings, and special activities. Guidance is given by the volunteer leader, a local adult who serves the community by helping the youth group with its educational program.

Each member conducts at least one project relating to either agriculture, home economics, or related fields. There is a wide range of projects which provides opportunities for urban and rural youth as well as different age levels. Examples of project areas are beautification of home grounds with 2 graded units and home furnishings with 3 graded units.

In addition to project work, 4-H members enjoy experiences of camping, tours, social meetings, recreation, county council meetings, trips, and awards.

The term "4-H" refers to Head, Heart, Hands, and Health, the four words around which the educational objectives of the 4-H program are centered.

The Head "H" relates to: Learning the value of science and the results of research through applying the latest scientific knowledge to agriculture and home economics projects.

The Heart "H" relates to developing wholesome character and personality qualities of good citizenship, high ideals, and a sense of responsibility.

Hands: To acquire useful skills and to provide opportunities to "learn by doing" through 4-H projects and demonstrations for others.

Health: To cultivate good health habits and intelligent use of leisure which will lead to satisfying, happy living, and long lives.

Four-H is a practical program for young people. Members interested in organizing a 4-H Club should contact our office.

The MIXING BOWL . . .

IT'S Fun TO COOK

By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

For the very latest in food fads and fables . . . for practical, down-to-earth recipes that please both palate and pocketbook, read the "Mixing Bowl" by Lucille Clark each Thursday in the Sun-News.

A Chicken for Every Pop!

On Father's Day, June 17th, every Pop deserves the best—and that goes for the dinner you serve him.

Because chicken is such a favorite, you can be sure that it will please Dad on his day. And Crispy Oven-Fried Chicken, a prize-winner in the National Chicken-Cooking Contest, is just about the best dish any father ever set tooth to. The blue-ribbon bird has a crisp coating of dry rice cereal and is baked rather than cooked in a skillet. Serve it with chicken's most devoted companion, canned cranberry sauce.

Dad apparently appreciates chicken all year long, for according to the National Broiler Council it is the most popular of the leading meats. It is kind to waist-watching fathers, too, for chicken is low in calories.

This year, fathers from coast to coast will be sitting down to the table to enjoy Crispy Oven-Fried Chicken. That's celebrating Father's Day in just the fashion sure to please him most!

Crispy Oven-Fried Chicken

½ cup butter or margarine
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika.
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
3½ cups dry rice cereal, finely crushed

Melt butter with salt, pepper and paprika. Dip chicken pieces, one at a time, in melted butter mixture, then roll in cereal crumbs. Arrange in a single layer in a large shallow baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1 hour. Serve with cranberry sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

A luscious coconut cake is worthy of any special celebration and what better a celebration than for Father's Day. You can proudly serve a rich, moist cake frosted lightly with cocoanut. For the frosting, mix 2 cups of confectioner's sugar with about 2 tablespoons of hot milk, or just enough to make light thin glaze.

COCONUT TUBE CAKE

2¾ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter or margarine
2 cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla
3 eggs, unbeaten
1 cup milk
¾ cup packaged grated coconut

Measure sifted flour, add baking powder and salt, and sift together. Cream butter until light and fluffy; add sugar gradually and beat until smooth and creamy. Add vanilla and beat well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Then add the flour alternately with the milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Fold in coconut. Pour the batter into a 10-inch tube pan, which has been greased and floured. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 65 to 70 minutes. Cool in pan 15 minutes; then remove from pan and continue cooling on a rack. Frost the top of the cake. Sprinkle with additional packaged grated coconut.

If you think Dad would like a frosting, why not use this on the cake and tint the frosting a pale green and sprinkle with the coconut.

Maybe you'd just rather spell DAD out with tiny candles in a bright color, on the white frosting, they'd look so pretty.

For a Snow-Peak frosting you will need:

1¼ cups white corn syrup
2 egg whites
Dash Salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a small sauce pan, heat corn syrup until boiling. With electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until forms soft peaks when beater is raised. Add salt. Slowly pour in syrup, continuing to beat until frosting is fluffy and forms peaks when beater is raised. Fold in vanilla. Ready to frost the cake now and it will be mighty good.

Fun Begins At Local Park

The Twist has hit Virginia Beach with a bigger splash than any dance craze since the Charleston, and everybody's Twisting every night at the Seaside Park Ballroom, where lively bands with such picturesque names as the Moonlighters, the Half Beats and the Twisting Motions are alternating nightly on the stand.

Many of the dancers are twisting for dollars, too. There are Twist eliminations every night, with a final contest among the winners on Sunday. Cash prizes are awarded to each week's winners.

Besides the nightly dance periods, there are also jam sessions on Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 2:00 o'clock on.

Seaside Park changes its free act on the new outdoor stage today. The Crowells, a troupe of trampoline experts, give a demonstration of the startling things that can be done on the bounding nets every day at 2:30 and 10:00 p.m. Other outstanding acts, many of which are out of the biggest circuses of the United States and Europe, will follow throughout the season. The attraction changes every Monday.

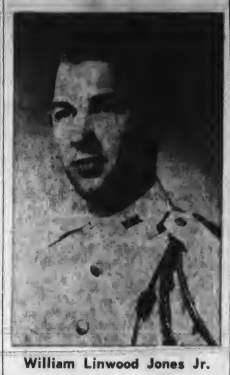

Admission to all these events, and to Seaside Park itself, is always free.

We're Sorry

In a story last week on the opening of the Golden Dragon, the Virginia Beach Beach Sun-News named the restaurant's owner as Stephen Eng. It should have appeared as Stephen Yee.

The Sun-News regrets this error.

The Gainsborough Smile

Much has been written about the puzzling smile of Leonardo's famous Mona Lisa; No less mysterious is the expression of Miss Mary Cliques, portrayed here by Thomas Gainsborough, the renowned eighteenth century portrait painter. This is one of two Gainsboroughs in the English Galleries of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, Richmond.

YA GOTTA FEEL IT, SON!

By Rev. H. Wadell Waters
First Baptist Church

The man hadn't asked for much. Just a few dimes, he had said, to get a bite to eat so the hunger pangs would go away and let him get some sleep. He had a job promised for tomorrow and he wanted to be ready for it.

The good companion, who had thus been approached for help, took the man by the arm and slowly walked him to a nearby restaurant where he ordered a substantial meal, with all the trimmings, and waited to make certain that it was all eaten.

The good companion's friend, whose conversation had been interrupted by this man's plea for help, waited impatiently; and, when the good companion rejoined him, asked acidly why he had not just dismissed the needy one with a gift, if he must be bothered with him at all.

The good companion turned, and with a smile of deep understanding and sympathy, told his younger friend, "Ya gotta feel it, son, if it's to have any real meaning in it."

Perhaps this points to one of the "escapes" men employ today in order to avoid what is regarded as the unpleasant feelings of concern, sympathy, and personal responsibility. Somehow, something very meaningful has been missed when a person's response to the needs of his fellowman is always channeled through national drives, socialized programs, government give-aways, and detached programs of mercy.

This is not to imply that all such drives, charitable activities, etc., are not needed and effective: it is to say that the meaning of these for the individual is completely lost if one escapes the personal feeling of responsibility by giving to such programs instead of giving through the programs. In short, "Ya gotta feel it, son, if it's to have any real meaning in it."

Some of the sharpest blasts Jesus leveled at his contemporaries were leveled against that segment which made such a public display of, their religion, but lifted their garments and walked the other side of the road rather than personally confront the plight of a fellow human being. They wanted to be known as persons of a religious reputation, but they didn't want the personal commitment and participation that went with it.

Seen in this light, one begins to understand why peace and goodwill will escape this world so long as men think these can be had without personal commitment.

"And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matthew 25:40.

June Bride

In a moment, the organist will strike a chord. There will be a sudden hush in the church, then the strains of the wedding march will peal forth and she will take her father's arm and start up the aisle, her measured steps symbolic of the very real hesitation she will be feeling.

She would not be human if she did not hesitate. These steps she is about to take are the most important steps of her life. She is poised on the threshold of another existence in which the pronoun she uses will be "We" and not "I." Soon she will learn to think of another before she thinks of herself. Presently, she will come to know fully the meaning of the word "share."

As she moves forward, she falters for just a second. Then her step becomes sure, her lips curve in a smile. The church through which she walks is dear and beloved to her—and so is the man who stands waiting for her beside the altar. Her marriage, blessed by faith, is beginning where all marriages should begin—in the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Notes from Your COUNTY AGENT

By E. R. "DICK" COCKRELL, JR.

Many a man thinks he is overworked just because he takes all day to do a three-hour job.

PROPER PLANNING CAN TRANSFORM YARD INTO ATTRACTIVE LIVING AREA

With proper planning, undeveloped back yard space can be changed into an attractive outdoor family area. Privacy from neighbors can be obtained with plantings or fencing. Trees properly located will give shade.

After the rear area is enclosed, space will be available for family entertainment or recreation. Develop one area as a sitting area and furnish it with appropriate furniture. The logical place for such a sitting area is often next to the house, so there can be a direct transition from the indoor living space to the outdoor living space.

The surface of the outdoor sitting area may be paved with brick, flangstone, or concrete. Shade may be provided by a well located shade tree or an aluminum covering. A wood structure covered with vine can also be used.

If a good shade tree is already available in the backyard, it can become the center for the sitting area instead of a terrace near the house.

The area near the sitting area will probably be in grass. Around the perimeter of the yard there should be some type of screen or enclosure. In front of this enclosure, group plans to create an attractive overall picture. Develop a focal point which becomes the center of attention. The way in which the plant material is grouped and located can be made to lead the eye to the major point of interest.

This focal point may be a pool, a piece of garden sculpture, a bench, a speciman plant, or an interesting and colorful grouping of plant material. Many outdoor areas lack interest or meaning because a central focal point has not been developed.

Ideas on how to develop this outdoor space can be found in current magazines. Landscape nurserymen or landscape architects are available to help homeowners develop ideas, or furnish imaginative ideas for converting dull and uninteresting back yards into areas suitable for gracious living.

GO SLOW WHEN SWITCHING FROM ONE ENTERPRISE TO ANOTHER ON FARMS

Some Princess Anne cattlemen are switching from a beef cow herd to the production of feeder steers.

I agree that farmers need to search for ways to improve efficiency and for projects more adapted to the resources at hand. However, it is important to weigh the factors involved when making such a change.

There are good reasons for popularity of the beef cow herd. The cow can use foughages (grass and hay) 365 days a year. All of the county's land is adapted for growing pasture and hay. Labor needs for a cow herd are low.

Steer production is another matter. The steer needs good grass and he doesn't need to spend a lot of effort getting it. Nor should there be any periods of short grass.

Winter roughage used for steers should be of the finest quality. In addition, steers require a small amount of grain for profitable wintering. Labor requirements are not high with stocker steers, but the capital investment is moderate.

With a cow herd, once the initial investment is made there is no need for refinancing. With steers, a capital outlay is needed in growing steers. A small error in judgment in management can wipe out the entire year's profit. A person handling steers should be able to see trouble a long time before it arrives. Considerable experience is also needed in buying and selling when handling steers.

Study all these requirements carefully, think about the entire situation, about your resources and your abilities when considering switching from one class of cattle to another.

FIRE BLIGHT CAN BE REAL TROUBLE MAKER

Fire blight, a bacterial disease, can be a real trouble-maker for the green-thumbed home owner.

This disease attacks apples, pears, and several ornamental plants, and is found in all areas of Virginia. Often it is serious on fruit trees in the "backyard orchard."

Yellow transparent apple trees are very susceptible to fire blight. The disease in some areas has caused medium-sized trees to die. This is especially true when no attempt is made to control the disease. Pears and most apples are susceptible, especially if the weather is wet at blossoming time.

Fire blight can be recognized by the black dead twigs and leaves. Remove these small blighted branches from the tree. Break the twigs off by hand. If you use pruning shears or a knife, the tools become contaminated with bacteria and will spread the disease.

In commercial orchards, spraying during blossom time with streptomycin sulfate is effective.

VPI CIRCULAR GIVES PLANS FOR POULTRY DISPOSAL UNITS

Recently enacted legislation requires that certain Virginia poultrymen (those growing over 2,000 birds) have proper facilities for disposal of dead birds.

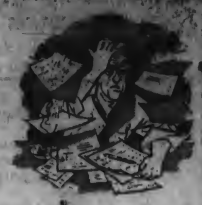

Improper disposal of dead birds can cause large losses to poultrymen. If not handled properly, diseased birds can be a source of infection to other birds and flocks.

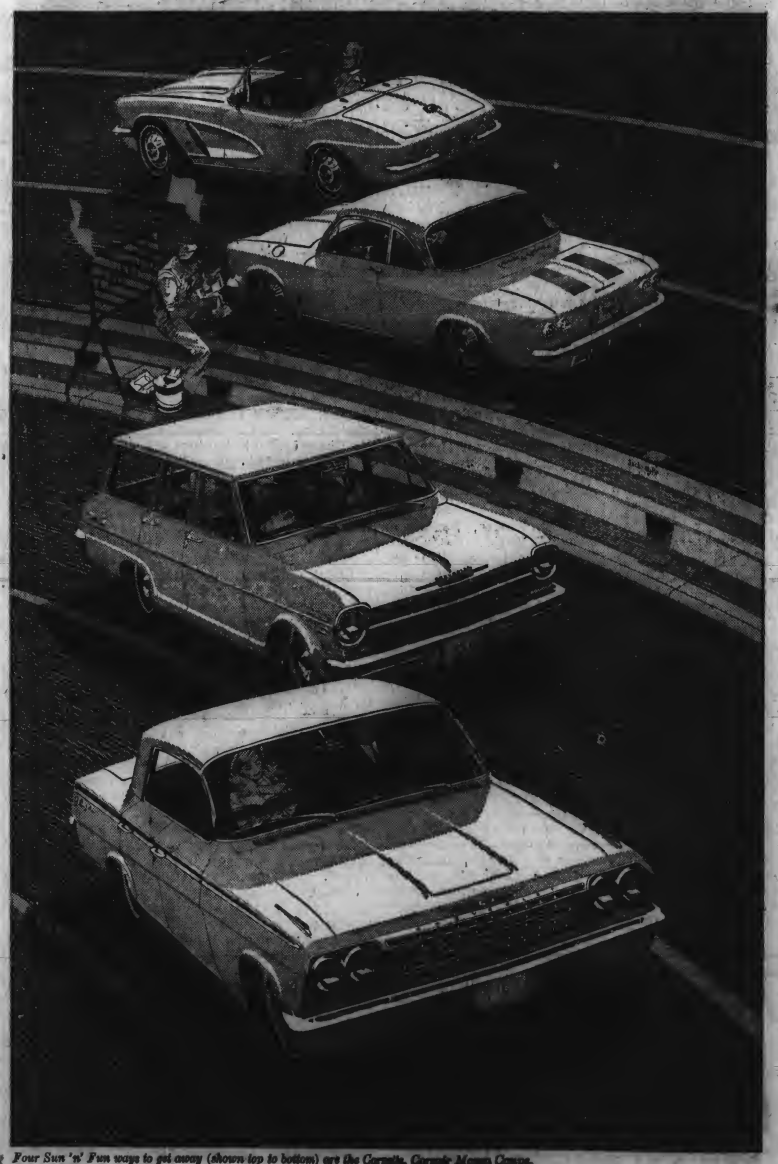

Dead birds should be immediately put in a disposal pit or burned in an incinerator. Obvious culls or birds too sick to recover should be killed and disposed of in like manner.

A new publication, VPI Circular 910, gives plans for disposal pits and incinerators. It is available from my office.

In This Issue . . .

To begin this special All-Outdoors issue, we're proud to be able to bring two observations by Robert Frost. In his poem, "Closed For Good," the great poet sings a new song of the open road, in which you'll get a new look at nature, at Mr. Frost, and, perhaps, at yourself. He also adds two lines, all about himself, that should warm your heart.

The Garden Room . . . page 8

Noted architect Edward Durell Stone outlines several ways in which you can take full advantage of your own piece of the out-of-doors, now that you're spending so much time in it, and keep your privacy, too. He recommends planning your house around an all-year garden room, or atrium, that will give you every comfort you now have in your living room—plus light and air and growing things.

Want to Buy a Country Club? . . . page 10

The people of Westport, Connecticut, did want to buy one, so they set out to acquire Longshore, an exclusive private club in their town. Here is the account of how they did it, what they have made out of it, and what it means to the families of Westport that now use it, told by the man who acted for the town in wrapping up the deal.

Edward Streeter, famous author of "Father of the Bride" and "Chairman of the Bored," tells the tale of Jeffrey Bottomly, of Bottomly, Pennsylvania—the last specimen in a long line of great sportsmen and great outdoorsmen. In the family tradition, Jeffrey tried all kinds of athletics, from musical chairs to golf, swimming, and quail shooting—with most unexpected results.

Our cover artist shows the breadwinner—physically trapped behind his desk at the office, but mentally many commuter miles away from the stuffy, hot city. He muses about barbecuing and golfing and dancing and boating—all dreams that will come true, a little after 5 o'clock.

GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

ANYTHING that's anything happens out of doors, these days. For instance, while it is not unusual to see a sign, "Danger—Men Working," says Mrs. W. B. Perrin, of Alpharetta, Georgia, she recently came upon one near an outdoor barbecue that read, "Danger—Men Cooking."

We've just heard a success story that we think is worth passing on to all of you. Some time ago, at a construction site a few miles from Sewickley, Pennsylvania, a robin fell into a 30-inch deep, four-and-a-half-inch-wide hole in a cement-block installation. Workmen tried to get the bird out, but failed, till along came 10-year-old Danny Sippy, who calmly took a bucket full of sand, poured it slowly into the hole, elevating the bird. The operation took an hour.

When police in Pacoima, California, picked up a charming three-year-old stroller wandering aimlessly down the main street, they tried to discover where she came from. When they asked what her name was, she either couldn't or wouldn't tell them, so they began to go through her little pockets hunting for identification. At this point, she looked up at the circle of officers and said, "I don't have a gun."

Other communities please take note: Around Boulder, Colorado, a driver-improvement course has been instituted for people who are 65 years of age and over. Students take regular driving subjects which stress special problems of the elderly, such as slower reaction time and the effect of advancing age on sight and hearing.

Dr. Wes McKenzie, of Bellevue, Washington, has two power lawn mowers. One is labeled "His," the other "Hers," but, says the good doctor, "I always make sure that only 'Hers' has any gas."

Mrs. Moselle S. Caldwell, of Arlington, Virginia, writes to tell us about a Scouts project from which both the Cubs and the Explorers in her neighborhood profited. It seems that Den Mother Mrs. Everet Hedahl got two old jalopies for her 14 nine- and ten-year-old Cubs to take apart, as a Den project. With a Boy Scout adviser and a group of Explorer Scouts on hand to help and advise, the Cubs fell to with wrenches, hammers, and screwdrivers. Five hours later, there was nothing but a big pile of parts and a happy mass of enlightened youngsters. And the Explorer Scouts seemed even more pleased as they prepared to haul the dismantled cars away; their next project is to put the two automobiles together again.

From Helen S. Phillips, who lives near Littleton, Colorado, we understand there is an excellent orchestra formed each summer out in Estes Park, called the Blue Jeans Symphony. It is composed of outstanding young musicians from high schools and colleges all over the country, who spend their vacations working on ranches and resorts in the area while studying music. Aside from the quality of their performances, what distinguishes this group is the fact that all of the young musicians wear blue jeans at every concert, while conductor Walter Charles sports a set of specially tailored blue-denim tails.

In Glen Burnie, Maryland, the Don Carpenters have a praying mantis, and they're taking very good care of it, knowing how valuable these small creatures are in the garden (they eat all kinds of undesirable insects). Peggy Carpenter found the mantis half-frozen a while back, named it "Mr. Fiddle-Sticks," and decided to adopt it. "Mr." turned out to be a female, who laid a mass of eggs on the kitchen window, so now the Carpenters are looking forward to having about 100 tiny praying mantis to put to work in their garden. Meantime, Mr. Fiddle-Sticks is living high on raw hamburger, dead flies, herring roe, hardboiled eggs, raw liver, and likes melted ice cream for dessert. It will only drink water or milk from a silver spoon and has refused to touch a beverage in a plastic spoon. After meals, which it eats with great gusto, it washes up carefully, just the way a cat does.

A Grosse Pointe, Michigan, woman whose son had just got married was asked if she was going to visit the young couple, who had settled in California. "Not yet," she wisely replied, "I'm waiting until they have their first baby. You see, I have a theory that grandmas are more welcome than mothers-in-law."

You can get a new insight into the electronics age by strolling along Compo Beach at Westport, Connecticut, any sun-swept day during the weekend. Several itinerant waiters and two walkie-talkie radios now make it possible for lazy sun bathers to place orders and receive deliveries from the beach pavilion without having to interrupt their pleasure for even one warm moment. The walkie-talkie-equipped waiters simply take your order, phone it in, and within a few minutes a colleague cycles up the beach with it.

When Mark and Melvin Smith became carrier boys for the Valley Times Today in Quartz Hills, California, they formed a wonderful partnership that cuts down their deliv-

Robert Frost

A great poet and a great outdoorsman sings a new song of the open road — and adds a few words about himself

It takes all sorts of in and outdoor schooling
To get adapted to my kind of fooling.

Closed for Good

They come not back with steed
And chariot to chide
My slowness with their speed
And scare me to one side.
They have found other scenes
For haste and other means.

They leave the road to me
To walk in saying naught
Perhaps but to a tree
Inaudibly in thought,
"From you the road receives
A priming coat of leaves.

"And soon for lack of sun,
The prospects are in white
It will be further done,
But with a coat so light
The shape of leaves will show
Beneath the spread of snow."

And so on into winter
Till even I have ceased
To come as a foot printer,
And only some slight beast
So mousy or so foxy
Shall print there as my proxy.

House Around a Garden

BY EDWARD DURELL STONE architect of the U. S. Embassy in New Delhi, U. S. Pavilion for Brussels' Fair, etc.

AS TIME HAS PASSED, the area of land available for housing has dwindled in many suburban towns, as it did in the cities before them, until now we often attempt to have an individual dwelling on a 50 x 100 lot. With the current enthusiasm for outdoor living this means that houses opening widely to terraces have no privacy. Your neighbor's life is perforce conducted within 20 or 30 feet of your own—you can hear the steak sizzling on his charcoal, the door slamming behind his child.

My solution is to build the house around a garden room or atrium. This room can be lighted from above and in turn open on one side to the out-of-doors. It can have air, planting, and fountains, and do away with space-consuming hallways. As the photographs show, the all-weather garden room can be a dominating feature, alive the way every garden is, with light and air and growing things, and in addition the further charm of privacy will be restored.

In the past, it was difficult to make top lighting practical, as skylights were usually leaky and accumulated dirt. Today, however, with the advent of plastic, and perfected waterproofing, an interior garden, lighted from above, employing plastic bubbles, can be a charming and useful element. All my houses are now planned according to this principle. Recently I did one in Texas, enclosed by high walls and all the rooms open to courtyards; all the floors are white marble. There is a swimming pool within the house, too. Masonry, marble floors, the use of fountains, lagoons, courtyards, enclosed gardens—all these are characteristic of my present work.

In designing such houses it is my hope to provide a client with a beautiful building, and above all, one that he will be able to live in contentedly, under today's crowded and strenuous conditions.

House is built around an all-weather garden, a dramatic free space under its translucent ceiling, where people and plants can flourish in peace and privacy.

How Our Town Bought a Country Club

Once private, Westport's spectacular Longshore Club Park is now open to all—and the

ON THE SUNNY MORNING of Saturday, September 5, 1959, a day I'm not likely to forget, I received a telephone call.

The caller was Herbert E. Baldwin, First Selectman of the Town of Westport, Connecticut. My town, 50 miles from New York City, of which it was rapidly becoming a suburb.

Since I had served for six years on the town's Board of Finance, Mr. Baldwin was calling to tell me that the Longshore Country Club might possibly be available for purchase. He was deeply interested in even a mere possibility. Longshore was a beautiful spot along Connecticut's lovely shore, which had long been a kind of enclave, a privately owned club. The town would dearly love to own it. Would I be good enough to look into this rumor, discreetly, and report back to him? I said I would.

Longshore contained 191 acres on Long Island Sound, a large clubhouse with restaurants, bars, locker rooms, 19 bedrooms, an 18-hole golf course, seven tennis courts, a beach, senior and junior swimming pools, 54 cabanas, boating facilities, 11 summer-rental cottages, and seven or eight other houses and apartments equipped for year-round use. Quite a package!

I won't bore you with the details of the negotiations. They took four and a half months and were difficult. At first, the owner didn't want to sell at all. Following several months of persuasion, he was ready to listen, but for $3,000,000!

After innumerable meetings and endless Oriental rug-trading, we finally got the price down to one I liked and thought the town would, too: $1,925,000.

But we weren't yet out of the woods. I still had to have an option. "Option?" asked the owner. "What option? Bring me the money."

I pointed out that he wasn't selling to an individual with millions in the bank; he was selling to a town, and it had many legal procedures with which we had to comply. We needed at least 30 days to clear it through town machinery, to say nothing of building up town interest through the newspaper, word of mouth, and so on.

All I could get from him was 17 days. But one great Friday night I raced to the train with my homemade option signed and reposing warmly in my pocket. I felt nine feet tall.

Next morning I met with the town fathers. We were all jubilant. Although a 17-day limitation was tight, perhaps impossible, we did some figuring and decided to try it. As it turned out, the most important thing we did that morning was to phone Elwood Allen of the Elwood Allen Organization in Bennington, Vermont, possibly the country's greatest expert on the planning of public recreation facilities.

He was so interested in our story, he flew right down in his private plane and spent the better part of three days studying Westport's existing recreation facilities and the attractions of the Longshore Club. The upshot of his report: the greatest facility he'd ever seen available to a town of our kind. And in a confidential aside, he said, "If you guys don't buy this, you're crazy!"

Various volunteers got to work to assemble data for the case I was to present to the town authorities and the townspeople. In quick succession, we won approval of the Board of Selectmen, the Planning and Zoning Commission, and the Board of Finance. The pay-off was the presentation to Westport's Representative Town Meeting, a legislative phenomenon which in larger New England towns replaces the outgrown Town Meeting. Nevertheless, this one turned out to be more like an old-fashioned Town Meeting. A huge crowd grabbed every seat—early. An unprecedented overflow tucked itself around the edges.

THE STAFF and committee work had been excellent. Allen's report was powerful. My presentation lasted almost two hours and was replete with facts, figures, charts, graphs, and a big map of the beautiful club.

The presentation itself fell naturally into three parts. I began by phrasing their first question: "You're probably wondering why we need Longshore." I pointed out that, although the town was a privileged community and everybody owned some grass and trees, there were other reasons for having a park. As the Allen report made clear, Westport was actually underequipped with park taxpayers' pride and joy

BY JULIAN P. BRODIE

facilities. We didn't have enough tennis courts; we had no public golf course, and in these and other ways the town fell below the standards of the National Recreation Association for communities of our size, to say nothing of our income level, which is high. This greatly surprised the audience. Like a lot of other suburbs in recent years, we'd been asleep while the town had grown.

I also pointed out that shore-front land was scarce and getting scarcer, that the town had sadly missed opportunities to buy a nine-hole golf club some years before and several tracts along the water that had been gobbled up by developers. Furthermore, if Longshore were ever sold to a builder, we could expect a hundred or more houses to sprout there, with up to 250 children dumped on the town, bringing with them the need to build a new million-dollar school. In our town, moreover, any family (average 2.3 children) that lived in a house selling for less than $50,000 actually cost the town money in education, police, fire, and other services. Our God-given location on Long Island Sound, our excellent schools, beaches, boating facilities, and air-conditioned commuting all made our town almost too attractive to big-city immigrants. Unwittingly, they added a financial burden to the rest of us when they chose Westport.

THE SECOND QUESTION I also phrased right out of their own thoughts: "Can the town afford this club?" My answer was that the town could not afford to pass it up. I singled out several prominent realtors in the audience. I asked them to tell the crowd what shore-front property was worth these days. By luck, one announced she had just sold a piece of land on the shore that week for $25,000. Another, who was then developing 26 acres of waterfront property, told the gasping populace he was getting $15,000 and $20,000 an acre. So I pointed out that even as a real-estate investment, the thing was cheap at the price. Moreover, it was getting more valuable every minute that I stood there. And so were their houses.

The third question I knew the audience was pondering was: "How can we pay for this?" I was ready with a properly endorsed plan for a $2,000,000 bond issue, repayable over 20 years. It would add to the town budget only $150,000 a year for interest and amortization.

For a man with a $25,000 house this figured out to only $15 a year more in taxes. Others would pay proportionately.

So much for the cost of acquisition. The operating expenses were another matter. We had guesstimated that the club would cost somewhat more than $200,000 a year to run. This included salaries, upkeep, repairs and supplies, utilities, and minor items. However, by our calculations, the income from the sale of family-admission windshield stickers, golf permits and greens fees, tennis permits and fees, rentals, income from restaurants and bars, and other sources, would probably fully pay these annual running expenses.

ANYWAY, it was my belief and that of my committee that the town could well afford to treat itself to Longshore and could comfortably pay for it. I also pointed out that it was time that the Westport father got a break. He worked hard, sweated much, took a round trip of 100 miles a day for the privilege, and richly deserved a little golf or tennis if he could squeeze it in.

After very few objections, the meeting, in solemn conclave assembled, voted 38 to 0 to buy Longshore.

All of us took it as a great triumph and the pay-off of months of hard work. My wife and I had delayed leaving until that very night for a Caribbean vacation. We'd packed the car with our bags, hired an off-duty patrolman to drive us to the airport, kissed the family, put out the cat, and gone to the meeting. Accordingly, after the vote was announced and the entire assemblage rose to applaud its own magnificent decision, we strode up the aisle, through the lobby and into the car, whose door was being held by the cop.

My work, though, was really just starting. Selectman Baldwin asked me to stay on and head up a committee to transform the club into a public park. Having already made so hefty an investment of hope and hard work, I agreed.

In February, I set to work with my trusty executive committee (I called them my Longshoremen) and seven other committees we put together—43 dedicated specialists in all. According to the purchase terms, we weren't taking title till April 14th. What's more, we couldn't set foot on the property until we did take title. At the same time, I was most anxious that we not miss the beautiful spring and summer season, the best, of course, for a club park in our location.

We set ourselves an opening date of May 20th, so we had about five weeks to do the job. In those five weeks we hired 34 people, wrote the public policies of the park, drafted all the regulations, set the admission and sports fees, and held public

An expert explains the fine points of making summer coolers and lighthearted apéritifs

Chill Your Glasses First

BY STUART LEVIN
Director of The Four Seasons Restaurant in New York

■ THE LONG, hot summer is the season of the long, cool drink, and with just a little imagination anyone can come up with an array of drinks, coolly colorful and delicately flavored, as refreshing to eye as they are to the palate. One of the easiest ways of giving an original look to even the most classic drink is by varying the glass you serve it in. Instead of using the standard highball glass, try red or white wine goblets, tulip champagne glasses, or even pilsner glasses. Frost glasses ahead of time by wetting them and placing them in your freezer for about an hour before you mix and serve the drink, and for an extra icy touch, dip the wet rims in finely powdered sugar before freezing them. Since sugar dissolves slowly in cold liquids, it's advisable to sweeten sweet drinks with a simple sirup made by boiling two parts water to one part sugar for two minutes. The sirup can be bottled and stored in the refrigerator until you're ready to use it. Or for added fruit flavor, sweeten drinks with the sirup drained from canned fruits. Garnish your drinks with slices of citrus fruits or with corkscrew curls of peel cut from limes, lemons, or oranges. Sticks of fresh fruit such as pineapple, mint leaves frosted with sugar, maraschino cherries (red or green), and slices of cool cucumber are other final touches exceptionally well-suited to summer coolers. And to achieve the kind of professional look you see in the drinks opposite, prepared at the Four Seasons, you'll find an electric blender and ice chopper invaluable aids. To make the assortment complete, we've planned some of these drinks as apéritifs, others as after-dinner coolers, but all are guaranteed to revive wilting spirits and calm heat-frayed nerves.

Summer Glow –Top to Toes

Anoint yourself lightly and completely with dewy lubricants and tanning aids—and bask to your heart's content

BY BARBARA ELLIS
Beauty Editor

YOUR HAIR, skin, and face need extra care now to prevent punishment from sun and water. Here, from top to toes, are a few simple tips for protecting the outdoor girl.

Starting from the top: Overdoses of bright sun will deplete natural oils and make the hair streaked, strawlike, and brittle. Protect it with a light, airy kerchief (heavy, tightly tied ones block ventilation), a pretty beach hat, or a good hairdressing or conditioning cream which acts like a moisture screen to help keep the hair from drying. Brush daily and always have brittle ends trimmed before a new permanent. Be sure to rinse hair after swimming to rid it of any residue of chemicals, salt stickiness, or sand. Use the lighter sprays, and even these sparingly. A lanolin-based or other nondrying type will help condition your hair as well as keep it neatly in place during romps on the beach. Always keep tinted hair covered on the beach. The sun can lift color several shades—and please, never swim in a pool without a cap. Pool chemicals can pale tinted hair greenish.

Your face, though free from winter's heavy make-up and glowing with the beginnings of a heavenly tan, still needs a lot of looking after. For a bloom, not a burn, don't go into the sun without first applying a sun-tanning preparation. Any of the good oils, solutions, lotions, or creams will do the trick. Their effectiveness in protecting your skin and giving you a pretty tan depends on just how much sun-screening agent they contain, and the amount you apply. For you who love the out-of-doors but can't take sun, there are sun-block preparations which stop all the ultraviolet rays.

The eye area, the dryest and most delicate of your whole face, must be protected at all times from bright sun. To avoid squint lines and sun puffing, pick good quality sunglasses with lenses that give ample coverage. You might look into some of the enormous new wraparounds that will protect you, come what may. Also, lubricate your eye area well—and regularly—with a rich eye cream. Another important summer beauty accessory is lip pomade, which should be worn under an ample application of creamy lipstick (or all by itself) while you are sunbathing.

Whenever you're out in the sun for more than a few minutes, go over all exposed areas with a good sun-tanning preparation—you need complete and thorough coverage for an even tan. Reapply it every few hours to make up for dissipation by sand and water. Remember that those sensitive and most exposed areas of your body need more frequent application of tanning aids: forehead, tip of nose and shoulders, top of cheekbones, top of feet, and back of neck. Watch out you don't get an overdose of sun when it's at its strongest (between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.); even a big beach hat or umbrella won't protect you from the reflected glare of sun on water—and don't be fooled by a hazy day. The sun can burn through haze.

Jamison

For a bloom, not a burn—combine full exposure to the delicious dangerous sun with an invisible mask of lubricants.

WHEN YOU'VE COME in from a day in the sun, use a body lubricant to further counteract drying effects. Slather it on; it will help, and it'll make you feel good, too. And, to look like an outdoor girl instead of a paleface while you're starting your tan, try one of the tinted sun-tanning aids.

Your feet, mostly bare right now, or in the merest suggestion of a sandal, take their greatest punishment in the summer. To counteract dryness and improve your summer foot complexion, lubricate your feet with an application of baby oil or a rich hand or body cream. Massage it deeply into the insteps, soles, heels, even the surface around toenails. Leave it on to work overtime at calluses and "pump bumps."

Sun and air and wind and water can do wonders for you —but not without the fragrant, soothing aids that lie, literally, at your fingertips.

Hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

With summer days showing longer rays, tanning sessions are in order for sun-bathing beauties. Suggestions for the soft-skinned set:

- Timely tip. Start with two minutes the first day, divided between topside and backside. Increase by two minutes each day. Limit exposure to 30 minutes no matter how tan you think baby is.
- Position counts. When baby's on his back, the top of his head should be toward the sun, eyes away from direct sunlight. A pad on dry ground is preferable to baby's carriage.

Summer appetites usually rise to every mealtime occasion when you serve foods that look good and taste good. Easy as 1-2-3 with Gerber Strained Foods. Colors are delightful . . . flavors delectable. All due to the special Gerber methods of preparation. Fruits, vegetables, meats, high meat dinners, vegetable-meat combinations and desserts make up the luscious list. When served in wide variety they provide your baby with the well-rounded nourishment he needs.

Summertime or any time, babies need protein for strength, growth and muscle development. Tasty ways to give your baby protein: Gerber High Meat Dinners. Lots of savory meat is subtly blended with garden-good vegetables for wonderful flavor and a goodly variety of nourishing food values.

Duo of cooler-offers for cherubs. You can't beat the heat completely but you can take some of the swelter out of summer. (1) A nursery shaded against morning sun will be cooler for that afternoon nap. (2) After naptime, a cooling sip of a Gerber Fruit Juice will help chase away heat and post-nap blues.

Note from Dan Gerber. According to nutritionists your baby needs all the essential amino acids (supplied by high quality proteins) to maintain a normal growth pattern. Gerber High Protein Cereal is a good example of a food which provides these amino acids. In developing this special cereal our research staff spent many months studying the protein values of various ingredients. Those selected offered a good balance of protein factors.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

Want to combine a good

Saint Andrews, Kasumigaseki

ONE THING about golfers—they make the most happy travelers if they can just find a championship course at a safe distance from the guidebooks, museums, and monuments. And what courses you can find, right outside most of the world's great cities!

It's only fair to warn you that, while some of these courses are public, many are not, so you should go prepared with a letter of introduction from your club manager or a handicap certificate to make sure you get all the courtesies of a club.

If you're going to Scotland, you will undoubtedly want to try St. Andrews, the oldest and still one of the toughest of all courses. With the wind changing direction about every half hour, this course calls for ingenuity, and you'll soon understand why great golfers can never forget bunkers such as the Principal's Nose and Ginger Beer and The Coffin (originally carved out by sheep huddling against the dunes to get out of the biting wind).

On the other side of the world, Kasumigaseki, Japan's finest, is 40 miles from Tokyo and has some of the most formidable traps in the world, as well as pretty (and rugged) girl caddies, and two fairways—one for summer and one for winter.

Along the same route, you should go a round at the Royal Hong Kong Club, if only to claim, when you're back among your cronies, that you sliced one off towards trip with some golf?

Gavea, and Are Waiting

One of man's last refuges, at Scotland's renowned St. Andrews, the clubhouse which no woman enters.

Red China (three and a half miles away, across the 17th hole). Founded in 1889, the club is reminiscent of much that was charming about 19th-century sport. Witness the two clubhouses (one for men and one for women), the antique dues of $5 a month, the cows grazing across the greens, and the pagoda for refreshments at the 10th tee.

If you're touring Canada, detour long enough for a game in the Rockies, at Banff Springs. The views of glaciers, mountains, lakes, and forests that greet you at each tee are magnificent.

No golfer's trip to Rio de Janeiro would be complete without a visit to Gavea, set between the mountains and the sea, 10 miles from Copacabana Beach. Gavea, also the name of the mountain, means "crow's nest" and sports nine holes up and over the foothills, five holes along the ocean, and the last four back into the hills.

To mention but a few of the loveliest courses in Europe—Saint-Cloud, a half hour from Paris, is a gentle park course set among large old trees with a wide-verandaed clubhouse that is the rendezvous of many of the fashionable international set. In Lisbon, you can play at Estoril most of the year, though the favorite months are from September to May, a real boon to the inveterate player. Estoril has grand views of gardens, villas, mountains, and the sea. In Belgium, the Royal Antwerp is still outstanding—and tough.

Until recently Italians didn't go in much for the sport, but now you will find several links near Rome. The newest and most spectacular is Olgiata, 15 miles out, where the fairways sweep around close to Etruscan ruins. Up the coast at St. Remo, you can play at Gli Ulivi, named after the impressive, classic olive trees that dot the course.

As you see, there's no reason in the world why a man must miss his golf, just because his wife wants to take a trip abroad.

A Maine Guide Looks at

Don't rough it any more then you have to, is this

Your tent is your most vital item. Don't skimp on it.

DURING the next few weeks millions of families from the cities and suburbs will take to the woods and get away from their daily routine by engaging in one of our fastest-growing national pastimes—camping.

Most of these families will enjoy themselves and will return home refreshed. But let me make one prediction. Thousands will be just plain miserable. They'll spend most of their waking hours doing their daily chores the hard way.

There's really no reason for such a struggle. After all, vacations are for rest and recreation. Most of the problems the suburban Daniel Boone will encounter can be solved by applying a standard backwoods commodity—common sense. A well-thought-out plan before you leave home, plus the right equipment, will save you time and work.

Shelter: The most basic piece of equipment is the tent. Your choice will naturally depend on the size of your family as well as the size of your budget. Actually, any tent you buy will have to be a compromise. My family of four use a 9′ x 12′ umbrella tent. This allows us each 27 square feet of floor space—a good average area. But even this is a compromise with us. My daughter and wife sleep on cots while my son and I use sleeping bags on the ground. During the day the sleeping bags are rolled under the cots to allow use of the floor area for other purposes. On a hiking or canoe trip, however, this tent would be too large and too heavy to be carried easily.

Whatever your choice, buy the best you can afford even if you have to forego other equipment. You can always add the luxury items later.

The campfire: Even with today's modern camping stoves, the ability to build a campfire is almost indispensable. There are certain blessings of wood fires that the best mechanical equipment cannot provide. A gasoline stove can't dry clothing, it can't heat an open tent and, most important, it's less cheerful than a campfire.

Woodsmen generally agree that the best tinder is the bark of the white birch. It burns readily because of its oil content. Peeling the bark won't kill a tree but it will disfigure it. Always try to locate a dead birch or a fallen tree trunk or branch. When you've gathered kindling and tinder, the secret of starting the fire is to keep the weight of the kindling from crushing the tinder. If air cannot reach the tinder, you'll have no fire. This is the source of trouble for many fire builders.

Entertain Outdoors . . . with Stereo All Around

A friend or two in lawn chairs, aromas from the grill . . . hushed dining music in the background encloses your intimate group, shuts out traffic or other noises. Or, have room for a ball . . . neighbors over for dancing and gaiety . . . your V-M portable covers the patio and surroundings with live-sounding stereophonic music. In the house, too, V-M stereo adapts to your desires.

Deluxe Portable Stereophonic Phonograph, Model 316 Here is sound quality that defies comparison. Four speakers in twin enclosures offer up to 32′ stereo separation. Complete, convenient controls; V-M 'Stere-O-Matic'® 4-speed automatic record changer has diamond LP needle, Brawny brown case.

SUMMER CAMPERS

veteran woodsman's advice

BY BILL RIVIERE

Director of the Maine School of Camping, author of "The Camper's Bible"

Never build a larger fire than you need. Always clear away pine needles, twigs, and litter from the fire area, and when the fire is built never leave it untended. When you've finished with your fire, put it out completely.

Stoves: While it's true that no stove can replace a campfire for cheeriness and warmth, a modern camp stove is as efficient and almost as easy to use as a new kitchen range, and it's essential for bad weather. Probably more gasoline-burning stoves are sold than any other kind. Next in popularity are stoves burning pressurized LP (liquid petroleum) or propane gas. For general camping, the two- and three-burner models are ideal.

Cooking in camp: On a car camping trip your choice of foods is limited only by your ability as a cook around a campfire or a camp stove. Preparing a list of supplies for a week's camping trip is not much different from doing a week's shopping at your local supermarket.

There's no good reason why meals shouldn't be as good in camp as at home. If you keep your menus simple, you'll find food served out-of-doors takes on a new flavor. There are many good cookbooks for campers available at most local libraries.

New campers often make the mistake of bringing into camp household utensils that aren't suitable for cooking outside the house. After a couple of weeks in camp they're no longer fit for use. Thin aluminum gets dented, wooden handles are charred, pots are blackened, glass units are cracked and chipped. It's better, and more economical, to buy utensils designed especially for camp use.

Wide-bottomed coffeepots, camp broilers, cast-iron Dutch ovens, long-handled griddles and frying pans are usually carried in stock by your local camping-equipment dealer or hardware store.

Sleeping gear: The camp cot is a basic item of sleeping gear. It should be collapsible, of course, but don't buy a cheap one lest it collapse when it shouldn't. In buying a cot, be sure that all the joints and hinges are well-reinforced and that all rivets are tight. Cots are luxuries, but if there's room in your car or trailer take one along for each camper. It makes camping more pleasant if you don't have to sleep on the ground.

A camp cot is a cold bed unless you have as much insulation under you as above. Worn-out blankets discarded from home use are never "good enough for camping." If your budget won't allow for a summer sleeping bag remember that a worn blanket won't provide you with much insulation. If you must take blankets from home, take the best you own, even at the risk of soiling them. They can always be dry cleaned.

A final bit of advice: Don't expect perfection of yourself as a camper. Take it easy and you'll have a great time.

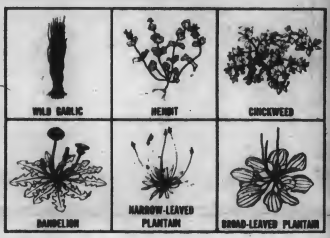

Some lumber-company woodlands, as well as national and state parks, provide camp sites.

A sizzling Marinated Black Pepper Steak, Fiesta Kabobs, Double-Treat Frank-Burgers, and Tomat

Chef's Note: Cooking times and distances from coals in these recipes are given only as a guide. The final judgment must be that of the outdoor chef and will vary with the type of grill, the intensity of the heat, and the direction of the wind.

MARINATED BLACK PEPPER STEAK

The amount of crushed peppercorns used on this steak depends entirely on personal taste. As a guide, try two teaspoonfuls for each side of a large steak.

Purchase a sirloin steak, cut 1½ to 2 in. thick. (Allow ¾ to 1 lb. per person.) Put steak in a large, shallow pan and cover with Steak Marinade; allow to marinate several hours or overnight, turning occasionally. Before grilling, remove steak from marinade and press coarsely crushed peppercorns liberally into both sides of steak. Grill 3 to 4 in. from coals, allowing about 15 min. for total grilling time; turn once. Test doneness by slitting meat near bone and noting color of meat. To serve, cut steak diagonally into thin slices.

STEAK MARINADE

TO PREPARE: 10 MIN.

- 1 cup red wine vinegar
- ½ cup salad oil
- ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- Few drops Tabasco
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon marjoram
- ¼ teaspoon rosemary
- 2 large onions, thinly sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced

Combine all ingredients and mix well to blend.

About 2 cups marinade

FIESTA KABOBS

Thread on 12-in. skewers cherry tomatoes, 1-in. slices of zucchini, cooked small whole onions, pimiento-stuffed olives, carrot strips (marinated in dill pickle juice), artichoke hearts, green pepper squares, and large whole mushrooms. (See photo.) Grill about 3 in. from coals until lightly browned, brushing with French dressing.

PEAS IN FOIL PACKETS

TO PREPARE: 10 MIN. TO GRILL: 35 MIN.

- 2 10-oz. pkgs. frozen peas, slightly thawed
- 1 cup thinly sliced green onion with tops
- ½ lb. fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced lengthwise through stems and caps, or use small whole mushrooms
- 2 teaspoons celery seed
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Put peas, onion, and mushrooms onto center of a large square of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Break peas apart, if necessary.

2. Sprinkle a mixture of celery seed, sugar, salt, and pepper over peas and dot with butter. Bring foil up over peas and seal tightly.

3. Place packet on grill about 5 in. from coals and cook about 35 min., or until peas are just tender; turn packet over once during cooking.

About 10 servings

toes in Foil will satisfy hearty outdoor appetites.

GRILLED SHRIMP IN A BASKET

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN. TO GRILL: 5-6 MIN.

2 lbs. (about 24) jumbo-sized shrimp or prawns, fresh or thawed frozen
1 cup olive oil
½ cup lemon juice
⅛ cup soy sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
4 teaspoons crushed tarragon
½ teaspoon chervil
¼ teaspoon basil

1. Using scissors, cut through shell at the back of each raw shrimp; remove the black vein. Rinse shrimp with shells thoroughly; drain on absorbent paper. Put the shrimp into a large bowl.

2. Blend remaining ingredients together and pour over shrimp. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hrs., tossing shrimp often to coat.

3. Arrange shrimp in a basket broiler. Grill about 3 in. from coals until shells are slightly charred. Turn broiler and grill shrimp several minutes longer. Serve immediately. About 6 servings

Note: If serving shrimp as an entrée instead of as an appetizer, increase number of shrimp per serving.

DOUBLE-TREAT FRANK-BURGERS

TO PREPARE: 10 MIN. TO GRILL: 10-15 MIN.

2 lbs. ground beef
2 teaspoons salt
Black pepper
2 tablespoons catsup
6 frankfurters, cut in halves lengthwise
6 ½-in. strips Cheddar cheese
3 dill pickles, cut in quarters lengthwise
French dressing

1. Combine first four ingredients; mix lightly. Form into twelve flat patties of equal size.

2. Place two frankfurter halves, cut sides down, on each of six patties; place a strip of cheese and two pickle strips between the frankfurter halves. (See photo.) Top with remaining patties.

3. Place frank-burgers in a basket broiler. Grill about 3 in. from coals 10 to 15 min., frequently turning and brushing with French dressing. 6 servings

SWISS CHEESE FONDUE

Traditionally a Swiss after-skiing supper dish, cheese fondue, eaten bubbly hot from the grill or hibachi, can be a fun kind of appetizer with the convivial spirit of outdoor eating. Each guest spears on his fork a bite-sized piece of bread (through the soft side and securely into the crust), dips it into the fondue, stirs around the pot once or twice, lifts it out with a twirling motion . . . and eats! To keep the fondue at proper consistency, someone should be stirring at all times and scraping the bottom with the crust of his bread. According to Swiss tradition, a lady who loses her bread in the fondue forfeits a kiss; a gentleman who loses his piece buys a bottle of wine.

TO PREPARE: 10 MIN. TO COOK: 15-20 MIN.

1 1-lb. loaf French bread
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons kirsch
1 clove garlic, cut in half
2 cups dry white wine
1 lb. natural Swiss cheese, shredded (4 cups)
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
⅛ teaspoon black pepper

1. Cut bread into bite-sized pieces having at least one crusty side; set aside.

2. Mix cornstarch and kirsch together in a small bowl and set aside.

3. Rub inside of a 2-qt. flame-resistant casserole or porcelain-finish saucepan with cut surface of garlic. Pour in the wine and heat on a hibachi or grill, about 2 to 3 in. from coals, until wine is about to simmer. (Do not boil.)

4. Combine the shredded cheese and a mixture of the next three ingredients; add in small amounts to the hot wine, stirring constantly until cheese is melted after each addition.

5. Blend in the cornstarch mixture and continue stirring while cooking 5 min. longer, or until fondue begins to bubble.

6. Spear bread on forks to use for dipping. Keep the fondue gently bubbling throughout serving time. About 10 servings

½ cup chopped green onion including tops
1 teaspoon basil, crushed
1 teaspoon tarragon, crushed
1 clove garlic, crushed in a garlic press

1. Cut tomatoes crosswise into halves. Sprinkle cut surface of each tomato half generously with salt and pepper; top each with 1 teaspoon butter.

2. Mix remaining ingredients and mound equally on each tomato half. Set four tomatoes on each of two large pieces of heavy-duty aluminum foil; wrap and seal tightly. Grill 3 in. from coals about 10 min., or until just tender. 8 servings

Note: To seal packets tightly, bring lengthwise sides of foil together above mixture; turn edges under in 1-in. folds. Seal ends with a double fold.

ROCK-LOBSTER TAILS WITH ORANGE-BUTTER SAUCE

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO GRILL: ABOUT 10 MIN.

- 1 6-oz. can frozen orange-juice concentrate, thawed
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon rosemary
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon celery salt
- ½ teaspoon grated onion
- ¼ teaspoon Angostura aromatic bitters
- 1 tablespoon snipped parsley
- ½ cup butter
- 12 frozen South African rock-lobster tails, thawed (2 1½-lb. pkgs.)

1. Combine orange-juice concentrate and next seven ingredients in a saucepan. Heat slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to boiling; boil 1 min. Stir in parsley and set aside.

2. When ready to grill, melt butter in a small saucepan over coals. Add seasoned juice, stirring until thoroughly blended.

3. Slit thin underside membrane of each lobster tail down center and peel open. Insert tails on prongs of a barbecue stand or thread on long skewers. If laid flat on grill, grasp tail in both hands and bend backwards toward shell side to crack sharply in several places. This prevents curling during cooking.

4. Place tails, shell side down, on grill about 4 in. from coals for 5 min., brushing occasionally with butter sauce.

5. Turn tails and grill 5 min. longer, or until meat is opaque and creamy white. Serve with remaining sauce. 6 servings

GINGER CHICKEN

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN. TO GRILL: ABOUT 30 MIN.

- 1½ cups honey
- ½ cup currant jelly
- ½ cup finely chopped preserved ginger
- 6 cloves garlic, crushed in a garlic press
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco
- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, 2¼ to 2½ lbs. each, ready-to-cook weight, quartered

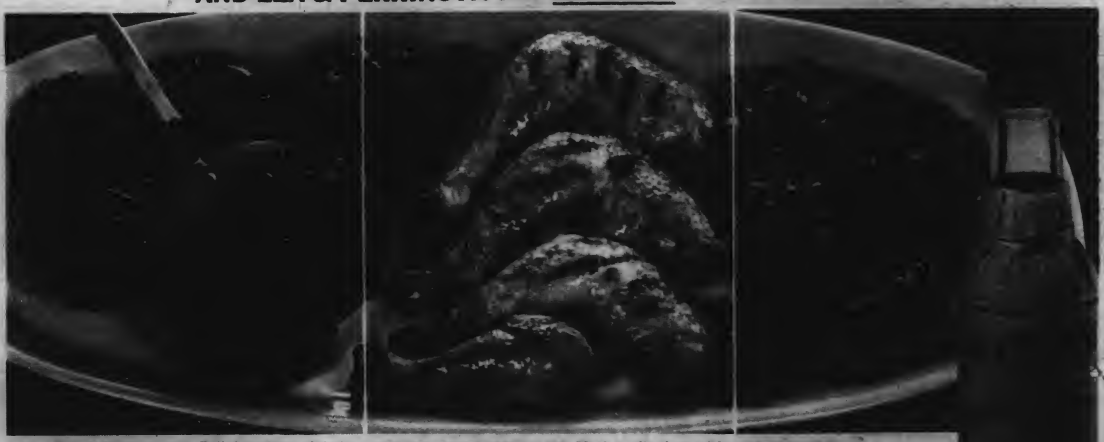

1. Combine first six ingredients in a saucepan; heat, stirring occasionally, until jelly is melted. Remove from heat.

2. Place chicken quarters on greased grill. Brush with sauce. Grill 8 in. from source of heat about 30 min., turning and brushing with sauce every 5 min. until chicken tests done. 8 servings

Note: If this sauce is made in advance and stored, the flavors will intensify.

Happy Is the Bride the Sun Shines on

A garden wedding is all romance—on a firm foundation of common sense

author of "The Modern Bride Book of Etiquette and Entertaining"

IF YOU WANT a picturesque garden wedding, and if you live in a reliable climate, you can proceed lightheartedly with your plans. Even if your climate is unpredictable, a garden wedding can still be yours, as we shall see.

Supposing you have the advantage of a reliable climate, the first thing to do is to choose the spot for the altar. A large and handsome tree might form the setting, or a tall hedge, a stone wall edged with blossoming plants, an arbor at the end of a grassy vista, or a mass of flowering shrubs. Whatever you decide, choose a spot where the sun will not shine in the eyes of the guests and where there is adequate lawn space to accommodate them. If there is no ideal spot for an altar convenient to the necessary lawn area, an arbor, twined with green vines, may easily be erected.

You will need a table covered with a white cloth to serve as a temporary altar and a kneeling bench with white cushions. Your clergyman will advise you as to what other accessories may be needed for the service of your faith.

It is often advisable to have a heavy white canvas runner to form an aisle for the processional. But be sure that it is firmly stretched in place. At a wedding I went to last summer, the runner was not anchored and bridesmaids and bride made a wobbly approach as their heels caught in the loose canvas. One other point—be sure that there is a firm surface for the wedding party in front of the altar. Nothing undermines dignity like the feeling that one is gradually tipping over backward as spike heels sink in soft and clinging ground.

The sun shines on a simple lighthearted wedding dress—no cathedral trains and cutaways for a service in a summer garden.

If your garden is not looking its very best at the time set for the wedding, don't despair. Flowering plants in pots can be sunk in the flower beds to create a fine display of foliage and color.

If the lawn is large enough, folding chairs may be set out in rows for the guests, leaving an aisle in the center. When chairs are provided, the procedure is exactly the same as in a church, with the ushers conducting guests to their places.

When there are no chairs, the guests simply stand where they choose, leaving the area nearest the altar for the families and close friends of the bridal couple. Of course, when the guests are not to be seated, the function of the ushers is purely honorary—and decorative!

After the ceremony, when the bridegroom has kissed his bride, the couple turn toward the guests and receive their good wishes where they were married. The ushers and the best man withdraw, leaving only the bride's attendants to form the receiving line. For this reason, it is important to plan beforehand so that the bridesmaids may turn where they stand without any hasty shuffling of places.

AT A GARDEN WEDDING the bride's mother, with the bridegroom's mother beside her, has greeted the guests as they arrive, and thus no parents' receiving line is necessary. However, the four parents will naturally stand near the bridal party and speak to friends as they approach the receiving line.

What will you wear? Because cathedral trains are not only unwieldy but also too formal for house or garden weddings, you will probably wish to wear a gown with a short train or with none at all—in other words, ballerina length. And as the style of your gown determines what all the rest of the wedding party will wear, your bridegroom and his attendants will either be in striped trousers and Oxford gray jackets, or dark business suits. If the weather is really warm, they may wear gray worsted trousers and white linen jackets, or all-white tropical-worsted suits.

Incidentally, if you are going to have a face veil, let me tell you of a garden wedding at which, just as the maid of honor had lifted the young bride's veil and the bride turned to receive her husband's kiss, a breeze blew the veil back over her face. She again turned to her maid of honor and again the breeze was uncooperative. This happened three times before the frustrated bridegroom was able to kiss his bride.

Had she had a single row of fine pearl beading to weight the edge of the veil, this contretemps could have been avoided.

The lesson of the face veil applies also to tablecloths. Be sure that weights are invisibly stitched to the hems so that they will not blow about.

IT IS ESSENTIAL, even in the smallest garden, to have seats for elderly guests who would find standing too tiring. In addition, and depending upon the number of guests, there must be at least two large serving tables—one for food and one for punch or champagne or whatever beverage is to be served, with attendants to replenish supplies. All that is necessary is a beverage, little sandwiches, and small cakes, although a complete wedding breakfast may be served if everyone is seated.

Where rain is a possibility, you must of course plan an alternate place for the ceremony. Because gardens usually accommodate more guests than houses do, one good alternative is to have the service on a covered terrace or porch with a large connecting marquee on the adjoining lawn to protect the guests.

Even in rainless climates such a marquee can be useful for shade or as a windbreak. At my daughter's wedding which took place in July, we had had no rain since April and were gloomily certain that it would rain on the day. We therefore had a canopy erected over our westward-facing terrace. Although it fortunately did not rain, the sun shone with its usual ferocity, and the shade of the canopy was most welcome.

Of course, as you may know, you can insure against rain at a moderate premium, if you wish, thus obtaining some small solace.

Music at a garden wedding may consist of a single accordionist or, in addition, you may wish to have a violinist and perhaps a guitarist. If the ceremony is to be performed indoors with a garden reception to follow, the accordionist can double on the piano and then take up his accordion.

When dancing is planned for the reception, you may have a temporary dance floor laid in the garden, and then you will want a good three-piece orchestra—piano, violin, and drums, for example. Small pianos may be rented for this purpose if your own is unwieldy.

Whether the wedding is small, or large and fairly formal, you may be sure that if it is held in a garden, it will be long remembered.

The Great Outdoorsman

BY EDWARD STREETER

THE OTHER DAY, I was puttering about in my library. Several of my nephews and nieces were sitting on the terrace beneath the window, and I overheard one of them say, "I never saw anyone who knew so much about sports and outdoor things as Uncle Jeff," and my oldest niece said, "Of course. He was a terrific athlete. The whole family was, but I don't think any of them did as many things as Uncle Jeff. He seems to have been good at everything." Then another said, "The family must have been proud of him."

I felt a warm glow of contentment creep over me such as I had never known before. These words were an acknowledgement of something I had striven for all my life. I decided right then and there to write my autobiography.

These rough preliminary notes will serve, I hope, to pull the threads together until I have time to expand them into a more definitive work.

My name is Jeffrey Bottomly. I am 70 years old and of approximately sound mind and body. I was the youngest of five children. We came from a long line of athletes dating back to Thomas a Bottomly of Bottomly-on-Thames, who was said to have been the most skilled horseman and jouster in the British Isles.

Be that as it may, my immediate family was obsessed with the conviction that the Bottomlys were a race of champions and that their chief reason for being was to maintain this centuries-old tradition.

From the time that I learned to walk, this responsibility was impressed upon me daily. Father and Mother, my uncles and my aunts and my four brothers were always winning cups. Our home looked like a trophy room. There wasn't anything that someone wasn't good at—except, unfortunately, me. Even in the first grade I was a complete flop at such sports as musical chairs and pinning the tail on the donkey.

This was, of course, deeply humiliating to my family. I don't think they were ever quite sure that I was not just being perverse. Everything came so easy to them. My oldest brother John, for example, was captain of the Yale football team, and my Uncle Alcott was captain of the Princeton team in the same year. It was taken for granted that they would be.

John and Alcott were really the best of friends, but the first time they met on the football field during a Yale-Princeton game John caused Alcott to be carried off on a stretcher. The following year, during the second quarter, John went off in the same manner due to Alcott, and on the occasion of their final meeting they performed the remarkable feat of knocking each other out simultaneously and being carried off side by side amidst thundering applause from the stands. I merely mention this to indicate their dedication to family tradition.

My brother Bertram was a track man. When I was quite young, Father took me to see him run the mile. Bert lost a shoe at the quarter mark and broke the intercollegiate record with one bare foot. I remember my father tugging at his mustache excitedly and crying, "That lad could run with one foot behind his back."

Harold and Donald, my two younger brothers, were what you might call general-purpose athletes. They just went around the country winning tournaments. It didn't make much difference to them what they were.

When my parents discovered that at the age of seven I couldn't catch a baseball without endangering the expensive braces on my teeth, there was considerable talk about sending me to a sanitarium. My mother, however, was against it. If I was crazy, she said, I was crazy. Mother was very practical about such matters. "Let's try to build up his body and teach him what we can," she would say. "If that doesn't do any good . . ." At that point she would shrug in an ominous way.

After that, I had instructors in everything imaginable. They all admitted, subsequently, that I was hopeless, but at the time they wanted to hang onto their jobs so they kept telling Father and Mother that I showed great promise.

Nobody had time to check up on them. Father was what they used to call a traveling man in athletic supplies and Mother was usually rushing around the country attending golf tournaments. My brothers were away at school during most of this period, so that everybody more or less forgot all about me, including most of my instructors, and I enjoyed the happiest years of my childhood in consequence.

WHEN I WAS ABOUT 12, my father took me to some public courts to see how I was coming along in tennis, and I knocked two of his front teeth out with my racquet. It really wasn't my fault. He shouldn't have had his teeth where they were, but he never saw it that way, and that fall I was sent to Buxten's School for Boys.

Buxten's had the highest athletic standards of any school in the East. Father had a hard time getting me in. During the first year I battered myself up so much that I spent more time in the infirmary than I did in classes. The cost of this was borne by the school, and eventually they let me be editor of the school paper as an economy measure.

It almost killed Father when he heard about it. It did something to him, I'm afraid, because he never paid much attention to me after that, and a few years later he died.

My brothers were very nice about it. They never openly accused me of having been responsible for Father's death, but I could tell it was on their minds. I didn't see much of them because soon after that I went to college. They all hoped I would show some improvement there. I seemed doomed to disappoint them, though. I went out for the gymnastic team because that was about the only thing I hadn't tried, but the very first day I strained something in my back trying to open my locker. It really wasn't my fault. The door of the locker was so rusty that the coach of the gym team couldn't open it himself. Anyway, the doctor said the gym team would have to get on without me. That made me pretty blue, of course, knowing how my family was going to feel, and then the next thing I knew I made Phi Beta Kappa. That was the crowning blow. Mother took it very hard. My brothers did everything they could to comfort her. John told her it was just hard luck, and if I didn't wear the key people wouldn't know about it.

Mother died that summer, just after winning the Women's Open Golf Tournament of Upper Nassasoit Lake. Everyone said what a wonderful way to go. At the funeral the minister said she was one of the healthiest women he had ever buried.

When the estate was settled, I found that I had enough money to live in reasonable comfort, so I decided to devote my life seeking some outdoor sport in which I would be good enough not to disgrace the name of Bottomly.

I ruled out tennis and golf because I had already tried them, and they didn't seem suited to me. It wasn't so much a matter of hitting the ball—I could do that quite regularly and briskly. My difficulty was that I never knew where it was going.

This was particularly bad in the case of tennis because it gave my opponents very little chance to participate in the game, as a result of which I found it more and more difficult to find anybody to play with. In the case of golf it was the expense which eventually caused me to drop the game. The caddies never knew in which direction to look, and we lost a ball on almost every shot unless I was lucky enough to miss it entirely.

I WAS GETTING discouraged. I had been a miserable failure in everything I had tried to date. I used to spend my summers at various watering places on the south shore of Long Island, and it occurred to me that swimming might be an excellent sport on which to concentrate. It required only a few simple movements of the arms and legs. Once I had really mastered those I could enter swimming meets all over the country with an eye on the Olympics as my ultimate goal.

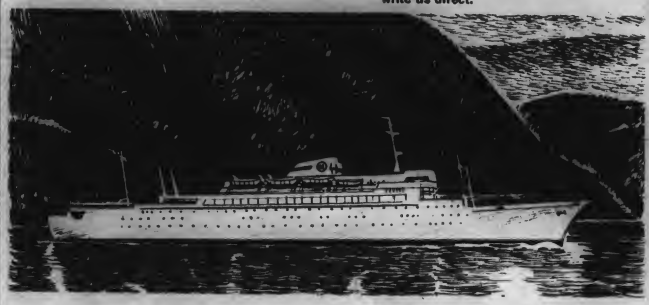

I found swimming difficult, so I employed the lifeguard to teach me the fine points. I don't believe he was a very good instructor, however, for although I finally learned to swim quite well I was never able to make any progress through the water, which is, of course, a very basic thing in swimming. I did discover an unusual technique, however, which enabled me to walk on the bottom by expelling all the breath from my body. It was quite sensational to see me calmly enter the ocean and disappear, at least it would have been if the lifeguard had not insisted on plunging after me and dragging me out each time. So I gave the whole thing up and took to floating.

I was good at floating. I seemed to be more buoyant than most people. On calm days I could clasp my hands behind my head and pretend that I was sleeping, which always astonished the bathers as my body was washed quietly among them.

Although I had failed at everything I tried, I had attempted so many things that I was beginning to establish a reputation as a sportsman. For instance, a friend invited me to go trout fishing in the Adirondacks although I warned him that I had never done it. He said, nonsense, that everybody fished for trout and that he knew a stream where you could scoop them out with your hands. We fished from a canoe. An evil-looking man with a soiled mustache did the paddling. My friend insisted that I sit in the bow and fish while he relaxed in the middle, which I did much against my better judgment.

On the first cast I removed the guide's hat with my hook, which he seemed to resent although I thought it was rather a neat trick. On the next try I hooked my friend in the back of the shirt. That seemed to make him restless, and we went ashore and changed places. This irritated me because he was the one who had insisted on my coming, and I never even got my line in the water.

In the fall of the year I used to be asked to shoot duck and quail and such things. I preferred to call it firing as I never really shot anything, which pleased me, since I am opposed to unnecessary slaughter.

I gave up duck shooting, however, when I blew a hole (quite accidentally, of course) in the bottom of the duck boat, causing my host and myself to sink into the waters of Chesapeake Bay. It wasn't much of a boat, but you might have thought it was the Queen Mary the way he took on about it. Some people are like that.

QUAIL HUNTING I enjoyed. The South Carolina woods are beautiful in the early spring. I liked walking behind the dogs, looking at the flowers and ferns and everything. When we put up a covey, it was fun to hear the whir of their wings and the shot spatter against the trees. I never saw the quail because they had learned to fly just along the line where one's reading lenses join one's distance lenses. Once I caught a glint of white, but it was just one of the dogs. You might have thought I'd killed him instead of nicking the end of his tail. Actually it pleased me because it proved that when I did see something I could hit it.

I had a dreadful experience with horses when I was invited to ride with the Bonebrake Hunt. We went looking for foxes in the woods, of all places. Thank heaven we didn't find one. It was hard enough to keep the branches out of my eyes just riding at a walk.

By and by, we came to a barbed-wire fence with a wooden gate in it. Did we open it the way any sensible person would? Of course not. Nothing would do but we must jump over it. That meant one at a time, of course, with everybody watching. I envied the hounds who could wriggle under.

The first man over had a red coat and a high hat. If clothes meant anything he was the best rider in the Hunt, but he almost fell off. The next was a woman. She had red hair and a derby and did fall off. I was next and managed to wrap my legs around the brute's neck and work my way back to the saddle. That seemed to be about par for the

A Remarkable New Eating Experience

Five authentic foreign foods in cans had convenience minded Americans raving this week. Never, they said, had anything so incredibly good come ready to heat and serve! The three fabled meat dishes and two noble soups labeled Famous Foods of the World were being whisked off grocery shelves across the country and heralded as "a milestone in the developments of canned meats." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

"Meat pieces are hefty and plentiful with a lavish portion of sauce", drooled the N.Y. Herald Tribune. "Low in cost, the cans of meat and chicken contain about three servings for less than a dollar," enthused The Miami News.

Drawing this praise were Italian Chicken Cacciatore—Breasts of chicken in tomato, herb and mushroom sauce. Swedish Köttbullar—Savory little meat balls in dill-spiced sour cream sauce. Beef Stroganoff—beef slices in sour cream laced with sherry in the Imperial Russian tradition. Spanish Garbanzo Bean Soup and traditional French Onion Soup.

Were the raves warranted? Best bet: Find out for yourself.

course because nobody paid any attention to this maneuver.

Before we came to another fence a very pleasant fellow rode up and said wasn't I bored to death and wouldn't I like to go back to his house and have a mint julep. I said I was and I would. He suggested we take a few jumps on the way home. I said I was so thirsty I thought we should go straight to his house, and that was the end of horses as far as I was concerned.

By this time, it was becoming obvious to me that I was more adapted to what you might call sedentary athletics. The most sedentary one I could think of was surf casting, so I bought an outfit and resolved that here was one sport I was going to master. I found, however, that every time I cast, one of two things happened: (a) the line got all snarled up in the reel, which meant that I had to sit on a log and spend the rest of the morning untangling it, or (b) the hook caught on the bottom, and I either had to swim out and free it (which I never saw anybody do), or I had to cut the line (which I never saw anybody do, either).

Then I realized that probably all the surf-casting Johnnies that I used to pass on the beach, standing there hour after hour like window dummies, were not fishing at all. They had caught their hooks on the bottom and were waiting for dark so they could cut their lines and go home to their families.

That seemed to me like a silly way to spend one's life. I talked to several friends, and one of them suggested bird watching. That seemed to fill the bill exactly, and I wondered why I had not thought of it before. My friend loaned me a book of bird pictures and field glasses.

I THINK I would have liked bird watching if it had not been for the fact that all the birds I saw looked like round gray balls. The fellow that wrote the book must have lived in another part of the country because all the birds he pictured had bright colors. I couldn't find any of the birds that I saw in it except sea gulls. I had just about decided to specialize in those because there are all kinds. Then one day I walked off the end of the dock and lost the glasses. The owner acted so unreasonably about it that I gave up the whole thing.

I had spent my life trying not to disgrace the family, but I just didn't seem to have what it takes. By this time, my four brothers were dead. John died of an enlarged heart; Bert, the runner, fell off his exercise machine and broke his neck; Harold and Donald both ruined their insides dieting and just faded away. There was no one left to uphold the Bottomly tradition except me.

So I said to hell with the great outdoors. From now on, I said, it's going to be just a place to sit in when the sun is shining. I have a steamer chair with a cushion on it and a table next to it for a Tom Collins and things like that. I have plenty of time to read now and some of the nephews and nieces are apt to drop in, so it is never lonely. They like to hear me talk about the old days and tell them about golf and tennis and fox hunting and shooting and fishing and swimming and all those things. It's good for my morale. It makes me feel young again and proud to have done my share in upholding the tradition of the Bottomlys.

hearings on them as required by law, set out signs, paved roads, doubled the parking spaces, and did some remodeling. We also cleaned up, refurbished and rented 11 summer cottages and several apartments. In spite of the lateness in the season, we found a park manager; we also found, by competitive bidding, a concessionaire ready to start right away to clean up and open the four restaurants and agreeable to stipulations that the Selectmen had to approve all menus and prices. It was vital to be sure there were always meals available in all price ranges.

In addition, we had to prepare budgets. What a job that was! How to budget all these varied activities when you couldn't imagine the traffic each was going to enjoy, the weather, the cost of the million things you knew you wanted and needed and the two million you didn't know about, and how much money the town fathers would actually approve?

In the end—don't ask me how—the jobs all got done, and only a very few overworked volunteers dropped by the wayside.

A prominent local decorator contributed her services and helped us to get curtain material and reupholstering at minimum prices. The Garden Club pitched in and beautified the grounds, and the Community Art Association lent pictures to adorn the walls. A greenhouse gave its finest.

AND ON MAY 20TH, golf play started, complete with golf house, score cards, course rules, pros, starters, rangers, and greenskeepers.

Eight days later we had public dedication ceremonies on the park lawn, featuring Fourth-of-July-type speeches by the Selectmen and other dignitaries. The high-school band played. The flag was raised, a tree was planted, and our club park was blessed with the prayers of three clergymen.

Once open, we inaugurated many extra activities. A special-events committee planned and ran heavily patronized free teen-age dances, square dances, track meets, field days, swimming meets, amateur theatricals, dances, wiener roasts, and marshmallow burnings.

People came, saw, liked what they saw—and said so. Kinds words are a help!

Don't misunderstand me, there's still a hard

How to identify and control lawn diseases

If your lawn doesn't look as healthy as it should, then it may have a fungus disease. Here's how you can recognize some of the more serious diseases — and what to do to get rid of them:

Rust shows as a small yellow-orange or red-brown spot or spore and will stain a cloth rubbed against the affected leaves and stems.

Brown Patch is a high-temperature, high-humidity disease. The damaged splotches have a "smoke ring" or dark halo.

Leafspot turns grass a bright yellow or develops yellow-brown leaf spots with darkened borders.

Prevention and eradication: Experts rely on specialized lawn chemicals such as ACTI-DIONE-THIRAM® and ACTI-DIONE RZ® developed by Upjohn. Use them regularly. They'll help prevent most fungus disease and bring even severe cases under control. Directions are easy to follow.

See your garden center specialist!

core of diehards who are against Longshore, and always will be.

But the $10 family sticker (now $12) is no longer a burning issue. The golf course that we thought had a capacity of no more than 375 has been known to handle as many as 420 people on a weekend day. The tennis courts have been jammed from the day they opened, and several more are to be built. Every mooring has been rented, and on the board are plans for a new marina for 500 to 1,000 boats.

The first year almost 50% of the total population of the Town of Westport applied for admission cards! The second season saw a big increase in that figure.

The main restaurant, which turns into a ballroom accommodating more than 600—the largest dining room in Fairfield County—has been a great success. Most of Westport's big functions, as well as those of the surrounding towns, are held here. And the concessionaire is making a profit and turning in a healthy contribution to the operating budget of the Park.

AMONG unexpected results, the Park is helping to attract better teachers to Westport, a manna for the fiercely competitive market in our section! (The Board of Education's recruiting brochure describes the club's facilities.)

Projected: a modern playground where kids can skate and ride their bikes and mothers can sit with their baby carriages. Also in prospect is a long addition to the sandy beach and another swimming pool.

Now for the $200,000 question I know is on your minds: "How did you do in the money department?" In Longshore's first year it made an almost unintentional operating profit of more than $14,000!

When we started this venture, we got in touch with the National Recreation Association to get the figures, policies, and other data of towns that had attempted to buy and transform a private club. We were told that the Association's records showed no precedent for such an undertaking. In fact, we were urged to tell the Association all about the idea and to let it know how we came out, as undoubtedly other towns would want to know.

It turns out NRA was right. Towns all over the area—and as far west as Utah—have been pressing for information and advice.

Our advice is always the same: do it by all means—if you have the strength!

Despite all his work, Longshore is actually a sparetime interest of the author. Julian Brodie is occupied full time as an executive of the Lawrence C. Gumbinner Advertising Agency in New York.

'Norwegian Lady'

Norway Sending New Statue of Old Shipwreck

VIRGINIA BEACH—A Radio Norway program director appeared before City Council Monday to present plans for the unveiling of the "Norwegian Lady," the statue to be sent from Moss, Norway to replace a deteriorated figurehead landmark.

Erik Bye of Oslo told Council the 9-foot bronze statue is nearly completed and should arrive here aboard the naval training ship Haakon VII sometime in September.

Moss will unveil an identical statue at the same time, Bye said.

May Be "Sister City"

Many other aspects appear to be mushrooming from Norway's good-will gesture. There is talk that Virginia Beach and Moss may become "sister cities" and a possibility that a local resident will be sent to Norway next summer as a Virginia Beach representative.

BYE

When the Norwegian Lady is unveiled here about Sept. 2 the event will be attended by Aase Nordmo Loevberg, the famous Norwegian opera singer, and a woman to be chosen by radio listeners in that country. She will probably have some connection with the sea, Bye said.

The new statue will be a replacement, not a replica, of the wooden figurehead from the Norwegian bark Diktator which sank off Virginia Beach in 1891 with heavy loss of life. The ship came from Moss. The day after the sinking, a figurehead was found on the beach and placed at 16th Street where it stood for many years before succumbing to the elements.

The story of the lost figurehead came to the attention of Capt. O. P. AAkenes, an assistant Naval Attache' to Washington, who has visited here many times. He wrote an article on it for a Norwegian shipping magazine.

The article was eventually sent to Bye, who produces a well-known martime show in Oslo. He was so interested in it that he took the article to Moss, about "an hour's drive" from Oslo, and talked to Mayor Emil Andersen.

The mayor called a meeting of city officials and merchants and immediately put into effect a plan to replace the lost figurehead. With private donations from the people of Moss, the city commissioned Ornulf Bast, Norway's top-ranking sculptor, to recreate the new statue. He visited museums all over the country, taking special note of figureheads of the Diktator's period, before getting the final figure.

Bast decided on a buxom-type woman clad in a vest and flowing dress of Norwegian tradition. Her left hand hangs limp at her side and her right is bent, clasping a lock of her shoulder-length hair.

"She looks out to sea as if waiting for someone," Bye said.

Moss is an old city of about 20,000 persons that greatly appreciates the value of tradition, Bye explained, yet is a progressive city where "things happen all the time." It is very proud and undertakes many beautification projects to promote its lovely parks.

"It is a city where most Americans would feel right at home," Bye said.

America is not new to Bye. Because of his work with the resistance movement during the war, he received a military scholarship to study the English language and journalism at Nebraska's Middland College for one year. He stayed on for six years, obtaining his BS degree in Nebraska, his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin and working on newspapers. He has been a radio producer since 1954.

Council Votes To Restrict Swimmers

VIRGINIA BEACH — City Council voted Monday to keep all boats out of the swimming area and to restrict swimmers from swimming more than 50 yards offshore.

The ordinance prohibits swimming outside an area extending 50 yards east from the high-tide water mark, and also prohibits boating within the area. The ban on swimming far out is "badly needed here," Councilman W. Hugh Kitchin Jr. commented

The councilmen also passed on second reading a $2,138,742.48 budget for 1962-63, which is an increase of $110,091.37 over the previous budget. The largest part of the budget increase is included in a $91,979 jump in the school operating fund. Previously, teachers have been paid on a 12-month basis. Now, in order to parallel the 10-month system in Princess Anne County, with which Virginia Beach will merge January 1, the resort system will be changed to a September-June pay period.

Other changes in the budget included a $16,000 increase in the special tax fund and a $2,112.37 increase in the general fund.

Wayside Park For P.A. County

PRINCESS ANNE — Mason Gamage, county planning director, announced last week that Princess Anne may receive its first wayside park.

The county school board originally obtained the land from the federal government for educational purposes. Since the State Highway Department decided to take part of the 18-acre site across Virginia 166 from Thoroughgood for a new four-lane highway between the bridge-tunnel and U.S. 13 at Diamond Springs, it was decided, said Gamage, that the site would be more ideal for a roadside park than for school purposes.

According to Gamage, the school board will have to decide if it no longer wants the land, and the federal government will have to approve the change before the development of the park is begun.

This roadside park could have, Gamage said, a one-story building with a tourist information center and several offices, swimming pool, tennis courts, and other recreational facilities.

C of C Group Meets Tuesday

VIRGINIA BEACH — The newly formed agriculture committee of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its first meeting for next week, it has been announced.

The agriculture group is scheduled to have a dinner-meeting at the Dunes Motor Hotel next Tuesday night. Meeting time has been set for 7:30 p.m.

The original committee was named recently by Albin R. Mailhes, Chamber president. It is expected that more committee members will be added later.

Serving as chairman of the committee is W. Clarke Fleming, general manager of Bayville Farms. Vice-chairman is Howard Jones, president of Tidewater Mushroom Farm.

Other members of the committee, in addition to Fleming and Jones, are R. P. Midgett, C. Roger Malbon, J. R. Haden, Capt. C. J. Lee, Keister Evans, Jr., A. S. Holloman, Jeb S. Ives, J. Curtis Payne, Ralph Lee Frost, John W. Potter, Robert H. DeFord Jr., and R. R. "Dick" Cockrell.

The committee already has several projects under consideration and these will be discussed at next week's meeting.

Music Festival Termed Start Of Something Big

VIRGINIA BEACH—"In three years you will have 5,000 to 6,000 people here and in five years you will have to limit the number of bands."

These were the words of Dr. Paul Yoder, one of three nationally known judges who were in Virginia Beach the past weekend for the first annual Virginia Beach Music Festival. He was referring to the fine start taken with the first festival.

Everyone agreed the first Virginia Beach Music Festival was a grand success and the beginning of a fine annual event.

Top place in this year's festival went to the Avondale High School band of Avondale Estates, Georgia. This 76-piece band won out in the final standings over runner-up Chilhowie, Virginia, and third place winner Vinson High School of Huntington, West Virginia.

The winning band directors were Eric R. Maddox for Avondale; James T. Hurt for Chilhowie; and James W. Hoy for Huntington.

Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce in association with Forbes Candies, plans are already underway for the second festival to be held next year.

Six bands competed in marching and concert competitions Thursday through Saturday.

The honor band was the tropical Knights Band of Hialeah, Fla. High School. The Knights' director Logan Turrentine was also executive director of the festival. The TK's opened the festival with a concert, played during festival activities and performed for enlisted personnel of the Norfolk Naval Base, Little Creek Amphibious Base and the Oceana Naval Air Station.

The TK's will return for the festival next year as will the winning Georgia band.

Three Men Rescued In Marooned Craft

VIRGINIA BEACH — Three men were rescued from a marooned sail craft Tuesday morning by a Navy helicopter about 13 miles northeast of the Cape Henry lighthouse after almost 14 hours afloat.

The search for the trio started about 9 a.m. Tuesday after they had been reported missing since launching the catamaran craft from the vicinity of 87th Street around 8 p.m. Monday.

The three men were R. C. McDaniel, 26, of 612 Rolfe Avenue, Norfolk; C. L. Hooper, 25, 2416 Baltic Ave., Va. Beach; and E. W. Dodson, 26, 119 Rolfe Lane, Bay Colony. All are affiliated with the Virginia Pilot Association.

Apparently the ship's sailmast broke, a Navy spokesman said, and the men were left adrift. They kept warm Monday night by wrapping up in the sail.

Pilot Donad L. Dudrow of 193 Linkhorn Rd., London Bridge, spotted the stricken craft and radioed its position to the Oceana Naval Air Station. Dudrow is with Attack Squadron 85.

The rescuing helicopter was manned by Lt. J. M. Bolton of 612 Cronin Rd., Birchwood Gardens; Lt. Cmdr. J. F. Kakol of 4235 Hewitt Dr., Norfolk; and Crewman G. A. Riffle, AD2.

At 9:45 a.m. the pick-up was made and the men flown to Oceana.

"Riffle mans the hoist that lifted the men out of the water," Bolton said, "and he made three nice pick-ups."

New City

Local Post Office May Triple Size Next January 1

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Post Office may triple in size when the new City of Virginia Beach goes into effect January 1 by absorbing six county post offices and incorporating sections of the county now served by Norfolk.

No official word on the change has been released, but general opinion indicates that the main office will be located in Virginia Beach while Princess Anne, Back Bay, Pungo, Pleasant Ridge, Munden and Bayside may possibly be converted to rural and carrier stations.

Mail Designated Norfolk

Norfolk presently serves about 15 to 20 per cent of the new City of Virginia Beach area, including such populated sections as Kempsville, Aragona Village and Diamond Lake Estates. All mail from these areas are postmarked Norfolk. If Virginia Beach incorporates the entire beach-county area postal service, all mail from the new city will bear the Virginia Beach postmark.

Under the normal civil service program, postmasters in the six outlying post offices would be absorbed in some capacity in the new set-up. They might lose the postmaster title, but would benefit in other ways.

Two years ago Virginia Beach absorbed the Lynnhaven, London Bridge and Oceana offices. Since that time the branches have enlarged and improved their services. Lynnhaven, when converted, had two carriers where it now has nine and expects to add three more in the next few months.

"When we became a branch," former London Bridge Postmaster Joe Murden said, "I cut my work hours down from 60 to 70 a week to a normal 40 hours in five days. The change has enabled us to give better service by putting on two routes. I have been very well pleased with my set-up."

Since such a change-over cannot be done overnight, many plans must necessarily be done in advance in anticipation of official word.

Re-Numbering System

Ross P. Wilds, assistant superintendent of the Seashore State Station, is now working with County Planning Commissioner F. Mason Gamage and his staff in re-numbering streets for the new city so that there will only be one change on January 1.

The system they are compiling can be utilized as a base for the new city in all future numbering.

If Virginia Beach is chosen as the central office, plans are also being made so that carriers will be stationed in the area in which they serve.

Sand Dune Work For Sandbridge Set to Begin

VIRGINIA BEACH — The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers have announced work will begin shortly on the replacement of sand dunes in the Sandbridge area.

Princess Anne County is presently obtaining right of entry from private property owners at Sandbridge for the replacement of the sand lost in the March 7 storm, stated a spokesman for the engineers.

According to Stanley Phillips, assistant commonwealth's attorney for the county, clearance has been obtained from more than 50 per cent of the property owners and he is very close to a sufficient number of agreements to satisfy the Army Engineers.

New Bulkhead Contract Is Let

VIRGINIA BEACH — City Manager W. Russell Hatchett announced Monday the C. W. Lockwood & Sons building firm of Hampton has been awarded a contract to build a bulkhead between 48th and 49th streets under the supervision of the Army Corps of Engineers after submitting the lowest bid.

Only two contractors were asked to bid on the contract. Lockwood's bid was $88 per lineal foot of bulkhead, and one

Wynne, Rueger Tennis Victors

VIRGINIA BEACH — Dubby Wynne breezed past defending champion Bill Braithwaite to capture the Junior title in the Virginia Beach Jaycee Tennis Tournament held here last week.

Wynne Braithwaite

Wynne, number one man on Norfolk Academy net squad, combined a steady backcourt game with a powerful serve to blast Braithwaite 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 in the finals of the 18-and-under division held on the Princess Anne Country Club courts.

Neither Wynne or Braithwaite were pushed in the semi-finals. Wynne downed Eric Reese 6-1, 6-0 and Braithwaite rolled over Bob Solomon by the same score.

In the Boy's Division, 16-years-and-under, Tommy Rueger defeated Dudley Cocke, Jr., 6-1, 6-3. Rueger had little difficulty in besting the field of over 20 entries, losing only five games in eight sets in the 4-round competition.

The Norfolk Academy sophomore downed Tim O'Denning of Princess Anne High 6-0, 6-0 in the semi-final round while Cocke, in the closest match of the last two rounds, edged Donnie Johnson 6-4, 6-4.

The two finalists in both the Junior and Boy's Division qualified for the State Jaycee Tournament which will be held July 16-18 at the Princess Anne Country Club.

Rueger Cocke

The Virginia Beach Jaycees will serve as hosts for the tournament, which will determine the best scholastic netters in the Old Dominion.

Aero-Pines Pro Busy Teacher At Oceana Club

JACK HARVEY

By GENE MOORE

OCEANA — A flick of the wrist, a shift of weight or an improper grip can mean the difference between a frustrating game of golf or one of pure pleasure.

Jack Harvey is just the man to make a golfer a player rather than a club-thrower.

The Aero-Pines golf pro has been instructing players for over 25 years and has gained wide recognition for his teaching ability.

Coming to this area a couple of months ago from Florida, Harvey has already made quite a name for himself among local golfers. The classes he conducts for both men and women at Aero-Pines are usually filled to capacity.

Harvey's teaching methods incorporate imagination with his outstanding knowledge of the sport and after one lesson a player may well find himself enjoying a presentable game.

Most of his students have been playing for some time, but a quiet comment from their instructor often shows them the way to knock several strokes off their game.

"You must have the right attitude about golf," he tells beginners. "When you take a club in your hand, remember that you are three people.

"First, when you look at that ball, believe that you are a giant and that ball is nothing but an acorn on the ground. Second, you are a baseball player and when you swing at the ball you use the same motion needed to swing a bat. And third, you are a track star with your right foot positioned for the 50-yard dash."

Harvey uses several aids in teaching his students. To improve the swing, he uses a stand with a plastic ball suspended on a flexible arm. When a student makes contact with this make-believe golf ball, he knows his swing is correct.

Another "gimmick" is a club with the grip built in so that the hands automatically fall into correct form.

Hilton, Kellam Lead Golf Play

VIRGINIA BEACH — John Hilton, a smooth swinging youngsters, won the first Birdneck Country Club golf championship Tuesday at the six-hole par three course on Birdneck Road.

Hilton fired a 123 for the 36-hole tourney and he was chased to the wire by young Billy Kellam, who came in with a 125 stroke total.

Birdneck Country Club officials have scheduled other events of this type with the next tournament set for Tuesday, July 3.

More than 12 players competed in this week's event.

P.A. Little League

By JOHN ELDER

With the record knotted at eight wins and two losses apiece, the Anzacs and the Peppers battled for first round honors in the Princess Anne Little League. The Anzacs came out on top of the 2-0 shutout. It was a big day all around for manager Joe Bratten, who really had his young chargers up for the game. Besides having the privilege of seeing his team walk off with the half way prize, he saw son Jeff throw a real fine ball game.

It was a tight contest all the way, with many outstanding plays on both sides. When the breaks came, they were earned, and Jeff Bratten worked hard for every advantage that came.

The rest of the week was pretty well controlled by the weatherman. Saturday finally cleared, and the second round was off to a roaring start, with three games going at Carey Field. Once again, the Anzacs, and Jeff Bratten, dominated the play, and the Orioles were the victims ,3-1. The Anzacs only scored in one inning, but once turned out to be enough. This time, the clout came from third base. Jeff Brateen, working his off day from the hill, let go with a three-run homer, to help Les Shaw to the victory.

In other games played, Charles Spruill, of the Peppers, was able to tame the Rebels in another shutout, 3-0. The Bears downed the Dukes, to make up the card.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RAINED OUT, THEN "SUNG OUT"

Northern Virginia Beach was pretty quiet on the baseball front this past week. Prexy Newton Thomas reports, "the weather had us for the first part of the week, and the Music Festival cut us out on Friday."

The American League will be back strong this week, however, with six games scheduled. As this issue goes to print, the Tigers and the Sports and the Rotarians and the Cubs will be going at it. Friday night will pit the Tigers against the Rotarians and the Sports against the Cubs. Saturday will find the Cubs and the Sports and the Rotarians and the Tigers making up the games that were rained out last week.

American League games are played at the Virginia Beach High School field, on Tuesday and Friday evenings. First games get under way at 5:30, with the night cap starting at 7:30. Admission, as to all Little League contests, is free.

At the end of four games, the league shapes up this way:

Cubs	4	0
Rotarians	3	1
Sports	1	3
Tigers	0	4

Coaches in the American League are: Cubs—Bill Renn; Rotarians—John Glover; Sports—Raymond McGrath; Tigers—Dr. Fitzhugh Mayo.

PIPERS AND HAWKS WINNERS IN NATIONAL LITTLE LEAGUE PLAY

	W	L
Thunderbirds	5	1
Hawks	3	3
Little Giants	3	3
Pipers	1	5

Monday's Results

Pipers 8, Little Giants 3
Hawks 9, Thunderbirds 8

Virginia Beach's National League was the upset circuit this past week, with the front-running Thunderbirds getting their first licking, and the cellar dwelling Pipers picking up their initial victory.

Jim Stone, of the Hawks, was able to turn the trick for his teammates, by weaving a real good ball game. Despite three misplays afield and only five hits, he was able to hold the powerful T-Bird nine to 8 runs—just enough to insure the win. Norm Grosskatz threw a tight game for the losers, recording six big strike-outs, but the fast moving Hawks proved too much.

In the other end of the twin-bill, the Pipers routed the Little Giants, 8-3. The Pipers came into the game with an 0-5 record, but somebody apparently forgot to tell Herb Potter, the pitcher. In fact, the whole team played like a bunch of champions. Young Potter was able to whiff 8 enemy batsmen, and his mates gathered him 8 big runs, on as many hits. In their victory, the Pipers held the errors down to three. Errors have hurt them pretty consistantly in their last two games. The losing pitcher was Wolf. He tossed a real good ball game all the way, striking out 7 Pipers, but he just couldn't get enough support. His team mates gave him only 3 runs on 2 hits, while booting 8 plays in the field.

Fishing Around

By JIM BULLOCK

Bluefishing is great. Reports from the Virginia Beach Piers and area charter captains all claim the best bluefishing in years. The sizes range from 4 to 7 pounds.

Va. Beach Fishing Pier

Eddie Lockman reports good bluefish and roundhead catches with some spot biting. The reconstruction of his pier to its former 500 foot length will be complete in two weeks.

Williams Steel Pier

Manager Jessie Fain reports good bluefishing with some roundheads, gray trout and 6 to 8 lb sharks being caught. Monday an unidentified fisherman landed a 96 lb. manta ray. It had to be shot before they could haul it up on the pier.

Long Creek Marina

Raymond Fentress at L.C.M. says the bluefishing from his charterboats is the best in years. Capt. Steve Quinby of the "Jim-Bo" with Chick Baylor, Jimmy Sadler, Claude Fentress and John Smith, all of Va. Beach, brought in 63 blues, all over 5 lbs., Monday. Capt. Tom Nance of the "Ell-Tom" with Harry Soloman and John Fentress aboard also had good catches of blues.

Capt. Charlie Cashman of the "Taurus" with Willie Bartlee, T. C. Mason Jr. and Whit Voliva, all of London Bridge, also scored on the bluefish. Capt. Bill Webb raised several marlin, but was unable to get any strikes. Fentress said every member of every party has caught at least one Virginia Salt Water Fishing Tournament Citation class fish so far in this bluefish bonanza.

Anchor Inn — Lynnhaven

"Sparky" Coleman reports the same good bluefishing. George Newkirk of Oceana landed a 300 lb. white shark aboard Sparky's charterboat "H. C. Jr. II" Sunday. They were 65 miles due east of Cape Henry in the 20 Fathom Curve fishing for tuna when the shark struck. The tuna in the area were spooked by the schools of sharks and as a result, only one small tuna was hooked and it was lost. They were skipping strips of albacore followed by a small fish as bait.

Back Bay

Ken Murden of Pungo says the freshwater fishing has been off for about two weeks. Watch this column for the first report of any improvement.

We would appreciate any news of area fishing or fishermen from our readers. Let us hear from you if you would like to see this column as a weekly feature.

Bright Future Predicted For Virginia Beach Music Festival

From men who should know the future of the Virginia Beach Music Festival seems assured. This assurance was voiced by the three judges who were here for the event the past weekend. Without exception these men gave assurance that the festival will grow in a few short years to such an extent that a limit will have to be placed on the number of bands to be accepted.

To those individuals who struggled with this first music festival these words made sweeter music than the fine bands that competed in the event. The festival was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce in association with Forbes Candies.

The prediction of the bright future came from the three festival judges, and one of these, Dr. Paul Yoder, repeated the prediction several times during the course of the three day festival.

The musical experts were favorably impressed with the quality of the bands competing and were of the unanimous opinion that having only six visiting bands was the proper beginning for the event.

Officials were highly pleased with the first festival and it bids fair to becoming one of the major attractions on the Virginia Beach summer program. We congratulate the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Charles H. Forbes, Jr., who served as general chairman of the first festival.

Sand By The Truckload

The gigantic task of placing 220,000 cubic yards of sand on the beach here began this week and we wonder if the average person fully realized the magnitude of this sand replenishment program. It is, indeed, a major project that will require 90 days of constant hauling of sand.

After the sand reaches the beach, itself, it is then spread by bulldozers. Someone figured it out. It will mean a truckload of sand every six minutes for 90 days.

The beach replenishment program is under the direction of the Army Corps of Engineers. The Federal Government pays most of the cost under a grant from the Office of Emergency Planning.

All of this work is the result of the March 7 storm and unless unforeseen forces development the beach should in time be better than ever.

The sand by the truckload is an ambitious program that is interesting to observe.

While the beachfront is not what we would desire at the present time much work has been done and the progress made is amazing. Mother nature treated us a cruel blow but we have recovered, and in a short period of time.

Servant or Master?

The Saturday Evening Post of May 22 carries an editorial that was printed at a fortuitous time—just before Memorial Day. And it contains fundamental statements which every American should remember, with pride and gratitude.

In part it says: "America is not a perfect society, and its people are not required to pretend that it is. Our newspapers, magazines, pundits and commentators constantly criticize the Government. The President of the United States reads an astonishing amount of this criticism. Sometimes he gets mad, and sometimes he accepts the advice of his critics. But although this country is by no means perfect, it is constantly changing for the better. The change is sometimes slow, but it happens without bringing up the tanks or purging our political leaders.

"All things considered, we believe that our system of government has enabled its people to achieve a better life than any other system on earth. This may sound like an immodest claim, but what other great nation has combined such a high standard of living with such a high degree of individual freedom? Communism? The Communists have murdered freedom in the streets of Budapest and East Berlin. They have promised a workers' paradise on earth, and they are unable to provide their people with enough to eat.

"We believe that government is not an end in itself. It exist solely to provide a climate in which the people may make the most of their abilities and live their own lives in security and peace. This means that government must be vigilant, and it must be active in many areas, but it must be the servant of the people and not their master."

SURFSIDE '62

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

A trip to Charlottesville over the week-end to attend a two-day seminar sponsored by the Virginia Press Association took me on my second train ride in my not-so-short lifespan. The other was so long ago I scarcely remember it so this was more like a new experience for me.

If we are to believe the news stories we read about the railroad situation, its passenger business is at such a low ebb its hardly worth the time and trouble. But this wasn't the impression I got. The trains were jammed packed coming and going—though one woman reasoned that it was because there were so few cars. Not being a veteran passenger, I couldn't say.

Since railroads always operate on standard time, I inevitably found myself with an hour wait after a mad dash to catch the train I thought was due to leave any minute. The first time I made the mistake, it was understandable. The second time, it was plain stupidity. My breathless, exasperated comment on the hour wait in Charlottesville didn't phase the ticket agent one bit. "Everyone says that," she laughed.

Gathering three magazines in Norfolk to entertain me on the 5-mile trip was a waste of money. My fellow passengers were far more interesting. The first was a bitterly frank woman who felt inclined to tell all around her how to mind their business. "For many, many years I was a church organist and had to keep quiet. Now I'm getting to the age where I tell people what I d--- well think," she explained. And she did. I found her fascinating.

"LEND ME YOUR EARS"

Next was a man going to visit his mother in a mental hospital, a trip he takes from Washington every Sunday. After stating "I've been plagued with troubles all my life" he launched into his story and in the short time we sat together I heard about his father's death, his divorce, his mother's illness, his position with the State Department and the pitfalls of the railroad industry. My magazines remained unopened.

Then there was the young sailor, the All-American boy type, who, after six months in San Diego was transferring to Norfolk. He already knew more about Virginia Beach than I did and was pleased over his new location because he wanted to be near the beach.

And last was the young girl who was coming to visit her sister in Norfolk while her brother-in-law was at sea. A native of Kalamazoo, Mich., she had never seen the ocean and couldn't imagine a wave any large than the "ripples on Lake Michigan."

But my fellow-passengers were not the only interesting points on the trip. At the seminar I heard a lecture by the delightful Dr. Frank L. Hereford Jr., dean of the Graduate School of Arts & Sciences describing the new NASA machine being built at Lexington, Va. to determine what materials will be necessary to protect man in travel beyond the Van Allen Belt in outer space. Scheduled for completition in 1964, the machine is so powerful (with radiation) it must be encased in an 18-foot solid concrete structure.

"We know that the radiation in the Van Allen Belt won't be too high for man to go through," he said, "but we don't know enough about it now to keep him there for any length of time."

Also on the schedule was a very interesting panel discussion on "Reporting Air Disasters" with such learned people as Edward E. Slattery Jr., chief of information for the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, and Robert Serling the aviation writer for a United Press, in which they described the investigation and reporting procedures in plane crashes throughout the country, citing many specific crashes.

Another panel discussion was conducted by three women: a council-woman from Richmond, a school crusader from Roanoke and a novelist from Charlottesville. They gave the women's view of newspapers.

But the real highlight of the trip was the speech by Pierre Salinger, press secretary for the White House. He was an interesting speaker and the large group of newspaper representatives welcomed his remarks. 6

Sand Dune Work

Similar clearances are being obtained property owners on the beach at Ocean Park, Phillips stated. The engineers are planning to rent a dredge to pump sand from Lynnhaven Inlet onto the Ocean Park beach.

The contractor who gets the job, stated the Engineers' spokesman, will determine the sand source.

from the Carpenter Construction Co. was $105.

Hatchett said about 310 feet of bulkhead is involved costing nearly $28,000.

The city has asked the federal government to pay $15,000 on the job instead of pumping sand on the beach in that lock for protection.

Hatchett stated the city will pay the cost, less what it gets from the federal government.

Texas Steelmen Complete Work For Bay Tunnel

BAYSIDE—Steel workers in Orange, Texas, will launch the last of the 37 giant steel tunnel sections for the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel project Friday.

The tubes, 100 yards long and 37 feet wide, are being sunk in trenches in the bay bottom to form two mile-long tunnels under shipping channels serving the ports of Hampton Roads and Baltimore.

Six of the sections have been placed and Tidewater-Merritt-Raymond-Kiewit, joint venture contractors building the 17.6-mile bay crossing, planned to position the seventh late this week.

Four of the sections, fabricated by American Bridge Division of U.S. Steel, are now enroute from Orange to Norfolk, being towed 1700 miles by ocean-going salvage ships.

Installation of lamp standards will be completed by the end of this week to light the first 3.3-mile section of concrete trestle running from Chesapeake Beach near Cape Henry to a man-made island at the south end of Thimble Shoal Tunnel.

A spokesman for the electrical contractor, E. C. Ernst, Inc., said lighting will be supplied by 78 400-watt mercury vapor lamps. He said 12¾ miles of cable trays, 18 miles of 15 KVA Cable eight miles of street lighting cable and three miles of telephone cable have been installed on the trestle section.

Parry Displays Unique Carillon

Scott M. Parry of New York City performs on a silver plated handbell carillon brought to this country by P. T. Barnum in 1847.

Handbell Ringers Hold Festival Here

VIRGINIA BEACH—Members of Area III of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers, founded in 1954, held a festival Tuesday and Wednesday at the Virginia Beach Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Henry Morgan, pastor, welcomed the group which included members from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and Washington, D.C.

During the festival, the groups indulged in mass choir music, discussions of methods and problems, and individual bell ringing.

Handbell ringing is comparatively new to this country. P. T. Barnum introduced the art only a hundred years ago. England has been known for its bell ringers for several hundred years. Practically every church in the English countryside had a tower with a set of bells which were rung by ropes by the local citizens.

Some of the "peals" or "changes became rather elaborate so in order to practice without disturbing the local gentry too much, handbells were made to simulate the tower bells. People would gather in homes to work out their "changes." Thus from this custom began the art of ringing tunes.

Today schools and churches have found handbell ringing to be a great asset to their musical programs.

One of the highlights of the festival was Scott B. Parry of New York City performing on a three octave handbell carillon. The upper two octaves of the carillon are silver plated. The handbells were brought to the United States in 1847 by P. T. Barnum.

Parry is the author of "The Story of Handbells," the first book published on handbells.

While here, the group visited Frontier City, and enjoyed the sun sand of Virginia Beach.

Check these Features When Buying a Home

By JULIAN RASHKIND
Tidewater Association of Home Builders

What would you check in shopping for a new home?

A national survey of the U.S. residential market revealed that there are 10 top features which most home buyers in the last nine years considered carefully in deciding on a new home.

The top 10 features were:

Adequate heating.

A house that would not be too much of a financial burden.

A house with adequate electrical power and wiring.

Good insulation.

Low Property Taxes.

Up-to-date bathrooms.

A house easy to keep clean.

A location near the children's schools.

Modern kitchen appliances.

A house that would be easy to sell.

The survey was made under the auspices of "HI-PO", the Housing Industry Promotional Operation. "HI-PO" is the joint enterprise of the National Association of Home Builders and leading manufacturers of the materials and equipment that go into a new home.

The survey is a part of the market research data which home builders seek in their diligent efforts to construct the kind of homes people want.

While no two families are alike in every respect, the national survey revealed that families in certain groups had similar basic desires when it came to buying a new home.

Those who had been living in apartments wanted to experience the pride that comes with home ownership. They also wanted to transfer rent money into an investment. They sought increased living space, modern interior features, and a desirable neighborhood.

Within this group there were a variety of special interests. Young couples with no children looked for a home that was convenient to work and shopping. Those with pre-school aged children wanted large rooms, a site near the school to which their children would be going, plenty of light and fresh air, outdoor living facilities, and an indoor recreation space.

Families with school-aged children looked for homes with more than one bedroom and large enough so that each child would have a separate bedroom. Older couples put an attractive and convenient floor plan at the head of their desires. Families who had been living in rented houses wanted new homes to free themselves from repair chores.

The survey showed that families who had been home owners bought new homes because of four basic desires. They wanted increased living space, a better neighborhood, modern interior features such as kitchens and bathrooms, and a more convenient floor plan.

In view of the factors that led most families to buy new homes in the last nine years, it is not surprising that "Better Living Begins When You Own a New Home."

ASC Reminds Wheat Growers

PRINCESS ANNE — As harvest of the 1962 wheat crop commences, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service reminds buyers and warehousemen of their responsibilities under the production adjustment program on wheat.

Norman T. Beal, ASCS county office manager in Princess Anne County, says that wheat buyers should become familiar with the wheat program for their own protection since they will be liable for the total amount of penalty if they accept excess wheat on which the Government holds a lien.

The 1962 marketing quota penalty rate on excess wheat is $1.59 per bushel.

Operators of farms on which wheat is produced free of penalty are issued marketing cards or marketing certificate to identify the grain. Buyers should make certain that this identification is made when the wheat is offered for sale.

ASCS county offices are now issuing instructions to all known wheat buyers on the operation of their part of the program. "All warehousemen, elevator operators, feeders, processors, or any other grain dealers should acquaint themselves with the requirements of the program if they have not already done so. Buyers who will familiarize themselves with the requirements beforehand may save themselves a lot of inconvenience later," Mr. Beal said.

Music Teachers Of County Work On Guide Book

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

PRINCESS ANNE — Blending voices, clapping hands and tapping feet sounded from the Princess Anne County School Administration Building's conference room last week as a group of county elementary music teachers met to compile a music curriculum guide.

Though their main purpose was to write and edit reports that would be used in the booklet, occasionally they found it necessary to illustrate their ideas, with actual music.

Working on the booklet was the steering committee chosen by the 14 elementary music teachers with the county system. They are: Mrs. Sue Williams, objective procedures and evaluation; Mrs. Sue Glascock, listening and appreciation; Mrs. Anne Clapp, rhythms and creative activities; and Mrs. Irene Korte and Mrs. Glenda Lovelace, singing and fundamentals.

Sitting in on the meetings were Mrs. Mildred E. Wilson, the sponsor, and Miss Louise Luxford, one of the group's originators.

Teaching music in today's elementary schools is a far cry from leading youngsters in "Three Blind Mice" and "America the Beautiful." Starting in the first grade, children are taught the fundamentals of music, creative rhythm, music appreciation, the ability to listen and how to play simple rhythm instruments. They are even taught some of the facts about composers.

Musical History Lessons

"Music is really the outgrowth of the period in which the composer lived," Mrs. Korte said. "By learning about the composer, they learn about history. Folk songs are a history lesson in themselves."

Music instruction is correlated with other studies, especially history and social studies, resulting in a well rounded and interesting curriculum.

That is why the music teachers felt a need for a guide that could be distributed to instructors throughout the system.

Children respond to music, whether it be folk songs, serious music or popular numbers, all committee members agreed, and they are especially responsive in the lower grades. By the time they reach the 7th grade they are a little more reserved and not quite as open with their enthusiasm.

Parents who worry about their child's music preference might be interested to know that when students are asked what song they would like to sing, it is usually something like "Green Cathedral" or a folk song.

"We try to stimulate an interest in good music in the schools," Mrs. Korte said, "but parents should also follow up this interest and encourage good music in the home."

Miss Katrine deWitt, a member of the faculty of Garrison-Forrest School in Maryland has arrived to spend the summer at her home on 12th St. and Ocean Front.

Use of Land Requires New, Different Approach

By JULIAN RASHKIND
Tidewater Association of Home Builders

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of four articles prepared by an official of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders on the need for new approaches to use of land to prevent waste and preserve the beauty of this great natural resource.)

Many of us have taken a drive from the city on a Sunday afternoon . . . and some of us have wondered, "Where is the country?"

Areas we once knew as rolling pasture land, woods and green fields have vanished. In their place are supermarkets, office buildings, modern factories, motels, restaurants, residential areas, schools and churches.

Some of this transformation is good. Some has not been well planned. It is time we consider carefully the use of land and plan its development to avoid waste of this great natural resource and, when possible, preserve its beauty. Naturally, our growing population must have land on which to live, shop and work.

As a people, we should be ready to accept new approaches to the development of land that will achieve the objectives we desire. But before examining possible solutions, let us take a look at the problem to see how it arose and what it is.

This was once a country of abundant elbow room, with unlimited space for our towns and cities. At one time our land seemed inexhaustible. It was a vast sweep of three million square miles of some of the richest land on earth.

Within a single generation we have learned that the land is a limited resource. Today, the land surrounding our metropolitan areas is being swallowed at the rate of one million acres a year by needed factories, shopping centers, highways, and housing developments. How did this come about?

When the family cars drove on to the American scene in large numbers, people started moving their homes to the outskirts of the cities, where they could have more space and pleasant living.

The depression halted this first tentative expansion. Throughout the 1930's there was comparatively little new construction in this country, for homes, shops or offices. World War II threw up another barrier to expansion. Understandably, virtually all non-defense construction ceased.

Then 15 million G.I.'s streamed joyously home. Their urgent need was for homes, and a piece of land to call their own. The nation faced the most severe housing shortage in history. Homes for the returned G.I.'s had to be provided and were. In the process, suburbia was born, seemingly almost overnight.

Suburban living appeals to thousands. It offers pleasant, outdoor activities.

Today, with our growing population, suburbia is extending farther and farther out from our central cities.

The National Association of Home Builders, with which the Tidewater Association of Home Builders is affiliated was one of the first to recognize the need for and press for new approaches to residential use of land to meet the needs of our growing communities.

Members of the NAHB believe that with the cooperation of city officials and other groups, particularly zoning officials, new concepts in land development can accomodate necessary growth in an effective development that will preserve the values of country-like atmosphere and avoid waste of land.

Fashion Comments

By INGA BORG

The lovely June brides, with their sparkling "special day" look, probably make most of us look back to the day we got married . . . when we were nice and slim.

Well, we talked last week about changing our eating habits a little to maintain or regain that youthful figure. Here are my suggestions:

Start the day with a glass of good warm water, before you eat or drink anything else. It serves several purposes. For weight-watchers, it takes care of that first hunger feeling. For people who like to insure their health, the cup of hot water, I have always believed, will help kill all the little germs we breath in during the night.

In my opinion, we avoid a lot of common colds and other common illnesses this way.

Children can also benefit by the cup of warm water — why not try it, Mama?

It is also a known fact that the water before breakfast will serve as a laxative.

Would you like to know more about a healthier way of dieting, or keeping your figure trim? Then join me here again next week.

New Lights in Village Areas

ARAGONA VILLAGE — "There shall be light." That very well applies to sections 11 and 13 in Aragona Village where the darkness has become light. Here's why.

The past week VEPCO engineers have been installing fixtures and wiring for street lights made possible thru the efforts of Aragona Civic League and contributions by a majority of residents in these sections.

It is impossible to list all the names of those who contributed to the light fund. The committee wishes to thank each contributor and Mr. Sterling of Scott Construction Company who made a contribution.

NEWS OF THE BAYSIDE AREA

Summer Weather Aids Bridge-Tunnel Work

BAYSIDE — Clear summer weather sped work on the $200,000,000 Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel this week.

Workmen for Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp. placed the 6th of 37 mammouth steel tubes destined to form two mile-long tunnels in the 17.5-mile long crossing which will link Virginia's Eastern Shore with the new city of Virginia Beach. The 300-foot tube was sunk in a trench dredged for the tunnel under Thimble Shoals shipping Channel.

"The sinking was the smoothest one to date," reported P. Z. Michener, project manager for the project's consulting engineers, Sverdrup & Parcel.

Sinking of the tunnel sections now is on a speed-up summer schedule that has seen four of them placed beneath the bay since May 19.

The last of the 37 sections is scheduled for launching next week at Orange, Texas, where the huge cylinders are being fabricated by American Bridge Division of U.S. Steel.

Final steel for the center span of the crossing's single high-level bridge arrived at Cape Charles last week. All steel for the North Channel Bridge is being fabricated at the American Bridge plant in Roanoke, Va., and shipped by rail to Cape Charles for assembly.

Engineers said erection of the shorter Fisherman Inlet Bridge will start by July 1. Tidewater-Raymond-Kiewit crews are now completing the four concrete piers to support the bridge's 175-foot long center span.

College Costs Continue to Rise; Savings Plan Needed

If you're faced with college in the future for your youngsters, better sit down right now with the family piggy bank. College costs are going up every year and a regular savings plan is a must if Junior and his sister are going to enter those ivy-covered halls.

Jean Kinkead, women's consultant to The Travelers Insurance Companies, notes that while the college population is doubling in the next 10 years, the cost of four years on campus will be doing the same thing. By 1970, she reports, a college education will cost twice what it does today. Current national surveys show price tags ranging from $2,260 to $13,500 as four-year total costs.

With these kinds of figures in the future, you can't begin too early. In fact, many families start a child's savings account before the ink dries on the newcomer's birth certificate. Yet, because there are always at least three or four places to put each dollar, such savings never seem to grow steadily enough. Recent national polls of over 7,000 families revealed that more than half had neglected to save for the day when the family treasure chest would be tapped for the price of a bachelor's degree.

Failure to plan a savings program and stick to it was shown to be the main cause. Because bills and the temptation of other luxuries can so easily divert dollars from your "untouchable" education fund, Jean Kinkead suggests reviewing the "forced savings" advantages in endowment education policies.

She points out that just because this kind of savings agreement does require you to deposit a regular amount of money each month as a premium payment, it provides the strongest kind of an answer to the problem many families share — failure to stick to a savings schedule.

Noting that the amount to be saved is set by you in advance so that you can decide how much you need to budget, Miss Kinkead suggests that the earlier an endowment is started the better. That way, the slice of the payroll you ticket for the education fund can be kept to a minimum. Most endowments are developed so that they will mature in 18 years but they can be started anytime during the child's early school years. The problem in delay, she observes, is that you may have only 10 or 12 years to pay in order to have the fund ready right after high school graduation instead of having 18 years to accumulate the amount if you start as soon as the child is born.

Educational endowment policies can include a clause that will provide the full amount needed in the event of the purchaser's death. This insures that the youngster will have his valued college education even if the premium payments cannot be made. Many times the purchaser is someone other than a parent, such as a favorite aunt, uncle or grandparent.

Bayside Youth Named Queen

MARLENE JO ARMOUR

BAYSIDE—A 50-word essay on the nutritional values of milk and milk products proved to be more than just an ordinary home economics assignment as Miss Marlene Jo Armour, 1962 Princess Anne graduate, was chosen first Dairy Queen of Tidewater by the newly formed Tidewater Dairy Council last Wednesday night at a banquet in the Golden Triangle Hotel.

Marlene, daughter of Lt. Cmdr. R. H. Armour, USN, (ret.) and Mrs. Armour of 2902 Thoroughgood Drive, Bayside, was prompted by Mrs. Mary Sue Spencer, her home economics teacher, to write the essay that would entitle the winner to the Dairy Queen title and $100.

This summer will be a busy one for Marlene as she will reign at Dairy Council banquets and advertise milk products in the local stores.

Marlene, a vivacious sandy-haired girl, was president of Trinity Tri-Hi-Y, secretary of the Tidewater Keyette Council, Ruritan Bowl Queen, and a member of the 1962 Homecoming Court.

Natural Look

By JOY HAKIM

VIRGINIA BEACH—"Strive for the oval look in hairstyles," Gordon of Revlon told a large audience of beauty shop operators and owners attending Southern's Beauty Trade Show, held Sunday and Monday at the Convention Center.

"The natural look is news this year," said Gordon, who is fashion director at the House of Revlon in New York.

Heads "Shrinking"

"Heads are smaller," he said, with the bouffant look out. Hair colors are more natural too, with a beige as top choice.

"Wigs are sweeping the country," he continued, "and if you buy one, be sure its a good one—not a synthetic."

Handsome and convincing, Gordon kept crowds engrossed as he combed and tinted models and volunteers.

He has been a hair stylist for 12 years except for a brief sojurn in the business world when he studied public speaking.

He must have been a good student. He is relaxed and sure of himself in front of an audience.

Working on Anna Shaffer of Virginia Beach he told the beauty operators, "sometimes you have to work in an ad-lib manner — you don't know what's going to turn out, other times you work in the ivy league fashion — that's when you have a plan and stick to it."

Anna was an ad-lib job—but she looked devastating when she descended from the chair. Her long hair (she wouldn't let Gordon cut it) was piled in a buttercup or fountain effect on top of her head.

Gordon talked about the fabulous House of Revlon, where he works. "It's great!" he said.

The patron is greeted, as she enters, by a doorman who takes her "umbrella or her poodle." She walks into a lavish, velvet-lined elevator which has antique mirrors and fresh roses. She is floated up to a magnificent reception area that is lined with greek arches, plush seats and antique desks.

Fountains For Feet

From there she may have her hair washed in solid gold sinks, or be pedicured in a marble room with fountains for dipping her feet. She can go into a sound-proof relaxing room, or take a bath in a 200-gallon scented marble bath.

While sitting under a dryer that retracts into the ceiling, she'll be served lunch on the finest imported bone china, she'll eat with gold utensils.

Then there is a make-up room, a dressing room, a wig room — each more lavish than the other.

How much will all this cost milady? She can spend the day at the House of Revlon for about $100, or she may get a shampoo and set for $10.

How do the hairstyles differ from those in Virginia Beach? "This area is very modern and up-to-date," said Gordon.

So even if you can't visit the House of Revlon your local beauty shop operator should know all the secrets after this week's show.

DDD Going Nationwide

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia, along with other Bell System Companies, is now preparing for an unprecedented nationwide, Direct Distance Dialing cutover.

On August 31, at 9:30 P.M., over 55,000 operating stations in the nationwide teletypewriter (TWX) network will be changed from the present manual switching system to an automatic dial operation.

With this new system of dial operation any one teletypewriter station will be able to dial directly to the distant TWX in the same manner that telephone customers now dial their own Long Distance calls.

"Here in Virginia," said L. F. Patrick local C&P manager, "the job of converting the state's more than 700 TWX machines to automatic dial operation is about complete. And most all TWX customers have had their personnel trained in the operation of dial procedures."

Under the present manual system, each of the nation's existing teletypewriter stations is connected to one of 103 manually operated regional switchboards. Now to send a message, the TWX attendant signals switchboard operator in her area and types out the number of the called station. All conversation between the two stations is conducted in the form of written messages rather than by voice.

The heart of the new system is a transistorized data set which is mounted on the teletype console. The data set converts machine language into tone signals suitable for transmission over the regular DDD network.

With the dial operation for TWX, the calling station will push an "originate" button, hear a dial tone on the "receive only" handset, and then dial the assigned number of the called station. The called station will then answer the call directly by a typed response and the ensuing conversation between the two stations is by typewritten word.

The new procedure for teletypewriters will provide users of this communications service with greater speed and easier operation for transmitting written messages.

4-H Activities and Events

Speaking of tranquilizers, even back in grandpa's time there was something to make you sleep. They called it work!

PAY OFF FOR JUNIOR STEER FEEDERS

On Monday night, June 11, 1962, 19 4-H Club members in Princess Anne County hit "pay dirt." It was at this time that all of the 4-H Club members who had fed steers in Princess Anne County received checks from the purchases for the price of their steers.

Keister Evans

A dinner meeting, held at the Black Angus Restaurant, at Virginia Beach, for all of the 4-H Club members participating in the Junior Steer and Heifer Project and their parents climaxed the long, but successful livestock project. Throughout the year, the 4-H Club members are continuously rewarded for their devoted interest, time, and work. But these rewards come in many different forms—they are rewarded by pats on the back, encouragement, compliments for the good work they are doing, and many other intangible manners, but Monday night's meeting brought a reward that could be taken home and deposited in a bank account. Although the profits made on the calves are small in value when compared with the character building, the development of self responsibility, and other preparations for tomorrow's citizens, they were still eagerly awaited by all of the members participating in the project.

This meeting with their parents and their participating children was very enjoyable and inspiring, as there was a sense of accomplishment and self satisfaction from the entire group. This was a year in which Princess Anne had much success from the beginning of the project to the end including a clean sweep of the Show on May 9th. We are looking forward to a project another year that will be just as successful and bring just as many rewards.

1963 SHOW TO BE BROUGHT TO VIRGINIA BEACH

For the first time in the history of the Junior Steer Project. All of the residents of what is now Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County will have the opportunity to attend and participate in the 4-H Club Junior Steer and Heifer Show right at home in their own area.

In making plans for 1962-63 Junior Steer Project, many changes and new ideas are being considered. Basically, the biggest change that will be known by everyone concerned with the project is the move to have the show and sale held in the new city of Virginia Beach. The project will be under new sponsorship, and many new arrangements will be announced as they are confirmed. However, we can now be looking forward to seeing our local children display their accomplishment in the Livestock Feeding Program right here at home.

TEN LOCAL 4-H'ERS PREPARING FOR WEEK IN BLACKSBURG

The Virginia State 4-H Club Short Course, held the week of June 25-30 will entertain ten delegates from Princess Anne County.

I feel very proud of our 4-H'ers who have earned this privilege to attend this State 4-H Club Short Course. I am sure that Princess Anne has been allocated several more delegates than the average County in the State.

Congratulations to Tommy Chism, Tommy Conboy, Johnny Osmundson, and Joe Pecsek, for achieving such a high score in the District Land Appreciation Contest. This score has earned them the privilege of attending State 4-H Club Short Course, and competing in the State Land Appreciation Contest.

Congratulations to Sharon Fenton, George Lee, and Woody Turner for their outstanding 4-H Club accomplishments that have earned them the privilege of representing Princess Anne County at the State 4-H Club Short Course, and I am very pleased to have Bobby Vaughan, Virginia Kelly, and Ginger Oliver, who are All-Stars to attend with the delegation.

I can harly wait for the week of Short Course to come. It is hard to express the inspiration and warm feeling that one can obtain when working with a delegation of approximately twelve hundred young citizens who are delegates because of their character, citizenship, and self-discipline, and to see them assume responsibility in an adult manner.

Short Course is a very rewarding, as well as entertaining week. All of the delegates have the opportunity to attend many classes which are taught in many different fields, all of which are free-choice to the delegates, based upon his or her interests and desires. All is not work at Short Course, for there are many entertaining activities, such as the periods that are set aside for games and dancing, social hours, and the State Share the Fun Contest, which is comparable to a professional musical.

Hunter Spence, 4-H Club All-Star from Princess Anne County, will be directing the State Share-the-Fun Contest this year. We are quite proud of Hunter, who has offered many helpful services to the 4-H Club Program, both as a Club member and now as an All-Star, and the State 4-H Club Department is quite thrilled to have someone with Hunter's ability volunteer to direct the Share-the-Fun Contest. Hunter has been known locally for his talents in many areas. Many will remember him for the outstanding job he did of directing and producing the Creeds Ruritan Minstrel earlier this year. He is also well known for his ability in art and music.

The MIXING BOWL . . .

IT'S Fun TO COOK

By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

For the very latest in food fads and fables . . . for practical, down-to-earth recipes that please both palate and pocketbook, read the "Mixing Bowl" by Lucille Clark each Thursday in the Sun-News.

Drinking milk is the simplest way to get the good from milk. But there are many opportunities in cooking to get part of the milk needed daily.

From soup to dessert, milk used generously in cooking can add greatly to the nournishment in meals.

There's sound reason for giving some thought to this way of getting more milk into meals. When families in this country are not well fed, the nutrient they most often lack is calcium. And the mainstay source of calcium in our food supply is milk.

Milk would be an important food if it offered no more than the mineral calcium, which is needed all life long for healthy bones. Along with calcium milk contains about 100 nutrients — minerals, vitamins, sugars, protein elements—which altogether make milk a very special food bargain.

The protein in milk is of the best quality that food offers, so that milk can help out with protein in the same way that meat, poultry, fish, and eggs do. Milk is a good source of the B vitamin riboflavin—riboflavin is another nutrient often short in the foods families choose.

Here are some recipes from food laboratories of the Human Nutrition Research Branch in the USDA using milk to advantage in cooking, in homemade desserts, and in flavored beverages. These recipes call for fresh milk; however, diluted evaporated milk or reconstituted dry milk may be used.

MILK IN SOUPS

Quick Carrot or Turnip Soup
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 quart hot milk
- 1 cup grated raw carrots or turnips
- Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the onion in the butter or margarine until lightly browned. Blend in the flour. Add milk, carrots or turnips, and salt and pepper. Cook, stirring frequently until the carrots or turnips are tender, about 10 minutes.

4 servings. 1 cup milk per serving.

Quick Cream of Potato Soup
- 1½ cups cubed potatoes
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup boiling water
- 2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon flour

Cook potatoes, butter or margarine, onion, and salt in the water until the potatoes are done. Add the milk, reserving a little to mix with the flour. When milk is hot, add the flour mixture and cook a minute or two longer to thicken.

4 servings. ½ cup milk per serving.

Cream of Mushroom Soup
- ½ pound fresh mushrooms
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups hot milk
- ½ small onion, sliced
- Salt and pepper to taste

Wash and chop mushrooms and cook a few minutes in the butter or margarine. Blend in flour. Add milk slowly and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Heat the onion slices a few minutes in the soup, then remove them. Season, and heat just to boiling.

4 servings. ½ cup milk per serving.

Oyster Stew
- 1 pint oysters
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 quart hot milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Paprika

Look over the oysters and take out any bits of shell. Melt the butter or margarine, add the oysters and their liquid, and cook over low heat until the edges of the oysters begin to curl — about 3 minutes. Add milk and salt, and reheat. Sprinkle each serving with paprika.

4 servings. 1 cup milk per serving.

MILK IN SAUCES

White Sauce

Thin — 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine; uses — cream soup, gravey; creamed and scalloped vegetables, eggs, fish, meat.

Medium—1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine; uses—Gravy; creamed and scalloped vegetables, egs, fish, meat.

Thick — 1 cup milk, 3 or 4 tablespoons flour, 2 to 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; uses — Binder for croquettes; souffles.

Melt butter or margarine and blend in the flour to make a smooth mixture. Add milk slowly and cook over very low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add salt to taste—about ¼ teaspoon for each cup of milk used. Cook 3 to 5 minutes longer, stirring occasionally.

MILK GRAVY — Make like thin or medium white sauce, using pan dripoings for the fat.

CHEESE SAUCE—Add 1 cup grated cheese to 1 cup hot white sauce—thin or medium. Stir until cheese is melted. Be careful not to overcook.

EGG SAUCE—Stir 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley into 1½ cups hot white sauce — thin or medium.

VANILLA SAUCE — Add ½ cup sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla to 1 cup hot thin white sauce. Stir until sugar is dissolved.

4 servings. ¼ cup milk per serving.

In soups, 2 cups of sauce are likely to be used for 4 servings.

MILK IN DESSERTS

Applesauce Puff
- 4 slices bread or plain cake
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1½ cups applesauce
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup (packed) brown sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Spread bread or cake slices with butter or margarine, and arrange in the bottom of a greased baking dish. Cover with applesauce; sprinkle with cinnamon and about half the sugar. Combine egg, milk, salt, and rest of sugar. Omit sugar in this mixture if cake is used. Pour over mixture in baking dish. Set in pan of hot water and bake at 350°F. (moderate oven) about 40 minutes.

4 servings. ¼ cup milk per serving.

Apple Custard
- 1 cup canned apple slices, drained
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1½ cups hot milk
- Nutmeg

Arrange apples in bottom of four custard cups. Combine sugar, salt, and eggs. Add milk slowly. Pour over apples, sprinkle with nutmeg. Set cups in a pan of hot water. Bake at 325°F. (slow oven) for 30 to 40 minutes, or until the custard is set.

4 servings. Over ½ cup of milk per serving.

Sweetpotato Custard
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1¾ cups milk
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2½ cups finely shredded raw sweetpotato (shred just before using)
- 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Add sugar, salt, nutmeg, orange rind, and milk to the eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add sweetpotato and butter or margarine. Pour into greased custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake at 350°F. (moderate oven) for about 30 minutes or until set.

6 servings. Over ¼ cup milk per serving.

SWEETPOTATO CUSTARD PIE—Pour custard into a 9-inch unbaked pastry shell and bake at 425°F. (hot oven) for 10 minutes; reduce temperature to 350°F. (moderate oven) and continue baking for 30 minutes longer. This rich cream pie with whipped cream and fresh fruit topping is a perfect finish for a light salad meal.

Cream Pie with Fruit
- ¾ cup sugar
- 6 tablespoons flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon vanilla, or ¼ teaspoon almond extract
- 9-inch baked pastry shell or graham cracker shell
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- Sliced peaches

Mix dry ingredients with a little of the milk. Add rest of milk. Cook over boiling water, stirring until thick. Cover and cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Add a little of the hot mixture to eggs. Pour back and cook a few minutes longer. Remove from heat. Add butter or margarine and vanilla or almond extract. Chill.

Pour into cool baked shell. Chill. Spread with sweetened whipped cream just before serving. Garnish with slices of fresh peaches, or other fresh fruit in season.

If preferred, a topping of meringue may be baked on the pie filling, replacing the whipped cream and fruit. If using meringue, pour the hot filling into the baked pastry shell, cool slightly, top with meringue. Bake at 350°F. (moderate oven) for 12 minutes or until meringue is firm and brown.

6 servings. ½ cup milk per serving.

FOR VARIETY:

Banana Cream Pie. Slice 2 bananas into the pie shell before adding the filling.

Coconut Cream Pie. Add ½ cup shredded coconut to cream filling; turn into a baked pie shell. Top with meringue and sprinkle with coconut. Bake as for cream pie.

Chocolate Cream Pie. Make filling as for cream pie, adding ½ cup milk, ¼ cup sugar, and 2½ squares chocolate. Melt chocolate in milk. Top with meringue and bake, or serve plain or with whipped cream.

Meringue—for Baking on Pie
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons sugar

Beat egg whites with salt until stiff. Beat in sugar slowly until smooth and glossy.

Meringue—for Topping Desserts
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar

Beat egg whites with salt until stiff. Beat in sugar slowly until smooth and glossy. Pile lightly on greased baking sheet in 6 large or 12 small mounds. Bake at 325°F. (slow oven) for 10 to 15 minutes or until set and browned. Place on dessert, hot or cold.

Another way to cook the beaten egg white is to drop mounds of it on simmering water. Cover and cook for 10 to 15 minutes or until set. Remove from water immediately.

News for HOMEMAKERS

HOW'S YOUR FAMILY'S SAFETY ATTITUDE?

It's not so much what you do as the way that you do it which leads to safe living or adds up to trouble and accidents. Maybe you've noticed that attitudes — and even atmosphere—at home, or away from home have lots to do with whether things go smoothly or mishaps occur.

Studies show that grim moods, tensions, worry, quarreling, lack of courtesy and consideration are often factors in causing accidents. When we're "upset", for instance, we are not at that moment very much aware of those around us.

Family living, of course, isn't all sweetness and light. But if we can be aware of the fact that a calm, take-it-easy attitude is a plus for safety, we may be able to prevent many accidents.

Clutter-Bugs

No family is, or needs to be, completely orderly every single minute of the day. But there are spots where the clutter-bug stirs up trouble. In the cellar he's a fire hazard. On the stairs he can trip you up. In the medicine chest (old, unlabeled medicines, discarded razor blades) he's a potential danger for all ages. Remember, too, that families who take the clutter-bug with them on outings can cause trouble not only for themselves but for others (broken bottles, jagged tin cans left where people might step on them); may even cause fires with thoughtlessly discarded cigarettes and rubbish.

Rush-Bug

We all have to rush at times, but the hurry habit can cause accidents — at home, on the highway, on busy streets. When the rush-bug gets into your kitchen, for example, he can cause burns, cuts and even falls. We know that he's a menace on the highway. And rush-bug pedestrians who try to beat the light or dart in and out of traffic are asking for trouble. . . . Think it over. . . . Could you take it a little easier and try to slow down a bit?

Worry - Wart

Everybody has worries but habitual worry is a pest that can keep us from doing things the safest way. For instance, have you noticed that too many problems on your mind can make you less attentive to what's going on around you? This can be very important when you're driving, say, and need to concentrate and stay alert for signs, signals, crossing, unexpected situations. . . . We can't always stop worrying — but we can remember that it doesn't do much good and try to check ourselves when worry might lead to trouble.

Squabble - Bug

We wouldn't be human if we didn't sometimes get angry and blow our tops. There are times and places, though, when the squabble-bug becomes a safety hazard. In the car, "back-seat navigating" can be a nuisance that makes the driver tense.

Short-tempered drivers cause trouble on the highway—fighting for the right-of-way—cutting in and out of traffic lanes — blowing the horn for no good reason. Children, too need to learn that the car is not a place for disturbances — scrambling around or scrapping. . . . At home, constant squabbling frays nerves, causes tension, keeps us from concentration on what we're doing—all of which may lead to accidents.

Princess Anne Plaza Baptist Church

It's about time the "twist" be put out of commission. The city of Tampa, Fla., opened 1962 by banning the new dance, the Twist.

The city Recreation Department sent word to its community centers ordering prohibition of the Twist, which depends more on body gyration than on footwork. Recreation Director, David Barksdale, said, "We discourage all weird or off-beat dancing. We don't feel the twist has any part in our program."

The Director is to be congratulated on his working for the best interest of Tampa, youth. It is refreshing to witness such courage. No doubt some of the socialites will try to tie him in a knot for rendering such a decision, because there are a few who revel in Rock and Roll, Tango, Twist, and Twitch! Such lewd exhibitions are far from wholesome or pure recreation. If God had intended a person to be able to move five feet forward or backwards without moving his feet, He would have put hinges in his knees.

The twist is degrading and shows a lack of respect for the body, which is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Furthermore, it is heathen in its origin and pays tribute to idols of male and female nature which were worshiped through fleshly lust.

Banning of the Twist as a dance might well be followed by other cities. However, there is one other parting arrow — we have some who are gifted at doing the Twist with the Truth! Brother, a twisted body is bad, but a twisted tongue is tragic. Remember the opposite of twist is Straight!

Maybe Walt and Jerry don't realize the paradox in this scene. They're simply leaning on the fence while their youngsters enjoy the new sliding board in Walt's backyard.

But fences once implied enmity . . . fear . . . selfishness. They are first cousins to the walls the ancients built around their cities.

Centuries of Christian influence have implanted a different spirit in men's hearts. A fence today can add interest and beauty to neighbors' gardens while keeping Walt and Jerry's kids from running across the flower beds.

There are countless evidences of Christian influence in our community today. The Church has elevated human ideals. Faithful worship and spiritual growth bring us closer to those ideals.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Your Social Security

By DARYL RATLIFF
Field Representative

Many people have asked the question, "Will there be enough money remaining in the Fund for our payments when we want to get out benefits?" The number of Social Security beneficiaries has increased year after year and this growth is expected to continue for at least the next 50 years. To cover the cost of paying benefits to an increasing number the law provides for gradual increases in the Social Security tax rates, with the last increase going into effect in January, 1968. At that time the employee will be contributing 4 5/8 per cent of his earnings up to a maximum of $4800. A like amount will be contributed by the employer. Self-employed individuals will contribute 6.9 per cent.

These Social Security taxes contributed by working people and employers go into two Trust Funds which are kept separate from all other funds in the U. S. Treasury. Benefits are paid from these Funds when earnings are lost because a worker has retired or died, or become disabled. By law, the assets can be used only for the payment of benefits and administrative expenses.

The Social Security Act provides for a Board of Trustees of the Trust Funds, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Labor, and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. Annually, the Board of Trustees makes a report to Congress on the operations and status of the Funds during the previous fiscal year.

The method of financing Social Security is sound and based on the best estimates available. The tax, or contributions schedule, now in the law makes adequate provision for meeting both short-range and long-range costs.

TAHB TO HOLD MEMBERSHIP MEETING

The guest speaker will be Mr. Lawrence M. Cox, Executive Director of the Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority, who will speak on "Opportunities For The Home Builder in The Norfolk Redevelopment Housing Program."

Notes from Your COUNTY AGENT

By E. R. "DICK" COCKRELL, JR.

Diner: "Waiter, this is a very small steak."
Waiter: "Yes sir, it is."
Diner: "And it's tough."
Waiter: "Then you're lucky it's small."

WHY TRADE WITH OTHER NATIONS:

Is money spent in foreign lands lost forever? Can the United States compete with cheap foreign labor? Will increased imports create even greater unemployment in this country?

Foreign trade is just like any other kind of trade; it is based on the principle of specialization and exchange. The people in any country produce those goods and services for which they have a comparative advantage, and sell them to some other countries for something that they would rather have. A country may have a relative advantage because of natural resources, labor or management skills, capital investments or techniques. The broadening of markets is necessary to realize fully the economic gains from specialization, production, and more effective competition. As shifts in production occur because of greater specialization, larger and more efficient plants become the standard of industrial production. This can best be accomplished with free movements of goods across political boundaries. Thus, by engaging in trade, the country improves its overall position. We generally import goods from foreign countries for one of three reasons—we can buy cheaper than we can produce, the quality is better than the goods at home, or our own production (volume) of the goods is too small to meet demands.

It is estimated that U.S. exports account for 3,000,000 jobs while imports provide another 1,000,000. In agriculture, the produce from one out of every six acres of farm land is sent to foreign markets. Slightly more than half of this is exported with some form of government assistance. Both the economy of the nation as a whole, and the strength of the agricultural segment depend heavily upon earnings from exports.

The U. S. exchanges many types of products with other countries. It must be remembered that world trade is an exchange of goods for goods. Of course, credit may be used to postpone the payment. Dollars spent within the U.S. borders are not "saved" nor are those spent abroad "lost." Those dollars spent abroad by Americans must eventually be used to purchase something back from this country.

Paying high wages does not prevent U.S. industries from competing strongly in the world market. The lower productivity of foreign workers tends to offset the economic advantage of their low wages. However, firms may find themselves at a competitive disadvantage by having a high labor-product ratio if U.S. tariffs are reduced and imports increased. The unemployment situation will depend upon the adjustment ability of our industries and types of governmental programs.

The U.S. holds an unusual position of being the world's leading industrial producer and food exporter. The economic future of the U.S. probably lies in the direction of free trade with the rest of the world. However, it is important for each citizen to take the time to look at the contents of the merchandise that comes to us in the wrappings of "free trade."

Interested individuals may obtain a free copy of a special report entitled "World Trade," available from my office.

NUMBERS UP, PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER AT SPRING FEEDER CATTLE SALES

A record number of cattle moved through the annual series of spring feeder cattle sales in Virginia.

Of the 8,389 head sold, about 80 percent were steers and 20 percent were heifers. The steers averaged $27.60 per cwt., 25c below those in the spring series last year. Thirty percent of the steers graded Fancy and Choice, and averaged $27.78. About half of the steers graded Good, and brought the same average price as the higher grades. This indicates that most of the buyers were looking for steers to go on grass and felt that those grading Good would do just as well as those grading Choice. Steers grading Medium averaged $26.90.

The heifer cattle averaged $23.80, about 35c under last spring. Some demand was noted for heifers to go back on farms for herd building and restocking. The buyers restocking their herds were particularly interested in the heifers grading Fancy and Choice, and more specifically the heavy weight Choice heifers. At some sales, the heavier Choice heifers sold from $25 to $27, with the top at $27.25 — reached at Lynchburg on six Fancy and Choice Angus averaging 615 pounds.

The spread in price between steers and heifers continued rather wide again this spring.

Even with some demand for replacement heifers, most of them went to the feedlots of Ohio at prices ranging generally from $23 to $25, with Medium heifers selling in the $21 to $23 bracket.

Most of the steer calves weighing from 350 to 600 lbs. were bought by Virginia cattlemen at about the same price that light weight cattle sold for a year ago. Practically all these calves will go on grass, and many of them will be sold through the yearling feeder cattle sales in Virginia this fall.

The 600 to 700-pound steer cattle were the most difficult to move, selling mostly from $26 to $28, from $1 to $2 under last spring's prices. The 600 to 700-pound cattle were considered a little too heavy to go on grass by most Virginia grazing buyers, and the feedlot buyers were more interested in 700 to 900-pound cattle. Most of the heavier steers went directly to the feedlots. Northern feeders from Maryland and Pennsylvania were more active at the 1962 spring sales than were the midwestern feeders.

Top price paid at the sales was $36.25 on two head of Choice steers averaging 345 lbs. The practical top was $35.50 paid for 26 head of Choice steers averaging 431 pounds.

The spring sales were organized in Virginia in 1953 and have grown continuously since that time. They are operated similar to the fall feeder calf sales in that they are cooperatively sponsored by producer groups and the Virginia Beef Cattle Association. The cattle are graded by Virginia Department of Agriculture graders and sold in uniform groups by breed, sex, grade, and weight.

Darden Seeks Funds To Dredge Narrows

PRINCESS ANNE—Lynnhaven Supervisor James Darden requested the Board of Supervisors Monday to ask the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries for money to dredge the Narrows in the Broad Bay-Linkhorn Bay area.

"They could pay for it out of boat fees," Darden said. "There are more than 5,000 boats in this area which now pay the fee."

In other business, the board voted to ban swimming and boating along a 200 foot-wide stretch of beach between Williams Steel Fishing Pier and Rudee Inlet because of dangerous tides.

Josh Vaughan, operator of the steel pier, told the board of the treacherous tides. "Last Thursday I pulled out five people and Friday I pulled out two who were caught in the outgoing tide from Rudee Inlet," Vaughan said. "There is also the additional problem of surf-riders in this area. They have attracted younger boys and girls who try to do the same things the older ones do with rubber floats, and it is dangerous.

The board also voted to ban shuffleboard, pinball and pool table play in the county between midnight and 6 a.m. at the request of the police. Police Chief James E. Moore said, "We have gamblers who come in here and play all night. It is almost impossible to catch them."

Richard J. Webbon, executive secretary of the board, was authorized by the board to write owners of Pembroke Manor, advising that the county intends to purchase the old historic house at a formerly agreed price of $10,000.

The board was also requested by the Chesapeake Beach Men's Club for a parking ban on some streets in their area and the limiting of others to one-way traffic. Bayside Supervisor Carroll G. Clough said "something needs to be done about this problem."

Youth Given Suspended Term

PRINCESS ANNE — Judge S. Wahab of Princess Anne Circuit Court sentenced a 19-year-old youth to 6 years of prison for three counts of manslaughter and then suspended them for two years on the condition of good behavior.

After pleading guilty to the manslaughter of Mrs. Betty R. Jones of Virginia Beach, Mrs. Ruth E. Alphin of Virginia Beach, and Chester M. Craig of NAS Oceana in an automobile accident near Virginia Beach, last February, William J. Austin of NAS Oceana received the suspended sentence of two years for each count of manslaughter.

Commonwealth's Attorney Robert L. Simpson has recommended those sentences and their suspension. Simpson also nol-prossed a charge of reckless driving against Austin after the trial of manslaughter charges.

The three died of injuries received when Austin's car collided with another at the intersection of Atlantic Avenue and U.S. 60 the night of Feb. 1.

Beach, County Schools Favor Bible Reading

VIRGINIA BEACH — Frank W. Cox, superintendent of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County schools announced Tuesday, that he has no plans to eliminate devotionals in the classrooms, despite Monday's decision by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Cox said, "We encourage Bible reading and prayer in our schools and it is gratifying to observe that many classes and schools have regular periods for devotional periods. We feel that more effort and steps are in order to keep God in our schools, rather than to exclude him from them. We will continue to encourage prayers in our schools."

After the Supreme Court handed down its 6-1 decision declaring school prayers unconstitutional, Monday, several opinions were voiced from school superintendents in the Tidewater area.

When asked what the effect of the ruling would be to his system, Supt. E. E. Brickell of South Norfolk said, "So far as I'm concerned, nothing." Each South Norfolk school officially begins the day with a short prayer. Brickell also stated that no one is forced to participate in the devotionals if he doesn't want, and that there have been no complaints.

It has been traditional practice to begin the day with the Lord's prayer, said Supt. A. J. Mapp Sr. of Portsmouth and E. L. Lamberth of Norfolk.

Sandpiper Playhouse Presenting Comedy Here Sunday Night

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Sandpiper Theatre tent will more resemble a menagerie than a theatre-in-the-round Sunday when the classic "You Can't Take It With You" opens.

The Moss Hart - George S. Kaufman comedy features three snakes, two kittens and a bird. Only the snakes (affectionately" called Tom, Jerry and Bob) are not for real. The kittens and bird are very much alive and have been attending rehearsals like veteran actors.

Backing up this assorted talent is a cast composed of Alice DuBois, Arleen Cohen, Clarisse Durham, Ed Blonts, Albert Dinkins, Randy Parker, Skip Osborne, J. J. O'Keefe, Glenn Perry Boggs, Foy Shaw, Roy Pratt, Jim Stanley, Ty Silbert, Elise Simon, Georgiana Spelvin, Sandy Eichler, John Cobb and Bob Maul.

Dean Burgess is the director.

"Yum-Yum" Stars

Appearing in this cast will be Fred Hines, Laura Jean Lambe, Dave Soblin and Anne Dawson.

Stage manager is Liz Sills and assisting her with props and sets are John Sills and Julie Whitehurst. Shotsie Margolius is in charge of costumes.

Sandpiper Theatre will premiere Friday with a by-invitation-only showing of "Brigadoon" followed by a reception at the Bay Harbour Club. The famous musical will open to the general public Saturday and will alternate with the other two plays for the next five weeks. It will also alternate with two other productions in the second 5-week series.

Season tickets are on sale at Alexander-Beegle Men's Store on 31st Street.

Downing preceeded the reading of the article by commenting: ". . . . I am very pleased to bring to my colleagues' attention an editorial that recently appeared in the Virginia Beach Sun-News, an outstanding weekly newspaper published at Virginia Beach, Va."

Dixieland Jazz Part of July 13th "Jazz Night"

VIRGINIA BEACH — Old-Fashioned Dixie-land will mix with the more modern progressive type when "Jazz Night at VB" is held July 13 at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center.

Featured will be Dave Brubeck and Kal Winding, along with some of the real old pros of the Dixie land circuit, Eddie Barefield and his Dixieland All-Stars. Another group, yet to be announced, will join the group when the hot licks begin.

Brubeck and his group are internationally acclaimed as one of the world's foremost jazz combos. He has carried the jazz message to the four corners of the world in his travels, including a jazz jaunt to Europe under the auspices of the U. S. State Department.

The Kai Winding Septet features four trombones and three rhythm pieces, firmly establishing the "trombone sound" in today's music. Winding began gaining a reputation and refing his sound with the great, big bands of Benny Goodman and Stan Kenton.

Barefield, from New Orleans, has played his clarinet with some of the all-time greats of jazzdom, including the orchestras of Beenie Moten, Don Redman, Cab Calloway, Jelly Roll Morton, and Fletcher Anderson. He has conducted Ella Fitzgerald's band and was musical director of the Broadway production of "Streetcar Named Desire." Barefield has also arranged for Lionel Hampton and Charlie Barnet.

The "Jazz Night" is being held simultaneously with The Seventh Annual Broadwalk Art Show, which runs July 12-16.

Tickets for the Jazz Show are $5.00 for reserved seats, and $4.00 general admission. Mail orders can be sent to the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center at Virginia Beach.

Tickets are on sale locally at all Hub Stores in Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Newport News; the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center at Virginia Beach; and, radio station WYFI-FM in the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk.

12-Story Hotel Planned Here; To Open in '64

New Facility Would Be Located On Oceanfront

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

VIRGINIA BEACH—A proposed $4 million 12-story hotel for this resort is in the planning stages and may be opened by early 1964.

Owned by Southwestern Development Co. of Los Angeles, Calif., the facility will be located on property adjoining the Cavalier Hotel. The site extends from the beachfront west to Holly Road and spans both Atlantic Avenues and Pacific.

Preliminary designs have been drawn by James Pownall, a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. architect, and includes a beach club, pool facilities and adequate sized convention space. A recreation area may be installed at the back of the hotel toward Holly Road.

B. K. Ruddock, formerly of Gloucester, Va., vice president of the Southwestern Development Co., is the principal involved and Everett A. Fairlamb of Richmond is assistant secretary of the firm and its East Coast representative.

"We have a long way to go on this thing before it becomes a reality," Fairlamb commented Wednesday.

Plans for site preparations are scheduled to get underway this fall and the target date for opening is early 1964.

Most of the hotel principals are "displaced Virginians," Fairlamb said, who have transferred to Southwestern's home office in Los Angeles. The firm purchased the property from the Cavalier-Jefferson Corp. almost two years ago.

Name of the proposed building has not been determined but the preliminary artist's conception has been completed and will possibly be released in about a month.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN VIRGINIA, President Jefferson Davis was sworn in under the Confederate Constitution at Richmond (February 22nd). Throughout the state and all over the South, the event was toasted with foaming steins of beer.

For then, as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of Southern hospitality to any occasion. Virginians have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

P.A.C.C. Takes on Tropical Look at 'Jamaica' Party

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Princess Anne Country Club took on the look of a tropical isle Saturday for its "Jamaica in June" party.

Members and guests entered the poolside area through a silver simulated airplane where they were greeted by the hostess, Dorrie Niel, and offered a champagne cocktail.

"Flew" to Island

They stepped off the "plane" into a South Seas paradise setting. The pool was centered with a flaming floral piece, created by Herbert Harrell, composed of a profusion of summer blooms. Occasional magnolias floated around the arrangement and green tropical shrubbery placed about the terrace made a background for the driftwood and magnolia decorated buffet tables.

One buffet was set up near the pool and another was arranged on the upper deck. Each served 100 persons and was beautifully laid with both American and native dishes.

The Trinidad Steel Band furnished authentic limbo music as guests tried their hand at the strenuous island dance. The courageous participants were kept in rhythmic order by Anne Donahoe, Owen Campbell, Anne Hodgson, Melissa Whidden and Lee Doggett.

Some of the "islanders" were decked out in fancy wear but the majority favored tailored shirts and Bermuda shorts and many of the gals tucked large white magnolias, or some such flower, in their hair. The shapeless, colorful mumuus may be more native to Hawaii than Trinidad but a few, worn by Mrs. Richard F. Welton, Mrs. C. T. Dickson, Mrs. O. J. Donahoe and Mrs. T. N. P. Johnson, made attractive party costumes.

Bathing suits were also popular with the party-goers, as noticed on Mrs. Harold Via, Mrs. James A. Hooper Jr. and Mrs. Anne Darden Hunter, which led to some later-in-the-evening dips in the pool, under the supervision of the life guards, Dave Jones and Nat Meekin.

Definitely not among the swimmers, however, was Cmdr. Alan Shepard who chose to accept his laurels for feats in outer space rather than underwater.

One table was composed of four couples celebrating their wedding anniversary; the E. H. Renns, the R. F. Weltons, the Richard G. Brydges and the J. P. Hollands III. The Renns and Hollands were married at exactly the same moment, but in different cities.

The Chesapeake Bay Bearcats, a swinging Dixieland group, took over the bandstand after dinner for American-style dancing.

CLUB TO HOLD LUAU PARTY

BIRDNECK POINT — The Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club will hold a Hawaiian Luau party Saturday.

A buffet dinner, featuring authentic island dishes, will be served around the pool from 8 to 10 p.m.

Les Larson and his band will furnish music for dancing around the pool terrace from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Hawaiian or casual sports wear will be the dress for the occasion. Reservations should be made in advance.

The jubilant male who thought he had killed the decade's most controversial fashion —the chemise, (also called the sack or bag) — is now discovering that victory has eluded him. To spare his feelings the name is different—muu muu —or shifts or Marimekko.

Inga Borg

But by any name this year's popular straight-hanging figure concealing dress is distressing by the same shape as the sack.

How convenient for weight-worriers.

We left off last week with eating habits, and started the day with a glass of good warm water before breakfast.

Now, after dressing and ready for that first cup of coffee, you should have a large breakfast, such as eggs, bacon, two slices of toast and jam. I am sure you will not have a desire to have a glass of juice anymore because the glass of water takes care of that first urge for a glass of "something."

This does not mean you should avoid fruit juices. You can have grapefruit or tomato juice as an in-between snack, as long as you wait half an hour after your meal. Also make sure you leave four hours in between large meals because your body cannot absorb the food properly in too short a period.

With a large breakfast you do not have to count half of the calories you are eating since you have the entire day ahead of you to work them off.

For lunch go ahead and enjoy a normal size meal with salads, vegetables, some meat or fish. Again, have your beverages at least half an hour after your meal and then have a small desert or make it a 4 o'clock tea.

I am sure after these fairly sized meals you do not have a desire to eat a large dinner. Preparing the dinner will take some of your appetite, (the testing of foods and so on). Sit down at the dinner table and give your husband and children the larger portions. Now you are on the small dinner-portion-kick—try to keep it that way. Don't say you can't. Where there is a will, there is a way.

You have only trained your stomach wrong by eating the largest meal of the day at night. By nature your body cannot absorb all that food that quick and so much left over is stored as "fat" in your body. This is very often the problem.

Why not join me here next week again and I'll tell you more of what daily habits should be for a healthier, thinner and more fashionable way of living.

The Decision on Saying a Prayer in Public Schools

"I cannot see how an 'official religion' is established by letting those who want to say a prayer say it."

These were the words of Mr. Justice Potter Stewart of the United States Supreme Court as part of his dissenting opinion in the court's 6 to 1 decision in holding the Regent's Prayer in the New York public schools as unconstitutional.

The Regent's Prayer is a simple 22-word nonsectarian prayer recited after the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag in public schools in New York State.

Here is the prayer's text:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

The prayer is certainly simple enough and could hardly be offensive to most parents. It professes no religion in particular and more or less embraces religion as a whole.

There have been many voices raised criticizing the court's decision in this matter. We must take our place among those who disagree with the decision. We look at the matter as Justice Stewart expressed it in his minority opinion.

We also like the reaction of our public school superintendent, Mr. Frank W. Cox, who is quoted as saying: "We encourage Bible reading and prayer in our schools and it is gratifying to observe that many classes and schools have regular periods for devotional purposes.

"We feel that more effort and steps are in order to keep God in our schools, rather than to exclude Him from them. We will continue to encourage prayers in our schools."

We believe the comment of the Rt. Rev. George P. Gunn of Norfolk, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia, sums up briefly our feeling in the matter.

Bishop Gunn said: "A nation that doesn't pray doesn't survive."

Tourism – "A Two-way Street"

The Virginia Beach Hotel, Motel, Apartment and Cottage Association brought in an expert last week and he spoke to a representative audience of about 70 distinguished business leaders and civic officials.

Karl H. Koepcke, public relations manager for North America of Lufthansa German Airlines, left some thoughts for us to ponder. From his experience on tourist travel in five continents, he said, no nation has as much to offer as the United States.

His subject was "Visit The U.S.A. Program" and he extolled particularly the vast recreational and cultural resources of Virginia Beach and the gracious Southern hospitality almost invariably shown by Tidewater's innkeepers.

But Mr. Koepcke brought up a point that we might well take to heart. In Europe, he said, the "portier" — the man who knows everything — is a highly regarded member of every good hotel's staff. He is more than a porter; he is a well paid gentleman of infinite knowledge with the sole job of telling the guest everything from where is the closest chess club to the location of the nearest diaper service.

He also can speak a handful of languages and tell you in words you can understand what time tomorrow will be the best tide for catching fish from a dozen available piers and marinas.

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has made a beginning in this field and its efforts are to be commended. They offer a service of translators in many languages and can be called upon at any time to bridge that communications barrier which so frequently develops when a foreign traveler here falls into a lingo limbo.

Economy . . . or Servitude

"I place economy among the first and the most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest dangers to be feared . . . To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with prepetual debt. . . We must make our choice between economy and liberty or profusion and servitude . . .

"If we run into such debts, we must be taxed in our meat and drink, in our necessities and our comforts, in our labors and in our amusements . . . If we can prevent the Government from wasting the labors of the people, under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy."

—Thomas Jefferson

Lynnhaven Supervisor James G. Darden told Morrell his company will receive a monthly operating allowance from the county as soon as it obtains a piece of equipment.

Fire call from Princess Anne Plaza, Malibu, Kings Grant, and surrounding areas will be answered by the new company.

ney George Vakos and his description of the car lead to the apprehension of the driver, who was charged with drunken driving.

Police discovered that less than six hours before, the driver had been charged with blocking traffic. Combined charges resulted in the heavy fine.

Other convictions in the 2-week period have included 10 for profanity; 13 disorderly conduct; 3 indecent exposures; 2 thefts in automobiles; and the rest for speeding, reckless driving, no drivers licenses, driving under the influence and petit larceny.

Landscape School Conducted at Plaza

PRINCESS ANNE PLAZA — Professional secrets of landscaping were disclosed at a special "School of Landscape Design" held recently at Plaza Elementary School for the Homeowners in Hidden Valley at Princess Anne Plaza. The program was sponsored by the Lafayette Building Corporation.

This program was developed by the National Housing Center for use by builders affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders.

Mr. Keister Evans, Jr., Assistant County Agent, for Princess Anne County, said "this was an opportunity for the homeowner to learn the correct and most practical way of beautifying the exterior of his property."

Mr. I. T. Christian, Jr., Landscape Architect, stated "It's the individuality of the homemaker that counts most in landscaping the home." Additional things to think about in planning a program of landscaping. "There are a tremendous variety in plant materials, within each type of shrub, tree and flower with larger variety of color, shape and form."

The film produced by the American Association of Nurserymen called "Basic Technique for Home Landscaping" added much to the over all program.

Keister stressed "Proper feeding of the lawn can save lots of time, money and work." He added, "Before you do anything with your lawn, get your soil tested. This can be done by the County Agents office free of charge. Then you will know what food your lawn needs. If you feed it properly you will have beautiful grass."

Lawrence A. Sancilio, President of Larasan Realty Corporation, and sales agents for the Lafayette Building Corporation acted as Master of Ceremonies for the program. He also explained a special landscaping contest sponsored by the Lafayette Building Corporation for the Hidden Valley Homeowners.

FLAT LAND 4-H'ERS TURN MOUNTAINEERS

This past Monday morning eight senior 4-H Club members from Princess Anne County boarded a chartered bus at Kempsville to join the delegation from the counties of Accomack, Northampton, Norfolk, and Nansemond, for an all-day journey through the hills of Southwest, Virginia.

Keister Evens

While you are reading this column, these senior 4-H Club members are in session with approximately 1200 such members representing every county in our Commonwealth, at the State 4-H Short Course, here in Blacksburg, Virginia, on the Campus of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, our Land Grant College, which is our state 4-H Club headquarters.

As I look through the windows of my dormitory room, which is in Eggleston Hall, here on the campus, I can't avoid doing a little reminiscing. It was in June, of 1961, that I ended a 4-year stay here at VPI, as a student. It is always an enjoyable experience for me to return to the Campus, and have a chance to chat with the administrative staff here, as well as many friends who are still working on higher degrees.

There are many inspirations to the 4-H Club member who attends 4-H Club Short Course here for a week each summer. One of these which I feel is quite rewarding is the opportunity to live in a college dormitory for a week, and have a taste of what college life is like. Most of the 4-H Club Short Course delegates are in their final years of high school, and are now involved in making a decision as to what they will do upon graduation. Each year there are a number of applications to Virginia Polytechnic Institute, from 4-H Club members who have become interested in attending this college because of their opportunity to learn what the life is like on the campus and what Virginia Tech has to offer.

THE SHORT COURSE PROGRAM

Each year the State 4-H Club department does an excellent job in designing the program that will be rounded and give the club member an opportunity for development in many different areas. There are 25 classes being taught on the campus, from which the Short Course delegates may select several that he feels will be most beneficial to him. Each evening, the entire state Short Course delegation assembles in Burruss Hall, on the campus for a very inspiring and enjoyable program. Monday evening we assembled for a general opening to give all the club members an opportunity to get acquainted with the State 4-H Club staff, the administrative staff of the entire agricultural Extension Service, and many other persons who have helped to make the Virginia 4-H Club the high caliber organization that it is.

On Tuesday evening, the program included an opportunity for all of us to recognize the 4-H Club leaders that are of so much assistance to the program, and a very enjoyable presentation on the International Farm Youth Exchange Program which has, in recent years, played a very important role in our country's public relations with many other countries to which delegates have visited.

Wednesday evening, we had the privilege of listening to a welcome and a very enjoyable talk by Dr. L. B. Deitrick, who is Dean of the School of Agriculture, at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. And also on the program, we were entertained by a 4-H Club Dress Revue, with 4-H Boys and girls from all over the State participating in a very enjoyable fashion show. Tonight we plan to have a 4-H Club Theatre Party, and then, tomorrow evening we will have the opportunity to enjoy the event that is looked forward to all week long. This event is the 4-H Club Talent Show.

HUNTER SPENCE TO DIRECT TALENT SHOW

Hunter Spence, former Princess Anne County 4-H Club member, from Back Bay, Virginia, and present 4-H Club All Star, has been designated to direct the State 4-H Club Talent Show, which climaxes the Short Course on Friday evening.

Last year I had an opportunity to attend the talen show, and I can truthfully say that it is one of the most enjoyable events which I have attended in many a year. It is hard to believe that the 4-H Club members have the ability to put on a talent show that could almost be classified as a professional event.

All of the participants in the 4-H Club talent show have been winners, first on a County level, and then in their Extension district, and now will be participating in the State-wide talent show here at the College, competing for a chance to attend National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

OTHER CONTESTS AND DEMONSTRATIONS

Along with the talent show competition, the 4-H Club members will be competing for honors in 25 other dmonstrations and activities. The winners in all of these activities will receive various awards; many of which include a free trip to participate in National competition, at the National 4-H Club Congress, in Chicago, Ill.

A MEMORABLE WEEK

I wish that every person who reads this column could have the opportunity to spend one week at VPI, participating in and observing the activities which are carried on throughout the week. It is very inspiring to see these young adults take responsibility for carrying out programs and participating in the different activities and events and it gives one a very rewarding and self-satisfying feeling to know that these are our leaders and citizens of tomorrow. For those of us who work directly with the 4-H Club program, this is one of the many times that we can see how these youths have grown through the training they have received in 4-H, as well as in many other areas. I think every person who has had a part in the 4-H Club Short Course will be able to say on Saturday afternoon when he or she returns home, "A Rewarding Week".

NEWS OF ARAGONA VILLAGE

Perky Brunette Has Feminine Lead in Sandpiper Opener

ARAGONA VILLAGE—Jane Stinson Garrison, a perky brunette with an outstanding musical background in the Tidewater area, will have the female singing lead in "Brigadoon," the Sandpiper Theatre's opening play.

The fantasy-comedy will have a private showing Friday but will open to the general public Saturday and run on alternate nights throughout the 10-week season. It will alternate with "You Can't Take It With You" and "Under the Yum-Yum Tree" the first five weeks and with two other plays the last five weeks.

Jane is the daughter of Harry Stinson, the immediate past potentate of Khedive Temple, and a native of Norfolk. She and her husband, Warren W. Garrison, an insurance representative, live with their four children in Aragona Village.

Though her part in "Brigadoon" is her largest role to date, Jane is no stranger to the theatre. She appeared in the Norfolk Little Theatre presentations of "The Boyfriend" and "Merry Wives of Windsor" and teamed with her own daughter, Patsy, last year in "Plain and Fancy."

Most of her musical recognition has been gained from work as a soloist with several Norfolk churches and a few months ago she snagged a major singing part in the "Golden Gaities" production.

Her new role will bring her before the Sandpiper Theatre for the first time, but last year she worked with the group behind the scenes as production chairman for "Send Me No Flowers."

Jane studied locally with Virginia Hufty Fleming and was directed by Jon Dawson, now directing "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," in special plays in-the-round for Child and Family Welfare Agency.

Visitors View Bridge-Tunnel

CHESAPEAKE BEACH — Seven West German highway officials concluded a month-long study of American road and bridge building methods this week with an inspection tour of the 17.5 mile Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel project.

The group included public road officials of the German Federal Republic and executives of West German highway contracting firms.

They inspected work in progress on four man-made islands which will provide entrance into two tunnels in the $200,000,000 crossing at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay. They also observed the sinking of one of the huge steel casings that will form the two mile-long tunnels. The tube was the seventh of 19 to be placed in a trench under the Thimble Shoal ship channel.

The Tuesday inspection tour included a visit to Bayshore Concrete Products Corp. at Cape Charles, Virginia, to study prefabrication methods used in manufacturing components for the crossing's 12 miles of concrete trestle.

Since June 1, the West Germans have traveled to New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., visiting federal and state highway departments, research laboratories and industries producing road building equipment and materials.

The visitors were dinner guests of the City of Norfolk before leaving for Washington and New York, from which they will sail for Germany on Friday.

P. Z. Michener, project manager for the consulting engineering firm of Sverdrup and Parcel, conducted the tour of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel project. Other foreign groups touring the project have come from Japan and Sweden.

Sappenfield issued the following list of pros already in the fold: Tommy Whillock, Eagle Haven; Harold "Shorty" Oatman, Naval Base; Clarence Underwood; Carl Resnic, Fort Meade, Md., Ansell Snow, Charlottesville; Dick Amadon, Richmond; Phil Leake, Charlottesville; Paul Roy, Williamston, N.C.; Ed Brown, Plymouth, N.C.; Loch Lowman, Greensboro, N.C.; D. Roy Darden, of Portsmouth and his 1962 Pontiac called "Gold Rush," again walked away with top honors in the Super-Super Stock Class. This was Roy's third consecutive win at Freedom "7", putting another $150.00 in his pocket. Darden's speed was 98.90 m.p.h.

Hundreds of specators were surprised to see a newcomer, Lt. Dutch Bloser, USMC, of Jacksonville, N.C., drive his 1962 Chevrolet convertible to a speed of 97.50 m.p.h. winning 2nd place in the SS/S Class.

The weaker sex batted a thousand on the 1/5 mile strip Sunday, when the two women entrants came out on the top end of their classes. Joan Darden, of Portsmouth pushed her 1953 Studebaker to 87.54 m.p.h. winning in the A/Gas Class. Miss R. Beach Jaycee Golf Winners

These four youngsters qualified Monday to play in the State Jaycee championship matches at Lynchburg July 9-11. From left, Zack Clement, fourth place; Leslie Watson, first place; Larry Mailhes, second place; and Archie B. McDowell, third place.

Four Beach Youngsters Qualify For State Jaycee Golf Tourney

VIRGINIA BEACH — Leslie Watson, 15-year-old member of the Virginia Beach High School golf team, led the qualifying round in the Virginia Beach Jaycee tourney held Monday at the Cavalier Golf and Country Club.

Young Watson had to come from behind to win out over teammate Larry Mailhes, another 15-year-old, in the 36-hole qualifying test.

The medalist soared to a 79 in the morning round that found Mailhes and young Archie B. McDowell tied for the lead with rounds of 76. Watson fired a two-over-par 71 in the final round to win with a total of 150 for the 36 holes.

Young Mailhes finished with a 79 in the afternoon round for a total of 155 and runner-up honors. McDowell slipped to an 80 for a 156 total and third place.

Zack Clement, 13-year-old National Peewee tournament runner-up finished fourth with rounds of 84-73—157.

The four youngsters thus captured the four qualifying places in the State Jaycee tournament to be held over the Boonsboro course in Lynchburg, July 9-11.

Fishing Around

By JIM BULLOCK

The blue fishing of last week has cooled off. The area fishing piers report continued catches of small blues, but nothing to compare with last week. The big action has moved offshore with the charter-boaters. Some report catches of bonito mackerel, blues and a few cobia. The tuna are out there but are not taking the bait.

Beach-Bay Marina

Capt. Joe Blythe of the "Misty II" with a party from Franklin, Va., caught some bonito mackerel and citation blues Sunday about 20 miles off False Cape. Capt. Blythe is from North Carolina and last year ran out of Long Creek Marina. He is now located at Beach-Bay Marina at Virginia Beach.

Long Creek Marina

Capt. Bob Pebworth of the "Robin" with Jimmy Sadler, Steve Quimby and Claude Fentress aboard took three cobia, the largest weighing 36 lbs. on Monday. They noted schools of cobia in the bay and also tuna further out.

Oregon Inlet

Billy Lyonns, Sebrell Johnson, Frank Atkins, Everett Irby and Sterling Holcomb all of Virginia Beach took 42 Dolphin aboard Capt. Ornie Tillet's "Sportsman" last week. They averaged around 7 lbs. The largest, caught by Billy Lyonns weighed 17 lbs., a citation size if taken in Virginia waters. They were fishing in the Gulfstream, forty miles offshore. They came back with a tale about one member of the party that is no "fish story". The night before they went out it seems that two of the fishermen got very little sleep. They were sleeping three in one of the motel rooms. One man warned the other two that sometimes he snored "a little". The next morning his two roommates were found, one in the hall on a mattress and the other out in a car. The man in the hall was quoted as saying "he was about to saw the whole building down."

Commercial Fishing

You may have noticed several large fishing boats working about 150 yards off the beach last week. They were trawlers from Moorehead City, N.C. and Reidsville, Va., catching menheyden for plants at their home ports. They manufacture fish oil, fertilizer, and pet food from the menheyden. Their fish are spotted by planes which radio the location of the school back to the boat. It is quite an interesting operation.

COACH SOUGHT

VIRGINIA BEACH — Carlton Bowyer, football coach at Virginia Beach High School, is looking for a line coach. Bowyer said there are teaching openings in the social studies, English, math and science departments.

Prospects are asked to contact James Helmer, the principal, at GA 8-7655.

Beach Ice Plant Has New Owner

By LESLIE RUSSELL

VIRGINIA BEACH—Shortly after the turn of the century, the Virginia Beach Ice Delivery Plant on Norfolk Avenue, began its service to the Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County area.

Virginia Beach was only a small fishing village, "no where near the big resort area it is now," Robert Barco, owner and manager of the Virginia Beach ice plant, said, and the plant was the only source of ice in the area. People were dependent on it for supplying ice boxes, fishing parties, and beach parties with ice.

Although the days of the "ole ice box" are long gone, the need and demand for plant ice is still very much a part of today. Fishermen, beach parties, and often people who remember the "by-gone days" find the ice plant, after 51 years of service, still the best place to get ice.

The younger generation may not realize the differences between plant and machine-made ice but there are differences and very important ones, too. Ice-plant ice is colder, harder, and purer.

"Ice made in the machines often seen at gas stations, fishing piers, and boat marinas is made at a warmer temperature and is not "aironated," Barco said. "The presence of air allows the ice to collect odors, giving it a flavor. Ice plant ice which is aironated is flavorless and chrystal clear."

The general system for ice plant - ice production hasn't changed for a century but the methods are being improved upon all the time. Barco's corporation, which includes four delivery trucks, is now putting out "ice merchandisers" similar to ice machines, but filled with plant ice. These merchandisers are located at boat marinas, filling stations, and fishing piers.

Princess Anne Golfers Making Runaway in Team Match Play

SEWELLS POINT — Princess Anne Country Club utilized its solid team depth and a 73 by Fred Aucamp, the co-medalist, to virtually wrap up the Tidewater Team Match championship at the Sewells Point course.

Princess Anne began the sizzling day with a 100-point lead in the four-team field. When the match ended, the Virginia Beach club had scored 197 points and had increased its lead to 163 over second place Elizabeth Manor, 625 to 462.

Elizabeth Manor picked up 144 points Sunday, host Sewells Point 143 and James River 164.

Sewells Point retained third place in the point standings with 447 and James River trails with 439.

The climax of the four-match series will come August 12, when Elizabeth Manor will try on its home course to overcome PA's 163-point advantage.

Aucamp, a former Norfolk City champion and a William & Mary College golf star, was one over par with his 73 and shared medalist honors with 18-year-old Ronnie Melvin of James River, a June graduate of Hampton High and son of James River's team captain, Burr Melvin.

Aucamp led all 64 golfers by collecting 35 points. Young Melvin picked up 33.

Providing the depth for PACC were Aucamp, Jordon Ball, who shot a 74 for 19 points in the No. 1 foursome; Brad Tazewell, PA team captain with a 75 and 25 points; Dick Payne, 74 and 20; Billy McClanan, 78 and 14; Charles McDowell, 75 and 13.

PRINCESS ANNE — J. T. Timmons fired a steady 76 and won his first Princess Anne Seniors championship with a 2 and 1 victory over Clyde Whitely.

Timmons had upset medalist Wayne Whitley in the semifinals.

Whitley shot a fine 79 in his losing battle in the final round.

In Sunday's blind bogey, five golfers tied for first with a net 80: Reid Ervin 95-15—80, W. N. Marshall 88-8—80, Cmdr. Frank Abel 97-17—80, H. L. Smith, 92-12—80, O. B. Ferebee, 92-12—80.

BOW CREEK—Vic Barnett's net 74 and a pair of 70s by Sam Norris and Bill Gresham won the weekend blind bogey honors.

BC NOTES: Jackie Lehner, 14, fired one-over-par 72, some 17 strokes better than his previous best round . . . C. W. Dillman eagled the third hole by sinking a 140-yard shot . . . Florence Kramer had a 93 with four pars on the back nine, her best showing yet. . . . Joyce Strelitz's second shot on No. 15 stopped 10 inches from the cup for an easy birdie three.

CAVALIER — The team of Martha Ferrell, O. J. Cain, Kit Malbon and Dr. Guy Clayton won the best-ball of the foursome event at Cavalier with a 54. In second place with a best-ball 55 were Cecil Chironna, Vee Cavanaugh, Ed. Denney and Horace Woolf.

Woodson Warns of Holiday Traffic

RICHMOND, Va.—Asking for an even better record than the two Virginia Memorial Day traffic deaths this year and a lower than average total for the including week, Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, deplored that "it can't happen to me" attitude adopted by so many motorists.

"The dangers of holiday traffic have been brought to attention again and again," he said. "The average person must be quite well aware of them, yet he seems to feel that traffic crashes happen only to other people. It should be readily apparent to anyone that the higher the speed, the more the risk of a crash and the more severe it will be if it comes; that alcohol interferes dangerously with safe driving; that one cannot drive properly when exhausted, and that such actions as taking a chance on rounding a curve or passing other vehicles invite disaster. Yet a study of traffic fatalities for any holiday period sees these actions predominate."

Colonel Woodson also called for defensive driving, asking drivers to do more than their legal share in preventing crashes. He mentioned here that about seven out of 10 people killed in traffic suffer through no fault of their own and at the hands of a lawbreaker. "One does not have to be at fault himself to become involved in a crash," he noted here, "and if could all realize this and relinquish our traffic rights rather than risk trouble, the toll would go down."

Concluding, he again asked all cooperation in the summer-long "Slow Down and Live" campaign, from Memorial Day through Labor Day weekend.

Little League Hi-Lites

AMERICAN LEAGUE CUBS REMAIN UNBEATEN

Bill Renn's Cubs, in the American Little League, at Virginia Beach logged three big victories this week, to move their record to 7 and 0. On Tuesday, the Tigers fell victim to a no-hitter, twirled by Vivie Hodgson. Friday's game saw the Sports and the Cubs in a wild 15-12 contest, with the Cubs again coming out on top. The Rotarians completed the week by falling to the red hot Cubs, 11-1.

On Tuesday, Vivie Hodgson, of the Cubs, threw his second no-hitter of the year. In the course of the game, he fanned 11 of the Tigers, while walking only 2. Ben Sessum was the loser for the Tigers.

In Friday's game with the Sports, the competition was a little more keen. Before the Cubs could rest easily, Bobby Thomas had hoisted his first home run of the year, in the first inning. Two of his mates, Steve Thomas and Scott Larson, went three for four at the plate. These efforts were pretty much nullified by Vivie Hodgson, with three hits for four trips, and David Brown, who checked in with a perfect night at the plate, four for four.

Saturdays game with the Rotarians was won by Gordon Rathburn, 11-1, with Phillip Moore taking the loss.

In other games played last week, the Rotarians and the Sports battled in a hitter duel. The Rotarians outlasted the Sports, and came on to win, 12-7. Bobby Johnson got the win for the Rotarians, with Bobby Thomas taking the loss. On Saturday, the Sports won another hitters duel with the Tigers, 10-8. Duncan Currie went the distance for the Sports to notch his first victory of the year. This was the first game on the mound for young Currie. Doug Compton was the loser.

The Rotarians and the Tigers completed the week's schedule. The Rotarians blasted their way to a 17-5 victory. Chip Clark won the five-hitter, and was aided by eight hits from his mates. Bobby Coogan was charged with the loss. Doug Compton chipped in with a four-bagger in the first, but the Rotarians came on big in the later innings to assure the victory.

Thunderbirds Lose; Then Win In National League

The Virginia Beach National League remains dominated by the hardhitting Thunderbirds this week. The T-Birds got off to a bad start by falling victim to the Little Giants, 7-4, behind the 4-hit pitching of Moe Walcott. Norm Grosskatz hit a homer in his losing efforts against the Giants, but the eight hits that he gave up, plus 3 miscues by his team mates, proved too much.

The Thunderbirds came back later in the week, however, to beat the Pipers by a 5-3 margin. Even in this contest, they got off to a shakey start, spotting the Pipers 4 runs in the first three innings. A big home run by Charles Wilson in the fifth, however, got them started on the come back, and after that, they never relinquished the lead. Wayne Agee went the route for the losers, and never did look bad. Errors in key places told the story for the Pipers. Buddy Hines picked up the win for the T-Birds.

In the only other game played in the National League this week, the Hawks and the Little Giants battled to a 4-4 tie, which will be completed at a later date. The Thunderbirds and the Pipers were halted by the weather, in another game that goes to completion in the near future.

PITCHERS LEAD THE WAY IN PRINCESS ANNE LEAGUE

In the Princess Anne Little League, the action was hot and heavy. Word of the All-Star game has come thru, and this little "extra motivation" is really keeping the boys on their toes. The tilt will be played against Central Accomac, at Carey Field, on July 20th.

In action this week, shutout was the watchword, with four out of the six games played showing goose-eggs. The other two contests saw the losers garner only lone tallies. There were two no-hitters.

It was a bad week for the league leading Anzacs. They bowed to the Peppers by an 8-0 margin on Friday, after being set down almost single handedly by Kenny Wilson on Wednesday. In Wednesday's game, Wilson tossed a no-hitter against the Anzacs, and then, in the last inning, drove in the winning runs.

Robert Jones tossed a no-hitter for the Orioles, as they downed the Rebels, 8-0. Again on Saturday night, the Orioles came on strong to down the Bears, 7-1. David Teu was the big gun in this game, belting a circuit clout, and two more hits, for a perfect three for three night at the plate.

In the other two games, the Peppers downed the Dukes in a 2-1 heartbreaker. This seemed to carry over to Thursday, when the Dukes again bowed to the Rebels, this time by a 5-0 margin.

In the second week of the place by the Peppers, the Orioles, and the Bears.

second round play, the Anzacs have been knocked out of first

Two centuries ago a glassmaker in Pennsylvania provided the land for the erection of a church. But he attached a string to his gift. Each year the congregation must pay to him, or to his descendants, one red rose, forever.

Annually in a traditional service the members of that church fulfil the terms of their deed. In the words of a reverent visitor, "God's rent is paid in coin more worthy than man's."

What strange thrust of imagination devised such a price. Certainly it was more than a man's love of roses . . .

Wisely he realized our tendency to take for granted our blessings. Fervently he prayed that we would forever treasure the privilege of worship. Gently he reminds us that there is beauty and happiness in every sacrifice for the support of God's House.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a force for the welfare of its community and nation. (4) For the storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Radio Man Is Kiwanis Head

CHICAGO, Ill. — Merle H. Tucker, Gallup, New Mexico broadcaster (Radio Station KGAK) and Director of Development and Chairman of the State Park Commission for the State of New Mexico, was elected president of Kiwanis International recently at the organization's 47th annual convention in Denver, according to Pete Bosher, president of the Kiwanis Club of Virginia Beach, Va.

As head of Kiwanis International, Tucker will be official spokesman for some 261,000 Kiwanians in more than 5 000 clubs in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. He succeeds Milwaukee Businessman, I. R. Witthuhn, who has held the presidency since August 1 of last year.

Prior to becoming president of Kiwanis International, Tucker served one years as president-elect, one year as treasurer, one year as vice-president, and four years (two terms) as trustee. He has been a Kiwanian for twenty years.

Tucker is a member and former president of the Gallup and Albuquerque Chambers of Commerce, and a Commissioner of the New Mexico State Fair. He has served as Tourist Director of New Mexico, and as Governor of the Advisory Committee, National War Fund. He was radio director of the Texas Centennial Celebration.

German Airline Official Speaks on Tourism

Airline Official Tells Local Group of "Visit USA" Program

VIRGINIA BEACH — When Karl H. Koepcke, manager for North American public relations of Lufthansa German Airlines spoke here last week as the guest of the Virginia Beach Hotel, Motel, Apartment and Cottage Association he offered to businessmen and distinguished guests some down-to-earth eye-openers on tourism in reverse.

In his speech here at The Cavalier, Koepcke used the theme "The Visit USA. Program in the State of Virginia" and made no bones about the fact that Tidewater's bountiful resources had much to interest the European traveler to return some of those American tourist dollars now going to the other side of the Atlantic.

The acknowledged expert on international tourism—his airline services five continents — explained that any mutually agreeable program of commerce was a two-way street and that Lufthansa now was pushing a heavy campaign to interest its passenger clients in flying here for their vacations.

He spoke the next day to the Norfolk Cosmopolitan Club on the timely subject "The Common Market." Many of his audience said their ideas of Tidewater's stake in world trade got a thorough shaking up when they were brought to the realization that Hampton Roads, with its uncounted blessings, literally "has the world at its doorstep."

Charles W. Gardner, vice president of the Martha Washington Hotel and president of the Hotel-Motel Association, said that the Virginia Beach and Norfolk Chambers of Commerce, Virginia Travel Council and individual bankers and trade and commerce leaders added much to the success of the airline executive's visit.

T. C. Shoemaker New President Of P. A. Jaycees

Thomas C. Shoemaker

PRINCESS ANNE — Thomas C. Shoemaker, commercial representative of VEPCO, will be installed as the new president of the Princess Anne Jaycees Saturday at the Fort Story Officer's Club.

Shoemaker, a native of Washington, D.C., received a B.A. degree in Eastern Washington State College. He served the Jaycees as chaplain and vice-president. Flag Features DAR Program

The Sarah Constant Chapter DAR held their annual picnic at the Sarah Constant Shrine, Ocean View on Saturday evening, June 23. This is an annual event, and the Governor John Branch Society Children of the American Revolution joined with the chapter in the celebration.

Nancy Beaman, Program Chairman, presented a very interesting and informative program on the Flag of the United States of America. She was assisted by Nancy Lee Thomas and Julie McCubbin, who gave the origin and history of the flag, its correct use and some pertinent examples of its incorrect use, which must always be avoided by good citizens.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. R. Allen Brown, with a prayer. Mrs. Elizabeth Beaman Wells, Regent of Sarah Constant Chapter welcomed the CAR's and their parents. Mrs. J. Edward Johnson, National Defense Chairman, gave a brief message alerting the youngsters to their great opportunities in serving our country, by seriously remembering their CAR Creed.

After the program a picnic lunch was served on the picnic grounds, and swimming was enjoyed by many, while others enjoyed the cool breezes and the social hour that followed.

Radio Club Joins in Test of Equipment

VIRGINIA BEACH — Last week-end the members of the Beach Amateur Radio Club and amateurs all over the nation took to the field with transmitters and receivers and most of all, mosquito repellent. The purpose of this was the annual test of mobile and portable capabilities Field Day. This test, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, put radio operators into the field with portable power as a test of readiness in preparation for emergencies.

Members of the Beach Amateur Radio Club did just that. At dawn Saturday, June 23, members of the club began carrying tents, radios, food, and mosquito repellent into the Seasore State Park on 64th Street. By 3 p.m., the club had generators running and transmitters on the air. From that time on members of the club were sitting at card tables hitting telegraph keys, or calling into the "One-eyed monsters", better known as microphones. Two transmitters were kept on the air for twenty-four hours talking to other hams all over the United States. On low power they talked to such places as Northern Canada, California, & many of the mid-western states.

Wiley Harrell took over marine mobile operations with a large beam antenna mounted on his out-board motor boat. Other members, Clyde Bell and Bill Lawson maintained the power supplies and gave tips to some of the newer operators.

The success of this operation depended very much on these two members. Not only did the club make over seventy-five contacts in the period, but they ironed out many of the problems in using emergency power.

Despite the vicious attack by the mosquitos, the club considered this operation a real success. Late Sunday afternoon, the operations were shut down and the big clean-up started. With the experience of this operation the club hopes to have many other mobile tests during this year.

Annual Kempsville Horse Show Opening Friday

KEMPSVILLE — Three thousand dollars in cash and trophies will be awarded in The Twelfth Annual Horse Show, sponsored by the Kempsville Woman's Club, and co-sponsored by the Kempsville Ruritan Club, June 29 through July 1, at the Tidewater Horse and Pony Association grounds on Route 13.

Proceeds of the show will be used to purchase a much needed station wagon for the Tidewater School for Mentally Retarded Children.

Col. R. E. Barret of Branchville, Va., will be Show Manager. The show will be governed by the rules of the Virginia Horse Show Association.

A 1962 Chevrolet Corvair will be given away as a gate prize. The purchase of a ticket at $1.00 each, will entitle the holder to a chance on the car, as well as admission to the show.

This year there will be 110 classes and a total of $3,000 in cash prizes and trophies. There will be 9 challenges given.

The show will include a large field of Hunters and Jumpers, many of which have been worthwhile attractions in local and out-of town shows.

Some of the firsts in this season's show are two special divisions. They are the Arabian horse division, which will include the native costume class as well as the Arabian Horse Championship; the second is the Appaloosa Division, and the third special division is the only local Girl Scout Mounted Troup in Tidewater. They will perform in a Drill Patrol as well as a Pleasure Horse class.

The judges will be H. Karl Yenser, Laurel, Md., saddle horse; J. C. Arthur, Lynchburg, Walking Judge; and F. Dooley Adams, Southern Pines, N.C.; Hunter and Jumper Judge.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Vivian L. Page, 68, prominent Norfolk attorney and well-known Virginia politician, suffered a heart attack Thursday at his home on 74th St., and died soon after in a Norfolk hospital.

Mr. Page is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie Miller Page; a son, Judge Walter A. Page of the Court of Law and Chancery of Norfolk; two brothers, Ivor A. Page Jr. of Norfolk and Gordon K. Page of Fredericksburg, and a sister, Mrs. Edward A. Lembeck of New Smyrna Beach, Florida.

Page represented Norfolk in the General Assembly from 1924 to 1942. He shocked old-line politicians by early calls for repeal of prohibition and abolishment of the fee system in enforcing anti-drink laws. He disturbed political alignments with his two unsuccessful bids for the governship.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 11 a.m. by the Rev. Peyton R. Williams of Christ and St. Luke's Episcopal Church at the H. D. Oliver Funeral Apartments. The burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

"Cutie-Pies"

Teenagers Enter Business World

By JOY HAKIM

BAY COLONY — When Janet Stewart says "it's as easy as pie" she knows what she's talking about. For Janet, and her friend Kristin Goranson, are proprietors of a new bakery shop here.

The business, appropriately called, "Cutie-pies and Pastry Company," specializes in pies, cakes and cookies made to the customers specifications.

Does half of your family like chocolate frosting and the other half vanilla? Janet and Kristin will make a cake to suit them. How about a specially designed birthday cake for that next party? Do you prefer your pie crusts in a lattice design, a double crust, or a unique polka dot pattern? The girls aim to please, and their results are not only beautiful to behold, but mouth-watering to eat.

The girls decided to go into business when they saw a secondhand fiberglass rowboat for sale. They hope to buy it before the end of the summer.

They pooled their available capital ($7.17) and bought all their own supplies—milk, flour, sugar, eggs, etc. Then they went in search of customers. The initial cake-buyers have told their friends and the business is growing, according to Kristin.

"We don't use mixes," said Janet, "except for angel food cakes, because what would we do with fourteen egg yolks?"

One of their specialties is a five-layer carnival cake. It alternates pink and white layers and is frosted with pink and white frosting in a wedge-shaped pattern. At $2.00 it is their most expensive product.

Like most females the girls were reluctant to divulge their age. "Don't put 13," said one, "I'm almost 14 and it sounds so much better."

How do the mothers feel about their enterprising daughters? "My mother usually leaves the house when we're baking," said Kristin.

How soon will they buy that rowboat? So far they have baked 5 pies, 4 cakes and 6 dozen cookies and have made a net profit of $2.03.

But they're not discouraged. "We've paid back all the money that we started with," said Kristin, "and we have a supply of sugar and flour and other staples."

"It's just that some of those recipes call for a cup of butter and a lot of eggs," said Janet.

The bakery is not the only source of income for the girls—they both baby sit.

And they have other talents. Janet paints and both girls make their own clothes.

They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stewart of Chumley Road and Mrs. Harold T. Goranson of Bruton Lane. They are ninth graders at Virginia Beach High School.

PRINCESS ANNE'S MASTER FARM FAMILY

Congratulations are again in order to Mr. and Mrs. Frost, of Land of Promise Farms. They are the first Princess Anne County Family to be designated a Master Farm Family.

Presentation of this award will be at the Frost's home sometime this fall.

The Master Farm Family Program is sponsored by the Progressive Farmer Magazine, and conducted in cooperation with the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service. Virginia farm families are honored every four years.

FARMERS' GAS TAX REFUNDS

Farmers are entitled to claim refunds each year for the federal excise tax on gasoline used on a farm for farming purposes.

To get a refund of federal gasoline tax, you must file a claim on Form 2240. You may have received a copy of this form, but if you did not, explanatory bulletins and forms can be secured at my office. This form must be submitted between July 1 and October 1 of 1962. Refunds can be claimed for gasoline used on the farm from the period of July 1, 1961, to June 30, 1962.

The word "farm" includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, truck, orchards, nurseries, greenhouses, and other similar types of operation used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities.

NEED FOR PERFORMANCE TESTING OF BEEF CATTLE

As progress is made the Feeder Cattle business, the need for performance testing will be more evident.

Heifers from top producing cows will have to be put back in the herd, and Beef Cattle Improvement Association records can be an important tool in selecting the right one.

Work done by the BCIA also has helped take some of the gamble out of bull buying through its bull testing program at Culpeper, and on farms. There are six important records to consider in evaluating a performance tested bull. These include the production record of the dam and sire, the blood lines, the pre-weaning record of the calf, the feed test performance, and the life time growth and type score of the individual bull.

Now that most of the 1962 calves have arrived, it is a good time for the calf producer to take a look and see where he stands. Are your cows producing calves that will make a profit? Has the present bull made improvements in this year's calf crop? The Virginia BCIA can help answer these and other questions for you. For how to enroll, contact my office.

FARM MACHINERY CAN BE EXPENSIVE ITEM

A machinery bill that eats up farm profits is one hole in the pocket that a wife cannot mend, and it is up to the farmer himself to remedy this problem!

A farm machinery investment is too large when the cost of owning and operating the machinery raises the cost of the farm product above the level that will allow the farmer to make a profit.

We, of course, always recommend better care of machinery to make it last longer. We also recommend that when you buy a machine, that you should seriously consider the size and type that will do the work the cheapest. Don't buy any machine you don't need. Shop carefully for credit when buying, since any interest paid on loans just adds to the price of the machine.

Always compare the cost per acre between custom or hiring with the cost of owning your own equipment on a per acre basis.

THE TELEPHONE RINGS

Princess Anne and Virginia Beach farmers, homeowners, housewives, and everyone else keep two phones ringing constantly, asking many varied questions. I would like to pass on some questions and answers to you.

Q.—What is the best insecticide for gardens?

A.—There is no one insectide or all pests. However for general use, malathion ranks high. It controls aphids and sucking insects.

Q.—What can I do about fire blight?

A.—Break blighted twigs off the tree by hand and destroy them. If you use pruning shears or a knife, the blade becomes contaminated and will spread the disease. In commercial plantings, spraying during blossom time with streptomycin sulfate is recommended.

Q.—What is the best chemical to use to kill grasses & weeds in brick walks and gravel driveways?

A.—Use ¼ pound dalapon and 4 pounds of 2, 4-D in one gallon of water. Amasine also can be used if there is no danger of washing.

Q.—How can I control little green bugs that come through the screens at night?

A.—Using yellow lights will help. And you might try brushing the screens with a chlordane-oil solution.

Q.—What can I seed now that would be suitable for a hay crop?

A.—Sudan Grass or pearl millet.

Q.—Should I spray to control the European corn borer on field corn?

A.—It is not considered practical in Virginia to apply chemicals to control the corn borer on the field corn.

MAKE BETTER USE OF PASTURE

Princess Anne cattlemen sometimes have trouble making the most efficient use of pasture. During the spring, pasture growth is lush and most active, but this is the time when cattlemen have the lightest load of cattle to graze.

However, there are several ways in which farmers can try to make better use of these grasses. One possibility is to have a good portion of grass land in the tall growing grasses and clovers so that they can be cut in the spring for hay or silage and then released for grazing the rest of the season.

This method is being used by more cattlemen and seems to be one of the more practical methods of efficient harvest.

Another way of solving the problem is to stock heavy in the spring months with some cattle that can be sold during the middle of the summer. In early July, about half of the cattle can be sent to market and the rest grazed until October. This uses up all of the spring grass and then leaves the pasture loaded so it can graze the rest comfortably.

If you are grazing steers and have facilities to feed out cattle on the farm, you can move part of these steers to the feed lot in July and start feeding. The remainder can be grazed until October. This not only enables you to get maximum gains from pasture, but lets you send finished cattle to market at two different times. Thereby, hedging a little against the margin.

By loading pastures in the spring and then lightening the load, you can use more fertilizer and reap the benefits from it. One of the big current problems is in using fertilizer to increase growth that is not being used fully.

Still another idea for making better use of pasture is to add sheep and to breed them so lambs will go to market in May and June. The sheep will help use the spring growth and by selling lambs the load will be lightened as July approaches.

NEWS OF THE BAYSIDE AREA

Chesapeake Beach Art Class Visits Ocracoke Island

By RITA VELLINES

If you have never been there, you really should go but don't plan on a hurried trip, because it is geographically impossible. If you haven't been there and are not a fisherman, nor an artist, don't knock it. You might like the lack of traffic, the wide uncongested beaches and the ponies. If you really want to get away from it all go to the "shell beach." You'll think you are the last human being on earth, on a vast deserted desert and you might even see the "mirage."

Some of the Chesapeake Beach Art Class thought it would be fun to go to Ocracoke on a sketching trip and so they took off last week. I will try to tell you some of the things we saw.

In addition to our suitcases—one girl took three — the rest just one—we had to take our painting paraphanalia, beach umbrella, chairs and stools, water cooler and "Scotch Cooler" —it was necessary to drive two cars for four people.

The first leg of our journey took us through the Nags Head area, which was severley damaged by the March storm. Many of the familiar land marks have disappeared. The houses that survived the storm are being raised up on piling and all new construction seems to be also.

Oregon Inlet was badly damaged. In fact a flat roof restaurant that some of our group climbed up on last June and painted from the roof, was completely demolished as well as the small boat docks.

The severe storm did not wash any sand out of Oregon Inlet, that I could notice. It is still necessary for the ferries to skirt the sand bars and it still takes from 45 minutes to an hour to cross.

The northern part of Hattress Island seemed to receive most of the damage from the storm. It was necessary to build a complete new road in many sections. The State Highway has erected a one-way bridge over the new inlet that the storm formed. From the new inlet, which is slightly above the Cape, on down the island looked undamaged.

Crossing Hattress Inlet is still a chore. There seems to be more sand bars and the ferry still gets stuck but the pilot manages to work around and free the boat.

Ocracoke Island always lacked the dunes that Hattress and the Nags Head area had but this year it looked even flatter. There are designated picnic areas, drive offs for beach bathing, and a camp site on the road from the ferry to the village of Ocracoke, which is thirteen miles from the ferry, on the widest part of the island on the Sound side. The Island is very bare, only a few trees and just a few small sandhills until you turn the bend in the road and reach the village. Then you think you are in another world. The growth is lush and tropical having many cedar trees, live oaks, some of which are tremendous, yuccas grow everywhere and some are quite tall. Each yard has many oleanders and they were all blooming profusely.

The village of Ocracoke is laid out around Silver Lake, which is a beautiful harbor for all their boats. The Coast Guard Station sits at the head of the Lake, near the narrow opening into the Sound.

Silver Lake is an artist's dream at any time of day. We even painted a twilight picture there until it was too dark to see our colors. Boy, were we surprised when we got back to the hotel.

East Howard Street is very picturesque, with its oversized live oaks, fences along the street, some white and some unpainted except by nature, with a fungus growth on them. The street is one set of tracks wide, in deep sand. In fact when you get off the paved road all the roads on the island are sandy.

Because East Howard Street is painted by so many artists, our group wouldn't consider it. Instead one enterprising soul discovered a scene that was exactly what they had been looking for. Only you had to wade across part of the sound to reach it. Now that would be alright if you were empty handed but, alas, we were not. Each being loaded down with drawing board, watercolor pad, stool, paints, three jars of water, and water cooler. After making several trips across with all our tools, someone decided it was too hot, we needed the beach umbrella, which alas four people and their painting equipment cannot get under. So a tarpolian had to be erected on the poles that the fishermen left so thoughtfully in the ground, for which I was most thankful.

On your stay at Ocracoke you will hear the people in the hotels talk about the wonderful shells you can find at the Inlet. You soon discover that it is five sandy miles to the inlet. Some will tell you that you can drive down, some that you can't, but the best thing they say is to inquire at the "Snack Bar".

After talking back and forth to everyone we saw about the best way to get to the "shell beach" at the Inlet we were sure we could find it O.K., so we didn't bother to stop at the "Snack Bar". We were told it was a sand road, you couldn't miss it, but to be sure and stay in the tracks and you could drive within a half a mile of the end.

We found a number of tracks in hard sand and proceded down this vast desert—which is exactly what it looked like. It was flat for as far as you could see and the sand road looked moist to the driver, which was me. Well, we drove for what seemed miles and we finally came to a sand dune sitting up in the middle of nowhere, looking very lonesome by itself. At this point the road seemed wetter and the driver decided that it must be the end of the line so we left the car, right out on that desert, and proceeded to walk in the direction of the tracks. After much tramping we came to the beach on the sound side and followed it on down to the point. We had lost sight of the car and it seemed that we were the last souls left on earth on this huge flat beach with only the sea gulls to know that we had been there. We never did see another living soul and the vastness of the place was so spooky that we could not enjoy our search for shells. It was there that we saw the mirage. It looked like maybe an island at sea, or a large ship on the beach, only at that particular spot we knew it was dry land.

Between searching for shells, some of our party found "sand dollars", and studying the "mirage", time marched on and when we decided we had stayed long enough and proceeded to follow the shoreline on the sound side, which we had come down, we soon discovered that the tide was coming in fast and we had to change our coarse. This was very discerting, because the beach was so flat and all the sand we had been over since we reached that point looked so wet, that I was sure it was probably submerged at high water and here we were out there without a boat and only a landgoing "Plymouth".

That "Plymouth" was sure a sight for sore eyes when we finally could make it out. Needless to say we all proceeded to it "on the double"—which was certainly no easy task when everybody had two arm loads of shells.

On the way back, on the sand road, it suddenly dawned on me why the islanders we talked to said "ask at the 'Snack Bar' "—which we failed to do—the people at the Snack Bar would tell the silly tourists whether it was safe to proceed or not, or if the tide would get them.

So if you have a yen to go to the "Shell Beach" while you are on Ocracoke for crying out loud "Ask At The "SNACK BAR."

And if you don't believe I saw a mirage—well, I have a picture to prove it.

The MIXING BOWL . . .

IT'S Fun TO COOK

By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

For the very latest in food fads and fables . . . for practical, down-to-earth recipes that please both palate and pocketbook, read the "Mixing Bowl" by Lucille Clark each Thursday in the Sun-News.

Idaho's Buckaroo Beans

If you aren't acquainted with Idaho's dappled beans known as "Pintos," a pot of Buckaroo Beans made with this Western favorite will provide a perfect introduction and lead you into meeting another of the famous Idaho Bean family—the Red Bean. Either can be used in this hearty low-cost all-in-the-pot meal, obligingly slow-simmered either on the newest of thermostatically-controlled range surface units or over the glowing coals of a camp fire, with practically no watching and few dishes to wash. And what a meal it is! This recipe makes 6 substantial servings.

2 cups Idaho dry Pinto Beans
6 cups cold water
1 large or 2 medium onions, thick-sliced or chopped
2 fat cloves garlic, minced
1 small bayleaf, left whole
¼ pound smoked ham, slab bacon or salt pork

Add washed beans to the water, allow to soak overnight in a heavy kettle. Or, in the morning, boil beans 2 minutes in the water. Remove from heat, cover, soak 1 hour. Add other ingredients. Smoked ham should be cut in ½ inch cubes. Slab bacon or salt pork (salt washed off) should be sliced twice each way not quite to rind. Bring to boiling point rapidly. Reduce heat to slow simmer. Cover tightly. Cook 1½ hours. Then add

2 cups canned tomatoes
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano OR ¼ teaspoon ground cumin
salt if needed

Rapidly bring to boiling point. Reduce to slow-simmer. Taste for salt. Cover. Simmer about 2 hours.

There should be enough liquid left on the beans to resemble a medium-thick gravy. If cooked at this slow-simmer stage, the beans will not stick to the pot. Serve in large heated soup dishes or over-size coffee cups, with piping-hot buttered corn bread and cool crisp relishes; dessert—lemon, orange or pineapple sherbet or simple pudding with butter cookies.

It's out-door time again, and surely you'll be planning a "Cook-Out". Idaho's Buckaroo Beans sound mighty good for the an extra treat.

You'll be Barbecuing and there are meats and poultry for all the liking of your guests.

You don't have to be a whiz at mathematics to take one cup of unsulphured molasses and multiply it into the best basic barbecue sauce available. Simply add an equal amount each of prepared mustard and vinegar. The sum total is three cups of a delicious barbecue sauce that can be made ahead of time and stored without benefit of refrigeration.

Unsulphured molasses is the plus factor of any barbecue sauce. It aids in browning meats during cooking. Its sweet, distinctive flavor is a perfect contrast to the tart ingredients. Too, unsulphured molasses has the golden-brown color of barbecue sauces and provides the meat with a gleaming, appetizing glaze.

1-2-3 Barbecue Sauce

1 cup unsulphured molasses
1 cup prepared mustard
1 cup vinegar

Combine molasses and mustard, mix thoroughly. Stir in vinegar. Yield: 3 cups. One cup of sauce is sufficient to barbecue 8 broiler-fryer chicken halves, or 2 dozen hamburgers or frankfurters.

Note—For Tomato Barbecue Sauce, add 1 cup catchup or chili sauce to Basic Barbecue Sauce. Yield: 1 quart.

BEEF ROAST FOR THE BACKYARD BARBECUE SET

A welcome preview to a backyard or patio supper is the sight of a succulent beef roast rotissing on the sidelines. Watching the meat cook, sniffing the spicy scent, and perhaps taking a turn at basting the roast are sufficient to satisfy the lazy man's latent Boy Scout instincts.

The electric rotisserie and this delectable recipe for barbequed beef roast are boons to the backyard barbecue enthusiasts. The recipe is an easy one, and the meat requires very little attention once cooking starts. (If you don't have one of the automatic electric rotisseries, the beef roast can be done in the oven; it won't need watching—just an occasional basting with the tangy barbecue sauce.)

The beef roast gets its spicy zing and rich brown glaze from the molasses barbecue sauce used for marinating and basting the meat. In addition to the light, mellow molasses, herbs and vinegar and oil are used in the sauce . . . 'twould be equally good on lamb or chicken.

Happy prelude to the barbecued beef dinner: tall cool fruit-juice drinks, with crackers and cheese for the very hungry to nibble on. Good accompaniments: corn on the cob, potato chips, tossed salad, buttered biscuits. For dessert? Well, it's watermelon season. Need we say more?

BARBECUED BEEF ROAST

1 small onion, chopped
1 cup mild vinegar
½ cup oil
½ cup light, mild molasses
½ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon savory
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
4 lbs. beef round, rolled and tied

Combine onion, vinegar, oil and molasses in large bowl, mix well with fork. Blend in seasonings. Add beef and turn a few times to coat well with the mixture; refrigerate several hours, turning beef occasionally.

Preheat rotisserie as manufacturer directs, or preheat oven to 325°F. or slow. Remove meat from marinade. Put spit lengthwise through center of roast, lock with prongs, and slip spit into preheated rotisserie; roast about 1¼ to 1½ hours, for medium-rare, basting often with marinade. Or, to roast in oven, place meat in shallow roasting pan or rack, roast approximately 1½ to 2 hours, for medium-rare, basting often with marinade. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Grant, Day in Beach Movie

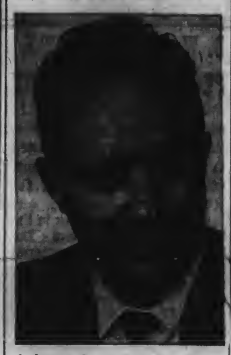

VIRGINIA BEACH — Cary Grant, Doris Day, Gig Young and Audrey Meadows are the stars of "That Touch of Mink," the new feature attraction which opens July 4 at the Beach Theatre.

Another in the string of comedy hits from Universal Pictures, among them "Pillow Talk," "Operation Petticoat," "Come September," and "Lover Come Back," "That Touch of Mink" is a Granley production, presented in Color and Panavision.

Bringing together Cary Grant and Doris Day for the first time, Universal added the starring talents of Gig Young and Audrey Meadows, and has surrounded this stellar array in "That Touch of Mink" with a fine cast of supporting players including Dick Sargent, Alan Hewitt, John Astin, John McKee, Jan Burrell and June Ericson.

As an extra added attraction, "That Touch of Mink" has a comical sequence which takes place in the Yankee baseball dugout, with Cary and Doris helping Yankee stars Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Yogi Berra second-guess the umpire. The scene ends as each of the three ball players, egged on by the stars, particularly Miss Day, are thumbed out of the game.
